Protestants vow revenge

Flying visit to Ulster made by Thatcher

Times News Services

A Protestant guerrilla organization today pledged revenge on the Irish Republican Army for the killing of Earl Louis Mountbatten and 18 British soldiers, and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher flew unexpectedly to Northern Ireland.

Meanwhile, at Scotland's Balmoral Castle five truckloads of soldiers took up positions to guard the Queen, who is on vacation there. The Queen normally is guarded only by two detectives armed with revolvers.

And, the Vatican announced today that Pope John Paul has cancelled tentative plans for a side trip to Northern Ireland during his 10-day visit to the Irish Republic next month because of the renewed violence.

The Holy See had not previously indicated the Pontiff would visit Northern Ireland. However, an official said today that a trip to the archdiocese of Armagh near the border with the Irish Republic had been planned in principle after the Vatican received "numerous requests . . . from Protestants and Catholics."

Mrs. Thatcher planned to spend just one day in strife-torn Ulster, her office said, seeing administrators and commanders of the 13,000-member British garrison.

It was not known whether she would take a helicopter to Warrenpoint, the border ferry point where the Provisional wing of the outlawed IRA killed 18 British soldiers on Monday.

But she immediately went to visit wounded soldiers at Belfast's Musgrave Park Hospital.

As forces of the Irish Republic and Britain hunted for the IRA bombers who blew up Britain's famed soldier-statesman and two truckloads of soldiers two days ago, the outlawed Ulster Freedom Fighters said in a statement delivered to newspapers: "In view of the latest wave of Irish Republican Army attacks, we will resume hostilities against known IRA men."

The backlash began Tuesday night when a Roman Catholic was killed on his Belfast doorstep.

Patrick Hardy, whose brother was killed during riots in Belfast four years ago, was shot and killed by two men who escaped on a motorcycle. Six of the man's 10 children were inside the house.

Sculptured Skatewave will close in face of declining use by local skateboarders

Skateboard fad falls flat

By AB KENT
Times Staff

A year ago skateboarding was the hottest thing in town.

But today the sport — victim of high prices for equipment and the fickle fancy of young folk — is on a downhill slope.

The result: A $125,000 skateboard facility in Saanich will close Friday. And Esquimalt officials wonder how they may rekindle interest in their $14,000 facility that doesn't really turn kids on.

The sculptured concrete of Saanich Skatewave, operating on land leased from Saanich adjoining Cedar Hill Community Centre, will close because its partners can't make a living, pay the rent and retire capital costs.

Managing partner Bill Lannigan said a proposal will be made to Saanich in hopes that the recreation department will assume operation of Skatewave, which has a following of several hundred youngsters.

Lannigan said the overhead is killing the business, especially the top rent being charged by the municipality.

Saanich recreation manager Bill Young wonders whether Skatewave was too sophisticated to start with.

"For one reason or another, it hasn't caught on here like in some places, like California," he said.

The area's only other skateboard facility, Anderson Park Bowl, installed by Esquimalt municipality for $14,000, is operated free of charge.

It too has declined in popularity this summer, although the core of users feels attendance will recover when classes resume at Esquimalt High School across the street.

Youngsters say the facility would be more attractive if the concrete convolutions were expanded, perhaps to include a snake run with a larger bowl to enable skaters to do more elaborate moves.

However, says Esquimalt recreation manager Jack Boutilier, "It's like a lot of fad sports; there just doesn't seem to be the interest. Roller skating is the in-thing now".

"We're having a real good look at it," Boutilier said.

Esquimalt offers plenty of opportunity for indoor roller skating in its arena and curling rink five days a week.

"It's the big rage now to skate on the streets and in parks," Boutilier said, noting the success of rented skates for sidewalk use.

Ironically, these new style skates were adapted by someone in California who used surplus skateboard wheels to make a wider, more versatile roller skate.

"It's a fluke, really," Boutilier said. "They can't get enough of them."

The reason for the decline in skateboarding popularity varies, depending on whether you skate, administer the park or own the installation.

Skatewave's Lannigan says the trend toward competitiveness is hurting the very popularity that skateboard parks hoped to encourage.

"The sport is going professional. The elite are surviving and others are getting out.

"Since the parks opened, you have to be good to use them," the manager said.

"The sport has become very specialized.

"Three years ago you could buy a skateboard for $20. Now you can go as high as $200, and a decent board will cost at least $90." Add

Canada puts on pressure

Fisheries Minister James McGrath today warned American tuna fishermen off B.C. they face the "full burden of Canadian law" if they continue fishing in Canadian territorial waters.

"If we have to arrest 30, 40, 50 (fishermen), we will. I am hoping that saner, or sensible logic will prevail and the Americans will get the message and head back home, McGrath said in an interview on CTV's Canada AM.

"If they don't, then they have to take the full burden of the Canadian law."

McGrath, adding the law will be applied "with full vigor", said he has increased the number of fisheries department vessels and was using defense department aircraft to patrol west coast waters.

Meanwhile, federal fisheries vessels are continuing to patrol the tuna ground off Vancouver Island after reports that up to 30 U.S. boats were fishing in Canadian waters.

Eight U.S. fish boat captains were charged Tuesday with illegally entering and fishing in Canadian waters. They pleaded not guilty in Victoria provincial court and were released when they posted $5,000 performance bonds. They were remanded until Feb. 13.

The boats left Victoria harbor Tuesday night, their holds still loaded with the tuna, but their destinations were not immediately known.

The captains were charged with two counts under the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act.

Oil price question may delay budget

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Canadians may have to wait until November to find out how the government elected last May plans to deal with the economy and spend their tax dollars.

Finance Minister John Crosbie told reporters Tuesday that his budget could be as late as November. Parliament is due to sit Oct. 9.

Crosbie also said Canada will not necessarily follow the lead of the United States where the major banks Tuesday boosted their prime lending rates to 12.25 per cent — a historic high.

Crosbie said the situation "has to be reviewed in the normal way, and Gerald Bouey, governor of the Bank of Canada, would have the "prime role" in deciding if Canada should increase its bank rate beyond the current record high of 11.75 per cent.

The dollar suffered its biggest drop in more than a month on North American money markets Tuesday, losing almost one-third of a cent against its U.S. counterpart to close at 85.38 cents U.S.

Crosbie said it would be "very much to our advantage" if the question of the domestic price of oil was settled before he draws up his budget.

The settlement was necessary so the government could have accurate economy forecasts.

Crosbie chatted with reporters briefly after the inner cabinet, meeting in this Rocky Mountain resort, discussed how the government would propose to allow the price of Canadian oil to progress toward the much-higher world price of between $21 and $25 a barrel.

Prime Minister Clark told reporters progress was made in developing an energy policy which must eventually be put to the provinces, industry and the consumers.

He said the cabinet must decide on a policy in which the federal government and the other three parties are willing participants.

In Calgary, meanwhile, Ontario Treasurer Frank Miller said Ontario paid its dues in Confederation through redistribution of its wealth to other provinces and now is asking oil-rich provinces to do the same.

"Ontario only asks that they remember that when it was our turn we did pay a price to be Canadians," Miller said in a speech to a Canadian Bar Association meeting.

Ontario has called for a national job-creation fund to be started from oil price increases of more than $2 a barrel, rather than seeing increased taxes go to producing provinces and the federal government or profits to oil companies.

Whitecaps game on TV

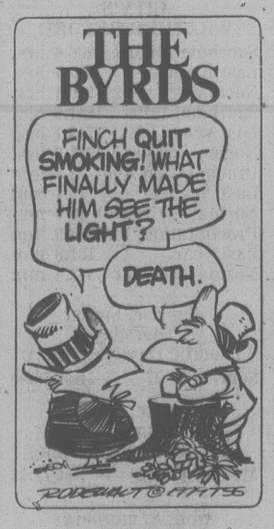
The Vancouver Whitecaps playoff game against the New York Cosmos will be seen on BCTV tonight at 8.

BCTV and the Whitecaps started negotiating broadcast rights after fans bought out the soccer game in a record 9½ hours Monday.

Permission to go ahead with the broadcast had to come from Whitecaps president John Best, the Cosmos' owner, and the commissioner of the North American Soccer League in New York.

$3.4M raid

VALENCIENNES, France (Reuter) — A gang of five men and a woman got away with the equivalent of about $3.4 million in a raid on a state pensions office near here, police said today. The gang tied up eight employees and collected the banknotes, using walkie-talkies to keep in contact with accomplices in the street, police said.



Food prices dip in August

OTTAWA (CP) — Food prices have been steadily declining this month, a government survey released today shows, but are still 11 per cent higher than a year ago.

During the last four weeks, supermarket prices have declined by 2.2 per cent, the department of agriculture says.

In its monthly survey of food prices, the department found it cost $61.47 to provide a basic nutritious weekly diet for four during the week ending Aug. 17.

The relief from rising prices appears mainly seasonal as most of the decline resulted from lower costs of locally grown fruits and vegetables, which come on the market in greatest abundance in August.

In spite of the latest month-to-month price drop, food prices are now 11 per cent higher than one year ago, the survey showed. In August, 1978, the weekly grocery bill for a basic nutritous diet for four was $55.29.

Government officials attribute part of the August drop in prices to consumer resistance to rising beef prices.

Their investigations showed that consumers have been boycotting expensive beef and switching to cheaper meats since mid-June. This forced farmers to lower their prices for live cattle.

But agricuture department analysts expect the relief to be short-lived.

"It appears that live cattle prices have now bottomed out and may drift upward during the remainder of 1979," the department said in a statement accompanying latest food price figures. "This increase in live cattle prices will result in higher beef prices in retail stores across Canada."

The department's food price index, a statistical yardstick for measuring changes in supermarket prices, reached 163.1 last month. The index was arbitrarily set at 100 in 1974. This means that a basket of groceries which would have cost $100 five years ago, now costs $163.10.

Declining prices for fresh produce and beef were partly offset by higher prices for dairy products, fish, beverages and processed vegetables.

The largest price increase was for beverages, 1.5 per cent last month. Most of the increase is attributable to rising coffee prices resulting from political problems in Uganda and Nicaragua and a May frost in Brazil, the government says.

Hurricane rips Caribbean islands

ROSEAU, Dominica (UPI) — Mighty Hurricane David slammed the Caribbean islands of Dominica and Martinique with its 224 kilometres-an-hour fury today, ripping the roofs from houses, uprooting trees and forcing thousands to seek shelter.

There was no immediate word of injuries or deaths resulting from the awesome storm, one of the most ferocious to hit the Windward Islands this century.

Weathermen at the National Hurricane Centre in Miami said part of the eye of the hurricane moved through the 30-mile-wide Dominican Channel that separates Dominica and Martinique and headed toward the open Caribbean Sea.

At noon EDT David was located near latitude 15.1 north, longitude 61.1 west. It was moving toward the west northwest at 14 mph and was expected to continue on that course for the next 12 to 24 hours.

Forecasters said there was a chance David would continue to veer northward and menace Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, both 36 hours or more away at the rate of speed the storm now is travelling. A hurricane watch was issued for both areas, along with the Dominican Republic.

If David holds its current course, it would pass 80 to 120 km south of Puerto Rico, forecasters said.

The tropical twister took aim at Barbados Tuesday, but then began a gradual swing toward the north, missing the island almost entirely. No serious damage or injuries were reported.

At Dominica, freelance reporter Elsworth Carter said that roofs were torn off buildings and trees uprooted in the capital city of Roseau. There was little information from Martinique, about 48 km to the south, because communications were cut off.

"The winds are really howling now," Carter said.

In one of the last telephone transmissions, one of Martinique's more than 300,000 residents said winds were reported at 192 km/h with gusts up to 240 km/h. The storm was rated force 4 on a scale of 5.

A spokesman at the U.S. Consulate at Martinique's capital city of Fort de France said before the full fury of the storm hit that about 500 American tourists had been advised to stay where they were unless they were in a low-lying area, in which case they were urged to seek other shelter.

Air fare promise kept?

TORONTO (CP) — Air Canada will try to honor thousands of discount reservations for flights to United States destinations even if President Jimmy Carter rejects the low-fare plan, an airline spokesman said Tuesday.

John Cavill said Air Canada will ask the Canadian transport commission to make a special appeal to honor seats already booked if Carter endorses the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board's ruling against the fares.

The U.S. board opposes the airline's discounts of between 46 and 66 per cent on the grounds that Canada has refused to let American Airlines and United Airlines issue half-fare discounts for flights to Canada.

Air Canada has offered the discounts on flights of 1,600 kilometres or more in Canada between Sept. 24 and Nov. 4 and from U.S. destinations from Oct. 5 to Nov. 25.

So far, 35,000 reservations have been made for flights in the U.S. and Canada. The U.S. board's order would affect only the U.S. flights.

Malcolm Armstrong, chairman of the transport commission's air transport committee, said the commission is firm in its position that deregulation of Canada's airline industry must be carried out slowly.

Sudden deregulation, he said, could result in the collapse of some of the few airlines the country has. The situation is not as secure as in the U.S. where many airlines could replace one that folded, Armstrong said.

"Canadians wouldn't like it — would they? — if a Canadian airline folded and American Airlines came in to take over some routes," he said.

Officials from both countries will meet in Ottawa on Oct. 9 to discuss air fares.

Hank Intven, legal counsel for the Consumers Association of Canada, said the airline behaved irresponsibly by selling seats before it had Civil Aeronautics Board approval for the low-fare plan.

Bus pact violation claimed

Representatives of disgruntled Pacific Coach Lines bus dispatchers appeared before the Labor Relations Board today accusing their employer of violating a collective agreement.

The 14 dispatchers claim the company is not living up to the terms of their contract.

The dispute flared up earlier this week and on Tuesday resulted in an unauthorized picket line at the company's Victoria depot.

The dispatchers, members of the Office and Technical Employees Union, removed the pickets after less than an hour.

A union spokesman said the action was not sanctioned by the OTEU.

The dispatcher's dispute with the company has its roots in the amalgamation last year of Pacific Stage Lines with Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

The contracts for the employees expired March 31 and the new company, Pacific Coach Lines, found itself negotiating six collective agreements — two with the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, three with the Amalgamated Transit Union and one with the OTEU.

The Labor Relations Board, by June 1, had streamlined the contracts, into two — one with the CBRT and the other with the OTEU.

Dancer's defection 'spur-of-moment'

NEW YORK (AP) — Bolshoi Ballet star Alexander Godunov said today that his defection was a spur-of-the-moment decison after he missed a curfew imposed by ballet troup officials. See earlier story on page 53.

Godunov told a news conference that he knew it would be his last chance to defect because missing the curfew would mean he would not be allowed the freedom necessary to contact U.S. officials.

The ballet star, whose ballerina wife Ludmilla Vlasova flew back to Moscow after refusing to defect with him, had been prevented from touring abroad for five years as a result of rumors on an earlier tour that he might defect.

Godunov, making his first appearance in public since defecting, said he was grateful to U.S. officials for giving his wife an opportunity to join him.

A Soviet airliner carrying Miss Vlasova was kept on the ground at New York's Kennedy Airport for three days while U.S. and Soviet officials negotiated over her fate. U.S. officials said they wanted the ballerina to make her decision in a non-coersive atmosphere.

The two sides later agreed on a meeting with officials from both countries present in an airport bus. During the meeting, Miss Vlasova again expressed her desire to return to the Soviet Union.

Godunov, whose remarks were translated from Russian by an interpreter, said he defected soley to further his dancing career.

Orville Schell, lawyer for Godunov, said he called news conference to answer questions, and to counter a report by the official Soviet news agency Tass that Godunov left for reasons that were "unclear."

Meanwhile, the editor-in-chief of Dance magazine, a close friend of Godunov, told the Chicago Tribune that the Godunov's marriage to Miss Vlasova was "more or less for convenience."

Canada gets tough over tuna

Penalties under the act include seizure of a boat and its catch, fines up to $25,000 and jail terms of up to two years.

Charged were:

Michael Terrance Welsh of Morro Bay, Calif., master of the Columbia, based in San Francisco;

Arne Berner Larsen of Seattle, master of the Majestic, based in Seattle;

Edward Deringer of Lomita, Calif., master of the Jean Marie, registered out of Seattle;

John Vernon Linvog of Seattle, master of the Seattle-based St. John II;

Kenneth Ledbetter of San Diego, master of the San Diego-based Jeannie;

Elmer Arnold Martens of Kingston, Wash., master of the Lorelei II out of Seattle;

Staley Carrill Johansen of Seattle, master of the Seattle-based Alma J;

Robert Sanchez of Santa Ana, Calif., master of the San Pedro-based Four C.

Defence lawyer Harold Turnham of Victoria entered pleas of not guilty to all charges on behalf of all eight before Judge Fred Giles.

The Crown was represented by Mary Jane Dodge of the federal justice department in Vancouver.

Wally Johnson of Vancouver, federal fisheries director for the Pacific region, said patrol vessels will continue to watch the vessels and other U.S. boats.

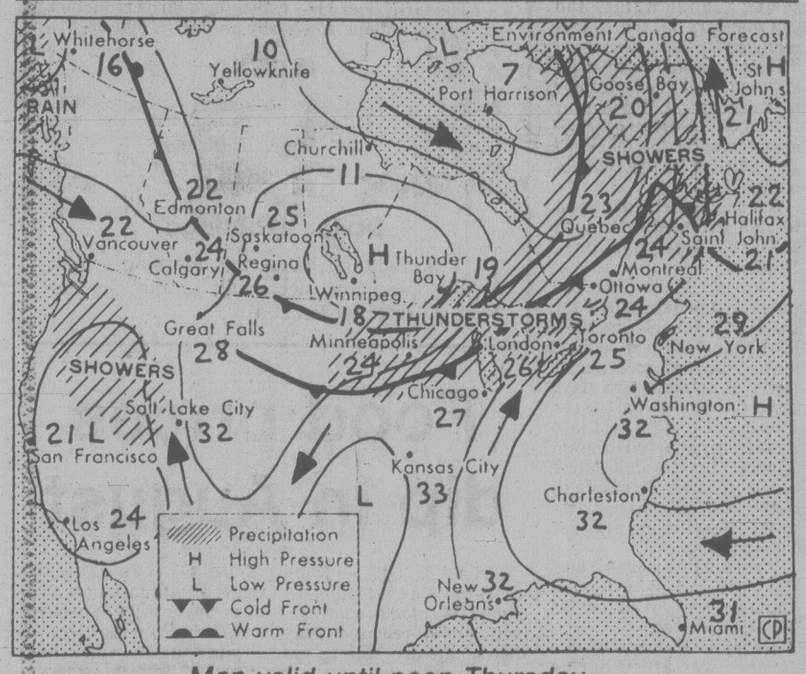
"We've had reports from several sources that there are a number of American fish boats in the general vicinity," he said. "Canadian boats have been extremely helpful and we are continuing to solicit their help."

Jack Nichol, president of B.C.'s United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said the bonds required were too small.

Johnson said the eight seized fishboats were allowed to leave Victoria harbor with their catches because it would have been too costly for Canadian authorities to freeze and store the tuna until the February court appearance.

The six-month court delay is expected to give Canadian and U.S. authorities time to come up with some sort of agreement on migratory stocks, one of the few unsettled items after lengthy talks between the two countries.

The Weather



Map valid until noon Thursday

Sunny conditions will prevail over most of the interior today but skies will be mainly cloudy in coastal regions. A disturbance lying over the northwestern states is expected to bring increasing cloud to southern B.C. Thursday with some shower activity by evening. Another system off the Alaska panhandle will spread isolated showers over northern portions of the Queen Charlottes and northern B.C. Thursday.

ENVIRONMENT CANADA WEATHER OFFICE 10 A.M. FORECASTS

Near-riches to rags — judge takes pity

Poor little rich boys usually don't get much pity, but being nearly rich appears to be something different — especially is it drives you to drugs. Sheldon Teperman, heir to a million-dollar Toronto wrecking business, was reduced to driving a taxi to support a heroin habit because relatives blocked his attempts to take over his late father's company. That was the ruling of a Toronto judge who this week sentenced the 32-year-old man to one day in jail for possessing and trafficking in about three-quarters of an ounce of heroin, and simple possession of a smaller quantity. Judge Arthur Whealey imposed the light sentence after Teperman's lawyer told the court the man began using heroin because he was unable to withstand the frustration of being denied a directorship of Teperman and Sons wrecking company in a family dispute. Teperman inherited one-third of the company's shares from his father Morton, who died in 1965, willing the shares to his son when he reached the age of 28. When he reached the required age, Teperman tried to obtain his shares and directorship, but was kept off the firm's board of directors by the executors of his father's estate — one of whom was his uncle — who refused to turn over the shares. Lawyer Michael Moldaver told the court Teperman was only permitted to perform "the most rotten, menial jobs" for the company, then became an addict because his self-esteem was "shattered."

LEARY

It wasn't money worries that started Howard Hughes on the road to drug addiction. That stemmed from a 1946 plane crash that nearly killed the reclusive billionaire, says a researcher who wrote Hughes' medical history. "Hughes was badly injured in that crash, and he was given narcotics in the hospital — enough morphine so that his personal physician was sure that they had addicted him," Forest Tennant told a drug abuse conference Tuesday in New Orleans. Tennant compiled the history for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

Further to the drug scene, the White House is hotly denying allegations that Hamilton Jordan used cocaine during a 1978 trip to Studio 54, one of New York City's most fashionable discotheques. Presidential press secretary Jody Powell on Tuesday denounced as a "concoction" a sworn deposition from a Studio 54 patron who says Jordan, White House chief of staff, approached him at the discotheque and asked about obtaining cocaine. And in Beverly Hills, Calif., Dr. Timothy Leary — once dubbed the "LSD guru" — and his wife Barbara were arrested Tuesday for investigation of possession of a dangerous drug.

American John Kinsella, 24, won an annual swimming race across the English Channel sponsored by Prince Faisal of Saudi Arabia, crossing from England to France in nine hours 10 minutes Tuesday to collect a $2,200 prize. Seventeen swimmers of various nationalities set out from Dover's Shakespeare beach on the 22-mile swim, including Cindy Nicholas, 22, of Toronto, who finished fourth over-all in 10 hours, 10 minutes and also collected $2,200 as the first woman to finish.

Prime Minister Joe Clark today appointed Charles Beverly Koester to succeed outgoing House of Commons clerk Alistair Fraser, who retired earlier this week after 12 years of service and who ran unsuccessfully for the Liberals in 1956 in the federal riding of Esquimalt-Saanich.

Oscar-winning actor Art Carney is resting comfortably in the intensive care unit of a Middletown, Conn., hospital and should be able to go home by the end of the week, hospital officials said today. Carney, 60, was admitted because of blood pressure and heart problems.

An autopsy today failed to explain what caused Mrs. Mary A. Koich, of Madison, Wis., to collapse and die moments after sniffing an anniversary bouquet of roses from her husband Michael. Medical examiners speculated that the 28-year-old mother of two suffered a fatal, alergic reaction. "She gasped for air," a fellow worker said. "We thought she was about to cry out of sentiment. Then she slowly fell."

Executed Utah killer Gary Gilmore is described as sometimes crude and violent and sometimes artistic and gentle in Norman Mailer's forthcoming book on Gilmore's 1977 execution. An excerpt from the 1,100-page "true-life novel" The Executioner's Song was published this week in Playboy magazine, 2½ years after a Utah firing squad granted Gilmore his death wish.

And finally, a remarkable rescue story from New Orleans where Keiane Johnson, 3, Tuesday dove into a backyard swimming pool, grabbed his 21-month-old playmate Eric Williams around the neck and dog-paddled them both to safety. Keiane's mother and a neighbor woman — in a state of shock — could only sit and watch.

Minors may drink if parents allow

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Washington parents may give their children permission to drink liquor, but the approval must be given afresh on every succeeding occasion, the attorney-general's office said Tuesday.

In an opinion requested by Sen. James McDermott, D-Seattle, deputy attorney-general Philip Austin said parental permission can be a defence if a third party — such as neighbor — is sued for allowing the under-age drinking to take place.

But Austin stressed that a state law permitting the parents to let their children drink does not allow minors to buy or drink alcohol in bars or taverns or to consume alcohol in public places.

He said parental permission is good for only one time and must be renewed, orally or in writing, each time the youth wants to drink.

Kurds allow army in rebel-held town

Times News Services

TEHRAN — The government announced today that Kurdish leaders from the rebel-held town of Mahabad had agreed to let the army enter the city, the Pars news agency reported.

Pars said the agreement was reached in Tehran following talks between government leaders and the city council of Mahabad, still in Kurdish rebel control but surrounded by three armored columns of the army.

The state radio announced the agreement, quoting Interior Minister Hashem Sabbaghian, shortly after the Ayatollah Khomeini renewed his offer of general amnesty to Kurdish rebels who surrender. Khomeini Tuesday had rejected talks with the Kurds.

Pars news agency said "negotiations held between the government and revolutionary council and Mahabad city council reached remarkable achievements today."

Earlier Khomeini issued new orders to crush the Kurdish rebellion in northwest Iran and reports of executions mounted despite peace overtures from the Kurds.

Khomeini sent Moslem cleric Hosseini Kermani on a fact-finding mission to Kurdistan with orders to "crush the outlaws if need be," Tehran Radio reported.

Kurdish sources said 57 Kurds were executed by firing squad in Saqqez Tuesday in addition to the 51 announced throughout Kurdistan since Khomeini's prosecutor, Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkhali, was sent to the region two weeks ago.

The sources, reached by telephone in their stronghold in Mahabad, said Khalkhali's tribunals in Saqqez to the south found the 57 guilty of "anti-revolutionary activities."

They said the bullet-riddled bodies of the condemned were "dumped into the street outside the town's garrison as grief-stricken relatives gathered around."

Pars said only that 11 Kurds and nine army deserters were executed in Saqqez Tuesday. There was no independent confirmation of the figures supplied by the government or the Kurds.

Sally Rand near death

GLENDORA, Calif. (UPI) — Sally Rand, whose peekaboo fan dance scandalized the 1930s and years later still held the attention of audiences, was reported near death today.

Rand, 75, whose now-you-see-it, now-you-don't adroitness with two big ostrich plumes was the big draw at 1933 Chicago Worlds Fair, was in critical condition with heart problems in the intensive care unit of Foothill Presbyterian Hospital.

When the slinky, 5-foot-tall blonde was asked whether or not she was nude, her usual reply was: "The Rand is quicker than the eye."

Tainted visions

Is it wrong to favor past political supporters over someone else if the two have equal ability? Of course not." — Liberal labor minister John Munro 1974.

At the time Munro made the statement, a federal election campaign was under way. Both the Tory and the NDP leaders at the time reacted with outrage over the admission of political patronage.

Five years later Prime Minister Joe Clark and his cabinet ministers seem determined to carry on what they say has become a way of political life in Quebec. It's not entirely clear why Quebec was singled out when it's a fact in all areas of Canada.

Supply minister Roch Lasalle started the discussion earlier this week when he told a Montreal newspaper, as candidly as Munro made his remark, that political patronage is a way of life in Quebec and loyal party workers would get government contracts.

Clark, when asked to comment on Lasalle's remarks said, "I naturally am not going to exclude Canadians who happen to combine competence with sharing my political beliefs."

It seems there are two separate areas of political patronage that the government shouldn't try to mix up. The first has to do with legitimate political appointments and the other has to do with work contracted out.

Appointments are usually above board and condoned. The awarding of contracts usually takes place beyond the eyes of the public and therefore can raise suspicions of political deals and incompetence.

Right now the Tory government is dealing with high level appointment patronage. Senior civil servants, for the most part deputy ministers, are being replaced with minds bent more towards PC direction and philosphy. Few of the deputy ministers are shocked and neither are we.

Clark's faithful are also scouring the province of Quebec for two suitable candidates to make up that province's contingent in the Senate. The Conservative party with its drastic lack of francophone representation hopes to fill the Senate seats with individuals qualified to move into the cabinet.

Given the unsettled state of Quebec's relationship to the rest of Canada, one would hope Clark can fill those seats to the best advantage of the country, and thus his party.

Clark is also expected to fill nine more Senate seats in the next few weeks. Since the Tories now have only 18 seats, and the Liberals have 70, rest assured, and rightly so, that Conservative party faithful will grace that body.

In the area of work contracted out, which by far lends itself to the most abuse, Clark should not be so quick to think that competence can be easily judged separately from political affliation. One would think, regardless of past political practices, that a new government would try to ensure patronage is eliminated from a process that will likely select hundreds of employees over its time in office.

Most provincial governments consider it a violation of human rights to ask a prospective employee his or her marital status. Having one's eligibility judged by political affliation is as wrong as being judged by family relations.

It can go without saying what problems would be incurred by a government found tampering with the tender process — a process designed to ensure the best quality for money spent on work yet to be done.

It would seem the Clark government would do well to extend, as far as is possible, the tender process into the area of filling jobs for which the dollar value has more or less been set — often through a retainer system of contracting.

One of the great failings of any democracy is the tendency for milk to rise to the top. If Clark wants the best for the country, then he can't have his vision tainted by always thinking of what's best for the party.

Chicken and egg

The travelling public, naturally, are the ones who stand to lose from the current lack of air-discount diplomacy between Canada and the United States.

Air Canada has proposed to slash air fares to the United States between Oct. 5 and Nov. 23 by 46 to 66 percent. American and Eastern Airlines also want to establish discount cross-border fares.

However, the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board has asked the White House to approve its decision to block Air Canada's fare discounts to the U.S. Unless President Carter objects, the decision to block the bargain seat sale begins Friday.

The aeronautics board took the action after American Airlines filed a protest saying Air Canada's lower fares shouldn't be approved until American's discount fare are given the green light by Canada.

Canada then responded, saying it didn't like Eastern and American Airlines' proposals. But Canada has apparently said that if Air Canada's plans are approved, there then wouldn't be a problem with American's and Eastern's proposals.

Canadian and U.S. representatives now plan to meet to sort out this chicken and egg dispute. The meeting is scheduled for Oct.9, four days after Air Canada intended to introduce its discount fares.

Water threatens coal mine

SARPY CREEK, Mont. — Down the bank of one of the damp draws that nourish scant lines of cottonwood trees in arid Big Horn County, a clutch of federal officials stood with representatives of Westmoreland Resources Inc. All eyes were fixed on a bathtub-sized pool of murky water.

The government men, including Walter N. Heine, director of the interior department's office of surface mining in Washington, had flown here to study what may present an enormously costly environmental impasse for the nation's eighth largest coal company, the strip-mining equivalent of the snail darter controversy that has blocked completion of a $120 million Tennessee dam.

Millions of tons of coal and millions of dollars in revenue for the company and for the Crow Indians, who own the mineral under the rolling, brown hills of Westmoreland's Absaroka strip mine, are at stake in a decision on whether to lay bare the rich coal seam below the meager spring — and destroy it.

Coal strip-mining threatens water supply on Montana prairies.

Coulee would dry

The draw, called a coulee in Montana parlance, would be only a dry gulch without the spring and the man-made impoundment that forms the pool. The flow is minimal.

But water is scarce here on the Great Plains of the West. State and federal regulators say the spring is one of scores of water sources that recharge an adjoining, larger aquifer, vital to maintaining wildlife and cattle grazing beyond the mine site itself.

The Federal Surface Mine Act, finally passed in 1977 after 10 years of Congressional debate, sets detailed hydrological standards that are to be enforced by the coal states.

The high-level attention given to the remote seep here, labeled spring No. 276 on a hydrologist's chart, is an acute example of the conflicts between production and conservation that surround enforcement of the strip-mine act.

A study by the Montana department of state lands has cited "serious hydrological and related problems" in Westmoreland's application for a permit to expand stripping from its existing pit across a new section of its 30,800-acre lease from the Crow tribe.

Leo Berry, the Montana land commissioner, said the decision on the permit, based on hydrological standards in the federal law, was his alone to make. He said it would come in a few weeks.

Montana, determined not to become the coal "boiler room of the nation," takes its control of the vast strip-mine reserves in the Powder River Basin seriously. It has imposed a 30 percent severance tax on coal revenue, the highest in the nation.

For Westmoreland Resources, a consortium of four companies with corporate ties to the Westmoreland Coal Co. of Philadelphia, the denial of a permit would be a disaster, according to Joe Presley, the company president in Billings.

Because there are other, similar springs in the company's multi-billion-ton coal reserves, he said the precedent of a denial at spring No. 276 would forestall the stripping of perhaps 60 percent of the three-year-old mine's remaining coal.

There is enough coal in environmentally undisputed areas here to last only five or six more years of a planned 30-year mine life, Presley said. This, he added, was not nearly enough to repay the $28 million cost of a 110-cubic-yard dragline shovel being erected in anticipation of increased production.

Expansion planned

Tonnages here, now at 4.5 million a year, are planned to reach 10.5 million a year in the 1980s, perhaps 2 per cent of total national coal production. The low-sulfur coal from the Absaroka mine is delivered to electric utilities in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois.

For the Crow tribe, whose coal royalties will amount to about $10 million this year, according to Presley, the impact would come quickly.

An interim set of environmental standards became effective five months after President Jimmy Carter signed them in August 1977. Under a more detailed set of permanent regulations that took effect last February, the coal states have until the middle of 1980 to adopt their own enforcement programs or face direct federal enforcement by the office of surface mining.

The coal industry prefers state enforcement, as opposed to environmentalists who supported passage of the federal act.

RICHARD GWYN

Whales, fishermen conflict

SAVAGE, BONAVISTA BAY, — Nfld. The station wagon parked on the gravel outside the shoreline "store" or fishermen's shed has Massachusetts plates and a "No Nukes" bumper-sticker. Standing beside it in the gentle rain, the car's owner, Judy Perkins, tells me about humpback whales.

She's a graduate student from Boston. In a proper scholarly and clinical way, she recounts how she and other students working here have recorded the famous humpback "songs" for the first time in northern waters. She explains how each day the students go out in a small boat to photograph the tails of the two humps, each, in its black and white markings, as distinctive as a set of finger-prints.

Abruptly, her enthusiasm bubbles over. "Do you realize," she says sweeping a hand at Bonavista Bay, "that out there there is a greater concentration of humbacks than anyone has ever seen, except on the banks off Dominica."

Inside the store, Ellison Barfitt, skipper of a long-liner, is telling Memorial University animal psychologist Jon Lien what it means to be a fisherman and to have in your bay the world's largest, northern, concentration of humpback whales.

Expensive tangle

That morning, Barfitt quit fishing for three hours to free a whale caught in another boat's fleet of nets. The whale now is safe, but gear and a load of fish worth perhaps $2,000 are lost. That same day, another boat lost 39 nets, each worth $150.

"You're going to have to do something John," Barfitt tells Lien. "On the CB I heard the boys talking about bringing out rifles. They've had it."

Lien's answer is carefully crafted, though it sounds casual. "Ellison. You know a rifle won't kill a whale. It'll just panic and tear out another fleet of nets."

Barfitt knows this — as Lien knows. Under Lien's guidance, he's become an expert on freeing whales — on his own time. To know why he bothers to do this, you need to know that before he came back to the fishery now that it's on the up and up, Barfitt raised horses.

Barfitt's anger isn't spent. "If you don't find a way for guys like me to make a buck out of this, the next whale I find caught, I'll leave, or kill." (At Tokyo prices, a hump is worth about $50,000. Killing or marketing them, though, is forbidden by the International Whaling Commission.)

Lien grins, and switches the subject. Do the anti-shark "bangers" he's given Barfitt to test out, keep the whales away from the boats? Barfitt says the whales pay the bangers not the least attention.

Now Lien tells me what's going on. "You're watching a tragedy. It's a competition for survival between two endangered species."

Whales always have commanded man's imagination. The mystique of Moby Dick. Their bulk, power and grace; our awe, dread and guilt for having killed so many. The first time I saw one — later our boat accidentaly touched one — I screamed with excitement.

As whales go, humps are by no means the largest. Only about the size of three elephants. But they are the most spectacular. They "sing" to each other. Before they sound, they raise their tails, like huge black-and-white aquatic butterflies. They "breach", either vertically straight out of the water like missiles, or horizontally, hurling the entire incredible bulk clear of the water.

In the world, there are about 1,500 humps. In August, one-third of them were in Bonavista Bay, attracted by an unusual "bait cycle" of abundant capelin inshore but few off-shore.

Cod also feed of capelin. And Newfoundland's in-shore fishermen feed of the cod. They are the second endangered species. A few years ago, they had almost vanished. Then prices went up, and the fish came back. But so, this year, did the whales.

"The problem," says Lien, "is that the two species are identical. Whales and inshore fishermen both must catch enough fish in the summer to survive the winter. The tragedy is that both now are trying to do this at the same time in the same place.

Helping fishermen

With federal fisheries funds, Lien has set out to save both the whales (perhaps 50 have died in Newfoundland waters, in nets or by driving themselves ashore) and the fishermen (no-one has yet counted their losses of gear and of fish catches). He's recuited "whale-savers" like Barfitt and lectures fishermen on how to free whales. He distributes bangers. He's testing a variety of acoustic and visual devices — an iron bell seems to be the most effective — to keep the whales away from the nets, which is one thing, but not the cod, which is quite another.

Lien, though, is alone. Indeed, he isn't even an expert on whales, but on small marine birds, such as petrels. He got into whales last fall, because no one else would. Two whales were trapped in nets in nearby Trinity Bay. The fishermen asked for government help. When none came, they told their story to the newspapers. Lien, and a fellow-professor and diver, Bora Merdsoy, and their students, went out and freed the whales themselves.

"I'd really like to get back to petrels from whales," Lien told me. As a reporter should, I asked why he went on chasing the whales, but, as would anyone who knows Newfoundland, I knew his answer before he gave it. "The real tragedy, if something isn't done," said Lien, "is that Newfoundlanders could have a second seal hunt on their hands."

Weasels are out

The ICBC weasels have made their way out of the woodshed. After working the winter chewing up reams of paper and red tape they have re-written the rules: "The driver at fault will be assessed a $100 accident premium a year for three years for each accident."

But note: "As well, a collision premium will be implemented. Any car owner making a collision claim will be charged $20 a year for three years for each accident." So you can be completely innocent and yet be made to pay an extra $60. They had better wend their way back to the woodshed and whistle. — Clarence Goode, 4690 Cordova Bay Road.

Puzzling response

As regional director (B.C.) of Emergency Planning Canada (EPC), I was puzzled and dismayed to read the letter in Saturday's Times from the three people who were annoyed by our nation-wide radio and TV spot announcements suggesting that, yes a disaster can happen here, and if it does, the people who will be coping with after-effects will communicate with the public by radio. If the power is off, and it frequently is, even in small emergencies, the only way the public can be made ware of what to do or where to go for help will be if they have a transistor radio and batteries that work. The message is that simple.

EPC (formerly Canada EMO) is responsible for helping the public cope with emergencies wherever they occur in Canada. Part of EPCO responsibility is to make people aware of the steps they can take before an emergency occurs. Having a transistor radio that works is one of these steps.

Anyone wishing further informtion on what EPC is and does can contact me at any time by calling 388-3621. — F. D. Cooper, Regional Director (B.C.), Emergency Planning Canada.

Volunteers

It was enlightening to hear on the news today that the Progressive Conservative government intends to re-allocate or dismiss some deputy ministers to eliminate the bureaucratic attitudes which some of them have, and dictate.

The return of capital punishment is a good example of bureaucratic attitudes which do not favor the majority's wishes.

It would also be a renewal of faith to hear of a few future candidates who wish to volunteer their services to all levels of government for expenses only and not for salaries.

The candidates I refer to are those who have already acquired wealth through the democratic process and have been fortunate because of the generosity of the country due to their good management. Being so fortunate, would it not be a wonderful gesture to volunteer good management free to the country in appreciation of their good fortune.

I refer to Trudeau, Bennett and dozens of others who are MPs of provincial and federal governments, or mayors and aldermen of cities throughout Canada.

Their intentions of salaries or just expenses expected could be revealed while they are running as candidates.

Just a day dreamer — but wouldn't it be nice. — R. W. Ball, 3809 Hobbs Road.

Cheers for dogs

I disagree strenuously with Dr. M. L. Brigden's attempts at the Aug. 20 Oak Bay council meeting to force a restrictive leash law on Oak Bay dogs. Dogs are in general better behaved than most children in the municipality and are probably friendlier than the average Oak Bay adult. One of my own children was nipped last year by a leashed dog. However, I saw no reason to mount an attack on the entire dog community. I agree that a known, irritable dog should be closely controlled, but there is no cause to restrain all dogs. With regard to an occasional mess dropped on my lawn, I am quite tolerant if it is done by a dog — I'm told it's good for rose bushes. — M. R. Barr, 3340 Ripon Road.

Canoe people

We Americans deserve blame in the desperate lot of the Boat People. But all of us greedy North Americans share deeper guilt for our Canoe People — the American Indians, one of the most abused races. Broken treaties on land and fishing rights; violations of human and personal rights; and now crowding in on their shrunken ghetto reserves.

Since 1967 the Tahsis Co. Ltd. mill's invasion of reserve land has damaged human health, animals and fish. End this shameful abuse! — R. Clayton, Los Angeles, Calif.

Trouble in paradise

By ROBERT TRUMBULL

HONOLULU — An upsurge in attacks on white servicemen by local youths has alarmed military and civilian authorities in Hawaii and led to a re-examination of social ills, especially those affecting disadvantaged youths, that have long festered behind the serene facade of life in these sunny islands.

Most of the aggressors have been identified as Hawaiian or part-Hawaiian, terms applied exclusively to descendents of the original inhabitants, who belong to a branch of the brown-skinned Polynesian race. This once-privileged community has fallen behind the immigrant races economically, apparently because of difficulty in adjusting to the demands of modern life. A private study released last week, on the eve of Hawaii's 20th anniversary of statehood, attributed scholastic deficiencies among Hawaiians and part-Hawaiians to lingering cultural differences.

Although conflict between servicemen and civilians is an old story in Hawaii, with its Pearl Harbor Naval Base and Schofield Barracks, the violence has reached a previously unequalled intensity.

Among recent instances were these: Two Marines who had hitched a ride with three local youths were found in a field the next day, one fatally shot and the other wounded. Six teenagers were charged with attempted murder in the shooting of two soldiers guarding an ammunition dump. Four soldiers who apprehended a purse-snatcher were mobbed and beaten by residents. Attacks on Navy families at a shopping complex near Pearl Harbor became so frequent that naval authorities put the area off-limits. Tourists have also been harassed and robbed by youthful marauders at out-of-the-way beaches and scenic attractions. At a resort outside Honolulu, a 24-year-old dental student from Finland was the victim of mass rape by village boys.

Dr. Andrew W. Lind, professor emeritus of sociology at the University of Hawaii, attributes the violence at least partly to the historic resentment of injuries suffered at the hands of white-skinned immigrants. Such grievances "go back to 1893 or even further," Dr. Lind said recently, alluding to the overthrow of the native monarchy and to annexation by the United States a few years later. Indeed, they may go back to 1778, when Capt. James Cook, the British navigator, "discovered" the islands; Cook was killed by Hawaiians the following year in a fight caused by differing cultural perceptions of property rights.

Professor Lind, among others, says the frustrations of unemployed teenagers also make for trouble. The educational survey published last week under the auspices of the Bishop Estate, a private foundation, pointed to several reasons for poor reading skills — including the absence of writing in the Hawaiian cultural heritage, and strong family ties that stress personal relationships at the expense of scholastic achievement.

Hawaiians and part-Hawaiians now number less than 10 per cent of the population of 900,000 or so. Of the rest, 27.7 per cent are Caucasians; 26.6 per cent of Japanese stock; and the rest from Filipino, Chinese, Korean and other ethnic antecedents. "Hawaiians readily inter-married the Americans, but never embraced the materialism in the American way of life as other groups did," said Gard Kealoha, the president of the Hawaiian City Club of Honolulu. "Not liking what they saw, they went back to their little homes and lived off the sea and the land."

Hawaiian natives feeling alienated

But as time went on, the taxes on their small plots forced many Hawaiians into urban surroundings, where "the pressures of modern life promoted social breakdown," he said. "I can remember when there was a repugnance among Hawaiians for going on the public dole, but in the last 20 years things have turned around. Preventives, such as education and other programs that would have helped them to become self-sufficient, have been neglected."

Hawaiians and part-Hawaiians have tended to sink to the bottom of the economic scale. In communities such as Waianae in Oahu, where towering waves attract the world's best surfers, abuse of whites has been rife in an atmosphere poisoned by poverty and an unemployment rate over 14 per cent.

Honolulu's Police Chief, Francis Keala, whose jurisdiction covers the entire island of Oahu, said recently, "juveniles arrested in Waianae have told police officers and detectives that they feel there is nothing wrong with ripping off tourists." In nearby Nanakuli, teenagers involved in the rape of the Finnish visitor said that they regarded her as "an outsider" and therefore "fair game." "A remarkable fact," says Dr. Lind, "is that the resentment that grew out of annexation and the revolution of '93 has come into the forefront of attention only in the last 15 or 20 years." That coincides not only with the rising expectations engendered by statehood, but also with what Dr. Lind termed "the emergence of ethnicity" elsewhee in the United States.

Among Hawaiians less inclined to violence, nostalgia for old values has found an outlet in a movement that Kala associated with "Hawaiian nationalism" — a resurgence of interest in the Hawaiian language and traditional religious practices. In November next year, 70,000 Hawaiians and part-Hawaiians will be eligible to vote for nine members of a new state agency, the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, that would deal with their special problems. But Kealoha, for one, discounts any possibility of an Hawaiian separatist movement. "In all my dealings with young Hawaiians there has never been a feeling that they wanted to get out of the United States," he said. "They are trying to use American democratic processes to reaffirm their native rights."

The Chief confounds his critics to the end

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — In death and its ceremonies Mr. Diefenbaker as a spirit has roused such massive appreciation that it confounds rationality and those many who are sure the former prime minister was a hollow man and an inept national leader.

An example of the problem created by the grand, national show of feeling was to be seen (at least for me) in the long dispatches printed by the Toronto Star from its senior political genius, Val Sears, or "Mr. Sneers" as the Chief sometimes referred to him.

In remarkably evocative prose Sears dredged up every possible "downer" on Diefenbaker, including besotted hangers-on, the forgotten second wife buried on the other side of town, the double-standard of a PM who talked poor and yet had a "trust fund" behind him. On the other hand, Sears intertwined all his needling and belittling stuff with vouchsafes for the thousands who came to train-side or coffin-side to bear witness of their affection and respect for the late politician. These were "good" people, "good Canadians." They saw something spirited and wonderful in Diefenbaker which, of course, Sears couldn't because he knew the real Diefenbaker, the twisting, vindictive egomaniac.

As I remarked last week, the historians and political scientists are most unlikely to be kind to the Chief in their works. His methods of argument and his too keen sense of communion with his fellow Canadians are scorned by reasonable men. He doesn't fit the Grit interpretation of our history. Populists or (a more popular word) demagogues never do.

What delights me about the scale of the response since the Chief's death is the difficulties these create for the rational explainers of Canada. This man meant a lot more to more Canadians than they figured. Why? How could it be? It's so irrational and unCanadian.

A few months ago I was in a small scene which prefigured the almost intuitive affection between Dief and so many of the public.

It was in Pugwash, Nova Scotia. I had been asked to share a seminar discussion at an occasion during the gathering of the clans with Jack Pickersgill and Heath MacQuarrie. The subject was the Scottish contribution to, respectively, the Liberal, Conservative and New Democratic parties. The audience was small, mostly middle-aged, seemingly prosperous, good-natured and attentive.

Heath MacQuarrie had been a Tory MP from 1957 to 1979. Pickersgill, as clever a man as I've known, was a Liberal MP from 1953 to 1968, and before that amanuensis to Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent. MacQuarrie had been among the Tory MPs who lost confidence in the Chief in the early '60s. He is a courtly and circumspect speaker.

His presentation to the senimar pleased the audience. He was witty and gracious, entertaining without being controversial or partisan. Pickersgill followed him.

Most of the interpreters of the Diefenbaker downfall (from office) including Peter Newman (in his excellent Renegade In Power) never give Pickersgill the credit I think he deserves as Diefenbaker's nemesis, indeed, not enough credit to the role of Pickersgill, Paul Martin and Lionel Chevrier in the House in the years from 1960 to 1963 in jamming the legislative process and scrutiny, and in blackening the reputation of the prime minister. Pickersgill, much more than Pearson or Martin, was the constant, leading, aggressive spirit in all this, certainly more the bane of Diefenbaker than any other opposition member.

The subject before Pickersgill at Pugwash may have been the influence of the Scots on the Liberal Party of Canada, but he never really got to it. His leading theme was that great "charlatan" of our political history, John Diefenbaker.

It was as though I was back in the House between '60 and '63 with bobbing Jack and his flipping hands and cheeky voice directed on his favorite target. There was no pretence that he was a "historian," as an Ottawa paper now describes him. His stint as a neutral public official (head of the CTC) between 1968 and 1972 was forgotten. He belittled John Diefenbaker up and down and sideways. It was vintage Pickersgill. As usual I savored its entertainment value but I could sense it was wrong for the audience. The warm mood created by MacQuarrie slipped away. For all his wittiness the Honorable Jack had lost his audience.

Later, when the session was over, I found out why, at least from four or five people who spoke to me. They were hurt that Pickersgill made fun of Diefenbaker, "a really fine Canadian," "a sincere politician," "the best friend the old people ever had in Ottawa," "a genuine Canadian."

I meant to tell Diefenbaker of the reaction at Pugwash, partly because it would please him, partly because he would cherish the animus of Jack Pickersgill, confirming as it did how "they" were always out to malign him. I didn't get to him with it, but clearly he knew what was thought of him out beyond the smart fellows like Sears and Pickersgill when he planned his funeral train.

Jimmy up the river

By ANTHONY HOLDEN

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — "It has nothing this-worldly about it, nothing to hang a threat or worry upon," wrote Mark Twain of the Mississippi River. "It is always tranquil and reposeful as dreamland."

It wasn't last week. With what wild surmise would Huckleberry Finn have surveyed the scene as the president of the United States dropped by to solicit his vote? The Jimmy Carter re-election bandwagon, he might well have thought, keeps on rolling along.

It was supposed to be a vacation, if any normal human being spends his summer holidays making six speeches a day, kissing babies, shaking thousands of hands, holding public meetings and radio phone-ins, then it was a vacation. Jimmy Carter chose to spend his week off this summer sailing through three states holding crucial primaries next year.

A few months ago, some 140 normal human beings did book themselves a pleasant summer vacation — sailing the 700 majestic miles of the Mississippi from St. Louis aboard an ancient sternwheel paddle-boat, The Delta Queen. Among them were the John Bakers and the John Works of St. Paul, two friendly couples sharing a retirement celebration.

Two weeks ago, having shelled out $980 per person on their 'second honeymoons', the Bakers and the Works learned that they had been pitched out of their grade A cabins. Fifteen other couples were chucked off the boat altogether. They were making way for the president, his wife and daughter, a 'skeleton' White House staff of 30, and a rotating daily pool of eight Washington journalists.

Those left aboard the Queen enjoyed a somewhat disrupted week away from it all. The boat made many an unscheduled stop along the way so that the man in cabin 339 could seize the newly-installed public address system and cry to the crowd on the river bank: "Don't you think we live in a great country? Together , we can make it even greater. Will you help me? Thank you. I love you."

From a distance the Delta Queen looked a truly romantic vision: the last of the old Mississippi paddle-steamers, stars and stripes flying, the steam organ belting out 'Old Man River', 'Dixie', and other such appropriate golden oldies, the giant rear wheel churning through the placid sheen of the mile-wide river.

When it approached the river bank, however, the atmosphere changed. The caliope, still endearingly out of tune, began to play 'God Bless America,' 'The Stars and Stripes,' even 'Hail to the Chief'. On the white wood-frame roof stood those sharp-suited men in dark glasses, equipped with walkie-talkies, giant binoculars and bulging hips. Large bullet-proof cars gathered on the quay.

Bullying coastguard patrol boats kept the accompanying flotilla at bay. "Three hundred yards minimum distance," a voice bellowed. "Mister, will you move your boat away, or shall we?"

Fierce sunlight alternated with thunderous rain as the slight, familiar figure edged along the walkway to the microphone. "Hello, Keokuk, Iowa. Thank you for coming to greet us today. We've got the greatest country in the world, and if you help me . . ."

Carter was at it night and day. Advance launches checked the size of waiting crowds to see if they were worth an unscheduled stop. Most nights the publicity people would get him out of bed to shout a passing greeting to a gaggle of the curious grass-roots. "This is a non-partisan trip," he insisted. "People have come out to see the president, not Jimmy Carter."

It was tempting to agree, if only because it was hard to believe that this grinning, rain-soaked figure in T-shirt, blue jeans and sneakers was the president of the United States. "Hello, Fort Madison, I love ya" shrilled his disembodied, singsong voice through the gathering darkness. Could this be the leader of the free world?

At 54, Carter was one of the youngest passengers aboard. Mississippi riverboat rides, for some reason, are the preserve of senior citizens, which means that the entertainment aboard the Delta Queen consists of checkers, bingo, whist drives and singsongs. The president, by all accounts, proved a poor contestant.

Daughter Amy, however, joined in with a will, organizing the few other children on board, and kicking up a fuss when the purser refused to call back for her the one library copy of Tom Sawyer.

The First Lady, Rosalynn Carter, seemed even less on holiday than the president, seizing the microphone from him when he ran out of platitudes, and delaying the boat for two hours in Burlington, Iowa, so she could have her hair done.

Her husband, to beguile the time, went fishing again — and returned, as he did every day, empty-handed. "I'm a better president than I am a fisherman," he declared to the citizens of Burlington, a straw-poll of whom appeared to think this a matter for debate.

Parents' turn to try drawing school line

Where bureaucrats have failed, parents living in the Highlands are being given a chance to do the job.

The task is to re-draw a boundary between the Sooke and Greater Victoria school districts.

It was decided a new line was necessary because some Sooke School District children were attending Greater Victoria schools because they were closer to the childrens' homes or it was easier for parents on their way to work to drop their children off at those schools.

After discussing the situation with the school districts, ministry of education officials established a new boundary. This provoked quick protests by Sooke officials and some Highlands parents who wanted to continue sending their children to Sooke schools but suddenly found themselves in the Greater Victoria district.

Officials decided the parents knew best where the line should be, and in this way it is hoped students will find themselves living in the same school district that contains their school.

Parents in the Greater Victoria district who want their children to remain enrolled at Sooke's Millstream Elementary will be told the children can stay, and that the Sooke district will provide transportation.

After parents have been consulted, the two districts will recommend a new boundary to the ministry.

Financing solution sought

The Capital Regional District will ask member municipalities and electoral areas whether they want to finance an economic development commission on a regional basis.

The regional planning and health services committee met Tuesday with Greater Victoria Economic Development Commission representatives to peruse a proposed bylaw.

The current commission operates on a $63,000 budget jointly financed by the four core municipalities and the provincial government.

Sooke has its own commission.

Executive director Dennis Young said under letters patent the board can levy up to half a mill for economic development if requested. If all areas participated this would bring in $500,000 a year. He doubted that much would be needed.

The proposal to be put before councils would see a new commission of 11 members, four appointed at large and the remainder representing various areas.

Ferry talks continue

Negotiators for ferry workers and the B.C. Ferry Corp. are back at the bargaining table today, and that's good news for anyone planning to travel between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Ferry spokesmen have said there will be no disruption of service unless negotiations break down. With the busy Labor Day weekend coming up, travellers counting on ferries are hoping that either a settlement is reached or talks continue.

Negotiators met for most of the day Tuesday, but were cautious and secretive about what occurred.

Mediator Fred Geddes is still involved in negotiations and a legal strike or lockout cannot occur until he withdraws and reports to Labor Minister Allan Williams.

The 2,600-member B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union has threatened to launch rotating strike action to back its contract demands in negotiations with the ferry corporation.

A 72-hour strike notice given by the union last week allows the union to walk out, if the mediator has reported out of the dispute, anytime during the 90 days starting last Friday.

The provincial government does have legislation, however, providing for a cooling-off period, a back-to-work order and binding arbitration of the final settlement.

Wages, sick leave and use of casual employees are among major issues being discussed. The last contract expired July 31.

Ferries between the mainland and Vancouver Island have been congested with holiday traffic. Almost all of the 26 ferries in the fleet are working at close to capacity.

Bodies of five found in crash

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — The bodies of five British Columbia residents were recovered Tuesday from the site of a plane crash in the Silver Lake area about 32 kilometres east of here.

Deputy Ron Peterson, Whatcom county search and rescue co-ordinator, said it may be two days before the victims are identified because of problems contacting next of kin.

The single-engine Piper aircraft crashed and burned Monday night, killing all aboard.

Federal Aviation Administration investigators were at the scene Tuesday to identify the aircraft.

About 30 searchers found the wreckage at the 3,000-foot level of Black Mountain.

"I heard the crash," said Russ Lambert, manager of Silver Lake Park. "One of my park aides heard a plane — at least what he thought was a plane. It was in pea soup fog.

"This morning (Tuesday) we could see the smoke. It was so bad last night they just to quit the search."

The aviation administration flight service station at Bellingham Airport said it had no knowledge of the plane's flight plan.

Indians still defy fish ban

LILLOOET (CP) — The Fountain Indian band, embroiled in a fish dispute with the federal government, will continue to defy a federal closure order while negotiations continue with the government, band spokesman Rudolf Adolph said.

He said Indians are not catching enough salmon during the four-day period allowed by federal fisheries regulations and "we have to have salmon to eat.

"The federal government has to realize we have tried their way and it does not work," he said.

Federal fisheries official Fred Frasier disagreed but said food fishing levels will discussed when his department meets with band members.

"They have caught about 10,000 fish in the last two months and there are about 550 people in the band, so they are saying that 10,000 fish for that many people isn't enough. We'll talk to them about that when we meet."

Until Indians and federal officials meet, fisheries officials will continue to enforce closure regulations, he said. Indians are allowed to fish in the Fraser River Monday through Thursday.

Fountain Head band chief Victor Adolph rejected an offer for a Tuesday meeting at Cache Creek.

Bennett, Phillips off to Asia

Premier Bennett and Economic Development Minister Don Phillips are going to Japan and Korea in the fall to meet government leaders and industrialists.

In Tokyo they will talk to representatives from Japan's iron, steel, and nonferrous metals industry and with pulp and paper officials.

With the party will be David Brown and Tony Tozer from the premier's office, deputy minister of economic development A.L. Peel, assistant deputy minister Jack McKeown, and consultant Henry Wakabayashi.

They leave on Sept. 28 and return Oct. 12.

Alberta's gas reserves estimates boosted by 65%

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta energy resources conservation board has increased its estimate of Alberta's remaining natural gas reserves.

The revised estimate was released as part of a major report on Alberta's reserves of crude oil, gas, natural gas liquids and sulphur.

The report said additions to gas reserves during 1978 were almost twice as large as the long-term average annual growth rate.

"They are some 65 per cent greater than the board had originally reported," it said.

It attributed the difference to underestimates of the reserves in earlier figures, an effect of the large number of reserve adjustments during the year. The board said reserve adjustments were made to 4,000 of some 9,000 pools assessed and tabulated.

The revised estimate said that during 1978 new discoveries and adjustments to known reserves added 5.796 trillion cubic feet to Alberta's total reserves. The report estimated the province's remaining established reserves at the end of 1978 at 60.104 trillion cubic feet, up from 59.3 trillion cubic feet in ERCB reports made earlier this year.

The board's current estimate for Alberta's initial (before production) established reserves is 86.3 trillion cubic feet. The reserve additions made during 1978 resulted in a net increase, after production, of 4.437 trillion cubic feet from the end of 1977.

The ERCB currently estimates the province's ultimate potential for gas at 130-140 trillion cubic feet, up significantly from the 1977 estimate of 110 trillion cubic feet.

In conventional oil reserves, the ERCB said increases were more than offset by production during 1978. Discoveries and adjustments added 150 million barrels to the province's known resource base, but 370 million barrels of oil were produced.

The report said Alberta's remaining established conventional oil reserves were down by 220 million barrels to five billion barrels at the end of last year. The province's ultimate potential remains unchanged at 16 billion barrels.

The report also estimated the remaining established propane condensate or pentanes plus reserves at 771.5 million barrels; for butane 458.4 million barrels; for propane gas 684.2 million barrels and for ethane 656 million barrels. Sulphur reserves were estimated at 303.6 million tonnes, of which 134.6 million tonnes will be recovered from gas plant operations and the balance from oil sands plants.

Harry hit on Sunday opening

VANCOUVER (CP) — Furniture merchant Bernie Cobin calls himself Harry Hammer, but it was city council that did the hammering Tuesday. And Harry wasn't happy.

He vowed to fight council's decision to suspend his business licence for one week beginning Oct. 1 as punishment for the "gross misconduct" of opening his stores on Sundays.

"City council is playing a dirty political trick," said Cobin. "And when we take them to court and beat the pants off them, they'll pay the costs."

Despite the council decision, Cobin vowed he wouldn't close the doors of his two furniture stores even for one day.

Council used the city's power to license businesses rather than proceed under the provincial Lord's Day Act which has proved to be difficult to enforce.

Scott Stewart, Cobin's lawyer, said council may have stepped beyond its jurisdiction because the city charter allows council to regulate business hours Monday through Saturday. The Lord's Day Act, he said, requires municipalities to obtain permission from the provincial attorney-general before laying charges.

Endako man in contempt

VANCOUVER (CP) — One union member has been found guilty of contempt of court in connection with a bitter labor dispute at Placer Development Ltd.'s Endako molybdenum mine at Fraser Lake in central British Columbia.

Mr. Justice Victor Dryer said the question of sentence would be spoken to at a date to be fixed by the B.C. Supreme Court registry in the case of Ken Wiley, of Local 17 of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers.

Placer claimed that the union local, Wiley, Steven Wiley and Peter Cameron, a national officer of CAIMAW, breached a supreme court injunction issued March 30.

Dryer found Wiley guilty of intimidating or threatening, but said he was not convinced Steven Wiley had been served with or had actual notice of the court order. He found the union local and Cameron not guilty.

Court rules accident not related to suicide

VANCOUVER (CP) — The widow of a man who shot himself after being injured in a traffic accident failed in British Columbia Supreme Court to prove the accident caused the man's death.

Mr. Justice J. G. Gould dismissed an action brought by Phugamma Swami, widow of Richard Swami, who shot himself at his home on Feb. 4, 1977, 14 months after he was hit by a car in Vancouver.

Shing Hoi Lo, the driver of the car, admitted negligence and Swami's suit against him for damages has been settled.

Mrs. Swami sued on behalf of herself and members of the family under the Family Compensation Act, claiming that the accident could have caused death by a foreseeable series of events.

The accident occurred Dec. 10, 1975, and Swami, a skilled architectural draftsman, suffered unrelenting pain from a crushed fracture of the right hip joint until his death, court was told.

Gould said that Swami tried to work after the accident but his pain and disability made it impossible.

He said Swami had discussed committing suicide with a member of his family and again with a close friend a few months later.

However, Gould ruled that Mrs. Swami could not recover under the Family Compensation Act because her husband's death was unforeseeable.

Nude protest march?

VANCOUVER (CP) — For now, nude sunbathers are sticking to petitions and vocal oppostion.

But the spectre of bare bodies, bronzed all over by the West Coast sunshine, marching to the park board looms in the future as devotees of Wreck Beach protest a $12 million plan that would turn the rugged cliffs above the beach into a rolling hillside.

Some Wreck Beach regulars say the landscaping would destroy the area's natural environment and the privacy it provides.

But the University of British Columbia, perched on the cliffs above the beach, and the company that prepared the plan say the alterations are necessary to arrest erosion that threatens several university buildings.

University vice-president Chuck Connaghan said Tuesday the plan is a starting point for public debate on what can be done about the erosion problem.

"No decisions have been made on this either way," he said. "It's still a proposal. We're in a very flexible mode."

John Madill, chairman of the recently-formed Wreck Beach Area Advisory committee, said a petition calling for a public meeting on the issue was signed by 1,663 people in two days.

"If they (the nudists) don't see some recognition of their needs, then there could be action which we won't be able to control."

The plan, prepared by Swan Wooster Engineering, was unveiled at a news conference Tuesday.

It proposes perpendicular log reinforcements and drain pipes along either end of the approximately five-kilometre stretch of cliff. The cliffs along the middle section would be contoured, then planted with grass and shrubs.

Connaghan said erosion is threatening university buildings. The Museum of Man would be safe for about 100 years at the present erosion rate, he said, but Cecil Green House, built in 1912 and now used as a reception centre, could fall in less than 10 years.

It is only 33 metres from the cliff edge now and 15 metres from the zone of instability. About 1.2 acres in the park that surrounds it was lost in the last three years, he said.

But overall suntanners say the scheme is partly an attempt to get rid of sunbathers whose nudity has been tolerated by authorities, making the area one of Vancouver's most popular beaches.

B.C. Briefs

1,000 off job at CanCel mill

CASTLEGAR (CP) — About 1,000 workers were off the job Tuesday at the Canadian Cellulose Ltd. mill in this southeastern B.C. community.

Members of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada set up picket lines after talks with Canadian Cellulose over the use of relief lead hands broke down Monday.

Union workers were voting on an industry-wide pact accepted by the province's two other major forestry unions earlier this summer, but a union spokesman said voting would be delayed pending resolution of the current dispute.

$25,000 tax evasion fine

QUESNEL (CP) — Two Quesnel land developers were fined $25,000 for income tax evasion when they appeared in provincial court here Tuesday. Samuel Otto and Lamont Leslie Otto, owners of Rite Way Holdings Ltd. were convicted for failing to make income statements for the years 1974 to 1976. Samuel Otto was fined $15,000, with the alternative of a year in jail, for not declaring about $79,000 while Lamont Otto was fined $10,000, or eight months in jail, for failing to declare about $53,000.

Police impersonator guilty

VANCOUVER (CP) — A youth found guilty of impersonating a police officer was granted a one-year conditional discharge Tuesday in provincial court.

David James Martin, 18, of Vancouver was found guilty of driving his black car March 29 in a manner which made motorists believe he was a policeman.

Uranium studies funded

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twenty-eight grants totalling about $225,000 have been made to groups planning to submit briefs to the royal commission of inquiry into uranium mining.

Purpose of the grants, he said, is to assist various groups in the preparation of briefs to the commission.

Water shortage serious

ARMSTRONG (CP) — The long, hot, dry summer is putting the heat on local authorites to find an alternative source of water.

The Big Swamp reservoir dried up July 22 and forced authorities to rely on South Silver Star hole for water much earlier than anticipated. South Silver Star is down 75 centimetres this year from the normal seasonal level.

St. Paul's overhaul

Northern Construction Co. Ltd. of Vancouver has been awarded a $10.25 million contract for the initial phase of the redevelopment of St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver. Construction of a new building south of the existing hospital will begin immediately.

Moving out of pen won't solve riot problem: expert

By PETER KINSEY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Closing the British Columbia penitentiary will not solve the problems that led to its long history of riots and hostage-takings, says Dr. Guy Richmond, who has spent most of his life working in prisons.

He says there is potential for trouble after the general population is moved from the century-old B.C. pen in New Westminster to the new Kent Institution at Agassiz, 100 kilometres east of Vancouver.

"The move is resented by many prisoners, and the staff will have to make a special effort or there will be real trouble," he said in an interview.

Both institutions are maximum-security operations.

Richmond said prisoners who move to Kent — some moved on Aug. 1 — are concerned that they will receive fewer visits because visitors will have to travel farther. He added that the major problem will be work programs.

Most prisoners in the B.C. pen have lost their incentive to work — largely because the pen has not had a good work program for years — so if no effort is made at Kent "to keep the prisoners' interests and emotional needs filled, there will be trouble."

The B.C. penitentiary has had more than its share of violence over the years and officials are aware of some of the causes.

There are as many reasons for riots and hostage-takings as there are individuals who initiate them, officials say, but some general conclusions can be drawn.

Such incidents explode because prisoners feel they are not getting something they deserve, or as short-cuts to normal channels of getting things done. Many are aggravated by overcrowding and staff attitudes, and are seldom committed as a means of escaping custody.

Some critics of the old pen blamed its problems on its age.

"There is some evidence that physical surroundings do contribute to inappropriate conduct in an institution," said Dr. Alfred Keltner, a clinical psychologist.

Richmond agreed, saying that whenever you get a smaller population "there is much less heat."

Jack Stewart, spokesman for the Canadian Penitentiary Service discussing reasons for riots and hostage-takings in prisons, said:

"Some are personal; others are trying for general prison reform; some are frivolous; others are not.

"We have never established a special kind of pattern, except that where prisoners have perceived an incident as being successful, others will follow."

Stewart feels that some of the hostage-takings at the B.C. pen during the last few years were staged by prisoners as media events.

"Prisoners were more concerned with their public image . They were very aware how to present themselves" in news releases and during news conferences.

Keltner said that if going through the official bureaucracy, or the informal structure among prisoners does not give the individual what he wants, "then the person either succumbs or reacts, and reacts violently."

Stewart agreed that riots and hostage-takings are used to achieve a goal but suggested that too often prisoners use them as a short-cut, rather than going through official channels.

Keltner also said that tighter discipline in a prison creates problems, rather than better control.

"Repression and a firm hand inside create more violence. If we attempt to return to the inmate his self-worth and status, then we may get back a human being."

To stop riots and hostage-takings, said Stewart, "there is a quick and easy solution: keep each individual locked up 24 hours a day."

But this obviously is not the answer, he added.

"I am sure we will be heavily criticized when people see Kent. It does not look like the B.C. pen.

"We will probably be criticized for going too far the other way to ensure that prisoners as human beings get comforts."

There now is an improved atmosphere in the B.C. pen, say some who are involved with the prison.

"There has been a marked lessening of hostility between inmates and staff," said Richmond. "The mutual reaction is less hostile."

The head of the new disciplinary board, set up to replace the warden's court for disciplining prisoners, agreed that tensions have been reduced.

"There have been fewer cases (for discipline) in the last two or three months than when we started," said Clive Rippon, a Victoria lawyer.

"That may be attributable to shipping out some of the heavies, although I gather there are new heavies coming in.

"I think one thing we have been able to do is take the heat off the warden so he no longer is the guy who dishes out punishment. He is the enemy — all staff are — to prisoners, but we have relieved him of dishing out punishment."

The disciplinary board was set up in January, 1978.

Police accept pay parity

PORT MOODY (CP) — Police here have voted 67 per cent in favor of a new contract which ensures them continued wage parity with Vancouver policemen.

The new contract gives the 20 policemen a seven-per-cent increase retroactive to Jan. 1 and a three-per-cent increase after July 1, Wayne Smith, president of the Port Moody Policemen's Union, said Tuesday.

A senior constable made about $22,000 a year under the previous contract.

Computer age for at-home TV

OTTAWA (CP) — The communications department and Bell Canada announced a $10-million trial project Tuesday which will allow consumers to call up computer information on their television screens.

The federal government will contribute $2.5 million towards an extensive field trial of technology developed by the communications department. The system, Telidon, is an adaption of a system known internationally as videotex.

"It provides a tremendous boost to our efforts to show the world that Canadian videotex technology is the best available anywhere," Communications Minister David MacDonald said.

By early 1981, 1,000 Telidon terminals attached to television sets will be in homes and businesses mainly in Toronto. Bell begins installing the terminals in September next year and the field trial will run throughout most of 1981.

"We have been genuinely impressed by the government's Telidon technology since its introduction," James Thackray, president of Bell Canada, said.

With a keypad the size of a pocket calculator, users will be able to call up 100,000 pages of visual information including news, weather and sports headlines, updated travel schedules, stock market quotations, consumer bulletins, entertainment guides and classified ads.

Users may also be able to reserve airline tickets, order merchandise and leave messages for others.

The government will purchase and loan to Bell 675 Telidon terminals to be placed at homes and businesses. Bell will supply another 325. Plans also call for 28 special terminals to be used by persons supplying information to the computer data bank.

The terminals will be built by Norpak Ltd. of Pakenham, Ont., and other Canadian companies, possibly including Northern Telecom Ltd.

Thackray said several potential information providers have expressed interest in the project. Users and suppliers will be monitored during the experiment to asses human factors, technological aspects and the relative popularity of different information offerings.

Ottawa slaps ban on 1.5-litre bottles

OTTAWA (CP) — Effective immediately, the federal government has banned the use and advertising of all 1.5-litre soft drink bottles.

Consumer Affairs Minister Allan Lawrence announced Tuesday in a statement he is forbidding the use of both narrow-necked, torpedo-shaped bottles and wide-necked 1.5-litre bottles, including those equipped with plastic impact rings.

This absolute ban is a considerable tightening of the consumer protection measures announced by the minister three weeks ago.

Following a spate of widely-reported bottle explosions which caused several serious injuries, Lawrence declared that any 1.5-litre bottle which could not pass a prescribed tip-test without breaking and projecting flying glass could not be legally sold or imported into Canada.

Neither the torpedo-shaped bottles which have caused most of the accidents nor the somewhat safer wide-necked bottles, such as those used by Coca Cola, passed the government test.

The ban, under the Hazardous Products Act, will be lifted only when soft drink bottlers can demonstrate they have a 1.5-litre bottle which will not project flying glass when it breaks.

"Because there is no way for consumers to identify hazardous bottles and because it would be impossible for consumer and corporate affairs to test the millions of bottles involved, I regret that I have no choice but to introduce a ban on all 1.5-litre carbonated soft drink glass bottles on the market," Lawrence said.

"While bottles equipped with impact rings may pass the tip-test, they are not acceptable because they do not eliminate the possibility of injury from flying glass."

The government is preparing safety regulations for other soft drink bottle sizes, which will be brought in gradually, Lawrence said.

Lambert fiscal plan being brought in: PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark announced Tuesday the government will implement the Lambert Commission's recommendations for improving financial management and accountability in the public service.

Perrin Beatty, minister of state for the treasury board, has been given special responsibility for developing a timetable for implementing the recommendations, Clark said in a press release.

Comptroller General Harry Rogers is developing accounting and reporting procedures as recommended by the Lambert Commission, Clark said.

Walter Baker, government House leader, has been given responsibility for the D'Avignon report examining legislative rules for hiring public servants on the basis of merit rather than political patronage or other criteria.

ROOFLESS SHOWER in a Woodstock, Ont., house is being repaired by construction worker Lyle Capling. The house had its roof torn off by a tornado that lambasted the community earlier this month.

Only 7 wiretap bids fail

CALGARY (CP) — There were 1,311 applications for wiretaps by Canadian police forces in 1977 and judges turned down only seven, judges were told Tuesday at the annual conference of the Canadian Bar Association.

The taps were carried out by means of 2,500 devices attached to telephones and 320 to 330 listening devices planted in rooms, Judge P. J. LeSage of Ontario County and District Court told colleagues in a panel discussion.

LeSage said he did not wish his speech to be interpreted as a criticism of police for asking for wiretaps.

He said his view is that wiretap legislation was designed to protect privacy and not to make listening devices an investigative tool for police.

LeSage said this meant anyone requesting permission to conduct a wiretap would have to satisfy a judge that an offence had been committed.

Tory patronage nod raked by Broadbent

By RON CLINGEN
FP News Service

OTTAWA — New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent Tuesday condemned Prime Minister Clark's new government for "extending" rather than "fighting patronage."

Reacting to statements by the prime minister and Supply and Services Minister Roch LaSalle, Broadbent described patronage as a costly and "corrupt" system which "undermines the principle of public tendering."

Clark said Monday in Jasper, where his cabinet is meeting, that Conservative party supporters will have an edge over Liberals when contracts are awarded to perform work for the government.

The PM's statement came as he backed earlier comments from LaSalle to the effect that patronage was a way of life in Quebec and the Conservatives would not change the rules.

"Patronage is corrupting in a democracy because it causes citizens to believe that all politicians only use power to reward their friends," Broadbent contended.

"A decent government would be fighting patronage, not extending it," he insisted.

Broadbent said he would not quarrel with a prime minister injecting senior policy advisers from his own party into each cabinet minister's office to help implement policy.

"That's what government is all about," he said. "But directing contracts to political friends is an entirely different matter."

The NDP leader said political patronage under the former Liberal government had been particularly rampant under the supply and services department, which is now headed by LaSalle.

Broadbent accused the Tories of "reversing themselves" since taking power.

"Instead of making a serious effort to fight patronage, Mr. Clark, following Mr. LaSalle's lead, is moving in the opposite direction," he said.

He suggested the Conservatives could have made a good start by abolishing the position of chairman of Air Canada.

The post was handed to former Liberal cabinet minister Bryce Mackasey after he quit the Quebec National Assembly and failed in a byelection bid to return to the House of Commons.

"That position was set up as a patronage job. It is not required by Air Canada," Broadbent said.

Travel perils cited

TORONTO (CP) — Doctors are ignorant of tropical diseases Canadians can pick up while travelling, say two specialists in tropical diseases trying to raise $500,000.

Dr. Ernest Bowmer, president of the Canadian Society for Tropical Medicine and International Health, and vice-president Dr. Philip Stuart say about 15,000 of the 70,000 Canadians who travel annually are affected by some kind of disease.

Vietnamese refugees are no more a health threat than a Canadian who has been to a tropical country for three or four weeks, Stuart said.

About $300,000 would be needed train 30 doctors specifically in tropical diseases. The other $200,000 would be split between research and public information.

The money would be channelled to the Michael M. Lenczer Memorial Fund. Dr. Lenczer founded the University Clinic for Tropical and Parasitic Diseases at Toronto General Hospital in 1966.

Travellers planning trips to tropical and sub-tropical countries should read the Health Guide for Travellers to Warm Climates, Bowmer said.

The rub in liberties fight

CALGARY (CP) — The proliferation of municipal bylaws governing body-rub parlors and sex shops raises some fundamental questions about civil liberties, a gathering of lawyers was told Tuesday.

Sheldon Chumir told the Canadian Bar Association that civil liberties are threatened by the increasing involvement of municipalities and provinces in public morality.

Recent rulings by the Supreme Court of Canada had broadened municipal and provincial control in this area and reflected a "fundamental shift in the division of powers between the federal and provincial governments."

Chumir said Canadians can expect to see more regulations on moral issues at the local and provincial level — a move that would have serious implications.

Civil liberties are more susceptible to abuse at the local level than the national level because of pressure from various small, but influential groups, said Brand Inlow, solicitor for the City of Calgary.

Chumir, a Calgary lawyer and secretary of the association's civil liberties section, told a seminar that many municipalities have passed bylaws aimed at controlling body-rub parlors "and perhaps, one might suspect, with the intent of making it so difficult to carry on business that the activities will cease."

"... curtailment of these activities reduces the scope of freedom which individuals enjoy to indulge in and be exposed to a variety of experiences, even though the majority of society may find such to be objectionable on moral grounds."

Chumir cited two recent rulings by the Supreme Court of Canada that reflect the shift in power.

A 1978 ruling allowing the Nova Scotia board of censors to prohibit the showing of the film Last Tango in Paris challenged the federal government's traditional exclusive right under criminal law to enact legislation dealing with public morality.

He suggested this might pave the way for further moves by provinces (and subsequently municipalities) into censorship of books and magazines and control over other moral issues such as prostitution.

"This is bad news from a civil-liberties point of view."

But he added there is reason for optimism since the court's decision was narrow, 6-5, and a slight change in the thinking of the court might produce a new decision.

He also cited another 1978 decision upholding the right of the City of Montreal to prohibit all demonstrations in the city for 30 days. The case arose after a series of disruptive separatist demonstrations in 1969.

Terrance Bland, assistant director of legal services for the City of Vancouver, said municipalities will face increasing pressure as they deal with moral issues.

"We're just beginning to feel our muscles in this area."

Patient data on file

TORONTO (CP) — Medical and personal information on 35,000 psychiatric patients identified by name are stored in Statistics Canada files but the names have not been used since 1977, a department official says.

Rodney Riley, program manager in the department's institutional care section, said in an interview that forms containing identities which are still on file are under tight security in the top floor of an office building in Ottawa.

But Mary Eberts, the Canadian Civil Liberties Association's special lawyer to the Ontario royal commission on the confidentiality of health records, said she was surprised to hear that Statistics Canada forms prior to 1977 asked for patients' names.

"I'm speechless," she said. "It's amazing."

Told of Riley's comments regarding tight security, she said: "It's not completely unknown for one department of the federal government to pass information along to another department without specific clearance to do so — the other department being the RCMP."

Tariff reductions urged in antiques, hobby prducts

OTTAWA (CP) — The tariff board, a federal advisory commission which recommends changes in import duties, called Tuesday for a reduction of tariffs on several antiques and hobby products.

Vintage automobiles, antique radio equipment, model kits and scuba diving equipment would be permitted duty-free entry if the board's recommendations are accepted.

Finance Minister John Crosbie said in a news release he is seeking comment on the report.

The board, a seven-member independent advisory body, was asked two years ago by former finance minister Jean Chretien to examine tariff regulations on antiques and hobby products, following complaints from collectors that high rates of duty impose an unnecessary tax burden on their activities.

Pamela McDougall, head of the board, said more than 800 submissions were received during the investigation, most calling for a relaxation of existing regulations.

The major tariff changes recommended by the board are:

— Autmobiles and other vehicles more than 25 years old, and their original parts, would be allowed in free of duty and exempted from sales and excise taxes.

Under current regulations, vehicles 15 to 50 years old are subject to a 15-percent rate of duty and vehicles produced in the last 15 years are prohibited from entering (except those belonging to U.S. residents moving into Canada).

— Radios and receiving sets more than 30 years old would be permitted duty-free entry. The current rate of duty is 17.5 per cent.

— Models and kits for their construction would be allowed free entry. Current rates on these goods vary from 15 to 20 per cent.

— Amateur radio transmitters, receivers and transceivers would be allowed free entry. Most of these products now are taxed 15 per cent.

— Scuba diving equipment, which now enters the country at a 17.5-per-cent tariff, would be allowed in free.

— Certain types of parachuting safety equipment, mountaineering equipment, telescopes and timing devices for the game of chess would be duty-free.

The board turned down a number of requests from antique enthusiasts.

Many hoped the government's definition of an antique would be tightened. Under existing legislation, most articles more than 50 years of age are defined as antiques, which makes them eligible for duty-free entry into Canada.

Collectors felt the limit should be raised to 100 years to guarantee that high-quality antiques would be imported. Prior to 1977, the limit was 100 years, but the government changed it two years ago in an attempt to help small collectors.

In spite of complaints that the market now is being flooded, the tariff board was convinced the 50-year limit should remain.

Antique collectors specializing in glass, limited edition plates, bottles and dolls, requested that import restrictions on these articles be relaxed. The board rejected this suggestion.

North forest fire probe pledged by Ottawa's Epp

YELLOWKNIFE (CP) — An inquiry will be held soon to investigate the handling of forest fires this year in some northern areas, Jake Epp, Indian affairs and northern development minister, has promised.

Jim Schaefer, president of the Fort Smith Hunters and Trappers Association, said Tuesday he had a satisfactory meeting with Epp Monday after they flew over some fire sites.

Schaefer said Epp told him an inquiry, asked for by the association, will be held in six weeks. However, Epp is still trying to decide who will head the inquiry.

"It was a pretty good meeting considering the fact he didn't give us any money to provide input into the inquiry," Schaefer said in a telephone interview from Fort Smith.

"We wanted money to conduct a long-range study of the effects of the fire on the people in the area. We'll not see trees growing here in our life-time, and the caribou won't return for at least 30 years . . . ."

The Fort Smith region was the hardest hit by fires this year. The department's Yellowknife office said Tuesday some 351 forest fires have consumed 3.1 million acres of trees and brush in the Northwest Terrotires so far this year. Almost half of the fires, 163, burned in the Fort Smith area.

Epp, however, rejected an association demand to fire Peter Ferguson, his forest-fire liaison officer. Schaefer said the appointment of Ferguson was a waste of money.

Epp resumed his first official tour of the N.W.T. Tuesday with visits to Hay River, Fort Simpson and Norman Wells. Today, he was to visit Inuvik and Tuktoyaktuk where he was to inspect Dome Petroleum's off-shore drilling activity in the Beaufort Sea.

Epp was to return to this territorial capital Thursday for two days of meetings before returning to Ottawa.

Epp delayed his northern tour after the opening of the Dempster Highway to attend John Diefenbaker's funeral.

Meanwhile, it appears the worst of the forest-fire season is over.

"The fire weather indices in all districts were low," said Ray Desroches, northern affairs fire co-ordinator. "Last week the weather was cooler and there was rain in varying amounts throughout the region."

Fire union apologizes

TORONTO (CP) — Firefighters in the Nakina, Ont., area have asked their union leader to apologize for suggesting that seven young people who died in a forest fire last week were being used as low-paid laborers.

Sean O'Flynn, president of the Ontario Public Service Employees Union, had asked whether the fire could have resulted from the government's use of low-paid student labor on a job requiring experienced professionals.

In a telegram to O'Flynn, the executive and members of Local 704, Ontario Public Service Employees Union, representing 77 employees of the ministry of natural resources at Geraldton, Ont., said his statement was irresponsible.

"We feel such questions and statements at this time are inappropriate, only adding further grief and hardships to the families of the deceased, involved ministry personnel and the staff undertaking the ensuing investigation," the telegram said.

FINAL ADJUSTMENTS to solar cell collectors for radio station are made by MIT engineer Burt Nichols

It's sun-powered radio!

BRYAN, Ohio (AP) — Luke Thaman is making radio waves while the sun shines today as his station becomes the first commercial U.S. station to send out a solar-powered signal.

"I'm going to pray for sunshine all day," he said Tuesday as he rushed through final preparations for adapting solar energy to power his WBNO Radio transmitter. "We're going to have so much power we won't know what to do with it."

The 500-watt daytime station was selected by the U.S. energy department and Massachusetts Institute of Technology for an experiment to generate electricity through 33,600 Photovoltaic solar cells.

The cells, thin sandwiches of semiconductors that convert sunlight into energy, are about eight centimetres in diameter. They are set up in neat rows over a third of an acre of flat lawn behind the WBNO studios.

The array is designed to generate up to 15 kilowatts of electricity on a sunny day, more than enough to send the station's signal over its 65-kilometres radius from this northwest Ohio city.

Excess capacity is stored in batteries that will enable the station to stay on the air for up to 1½ days when the sun doesn't shine.

Burt Nichols, an engineer for MIT, which built the system, estimates the cells will provide 70 to 80 per cent of the station's electrical needs on an annual basis. Utility lines are kept on standby for use as needed.

Thaman, general manager, said the station invested about $50,000, mostly in site preparation and to construct a building to house monitoring equipment and storage batteries. Nichols estimated the government and MIT together invested about $300,000, most of it for solar cells.

Thaman estimated the station will save about $100 a month.

Thatcher to Ulster

Northern Ireland's biggest legal paramilitary Protestant organization has also threatened to take up arms. The Ulster Defence Association said it will be "compelled to take the law into its own hands" unless British forces round up more IRA men.

The UDA also demanded the dismissal of Thatcher's cabinet minister for Northern Ireland, Humphrey Atkins, because he has been on a vacation in Tunisia this month, the traditional time for sectarian rallies and militant speeches in Northern Ireland.

In Britain, Scotland Yard chiefs were trying to persuade government leaders and other likely targets for the IRA to accept bodyguards.

The Irish cabinet was to meet in special session today to discuss the situation. But Irish Premier Jack Lynch did not advance his scheduled return Thursday from a vacation in Portugal.

In a related development today, Belgian police called in experts from London today to help investigate the Tuesday bomb blast that wounded 16 persons, including four members of a British military band.

The blast was the fourth major guerrilla attack in Belgium this year. In March, a Belgian central bank official was shot dead, apparently mistaken for the deputy British ambassador to NATO.

In June, Alexander Haig, Supreme allied NATO commander, escaped when a bomb went off under his car, and last month a bomb exploded at the British consulate in Antwerp.

Irish terrorists are suspected of having been involved, but the police have never caught the attackers.

Thriller hits close to the truth

CHICAGO (UPI) — Novelist Bill Granger's first thriller concerns an Irish Republican Army plot to blow up the yacht of a British lord and cousin of the queen while he is sailing in the Irish Sea.

The paperback original, The November Man, was published less than three weeks before IRA terrorists killed Earl Mountbatten and three others Monday by setting off a bomb in his 10-metre boat off the northwest coast of Ireland.

"I would hope not ... I would think not. .." said Granger, 38, a former Chicago newsman who covered Ireland in 1971, when asked if he saw any connection between his plot and the bombing.

"It's weird it happened, it's eerie. I was trying to proceed from what I saw and knew of the IRA. It seemed logical to me that it would be the next thing they'd do. When you try to figure out terrorists, you do an interior logic.

"And they've got to escalate this thing to stay in business. They've got to make it crazier. I don't think this is the end of it. They've got to keep going, go after the royal house now, make the English madder and crazier, and make the Irish Republic respond to it."

Beaches posted

Warning signs were posted Tuesday at three Greater Victoria beaches after health authorities detected high pollution counts.

The beaches are Beaver, Prospect and Willows at the foot of Estevan.

Earlier this summer, signs were posted at seven Saanich Peninsula and two western community beaches.

MacBlo waiting

MacMillan Bloedel is awaiting a Labor Relations Board decision on the company's application to have pickets removed from its Chemainus lumber mill.

The mill has been shut down since Monday morning by members of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, Local 8.

The company applied Tuesday to the LRB for a cease and desist order.

The PPWC picket line is manned by employees of MacBlo's Harmac pulp mill who have been on strike for a week because of a dispute over "hot pulp."

The Harmac employees claim there are still a number of local contract issues to be resolved.

Skatewave has a daily following of perhaps 100 youngsters, Lannigan and his partner Tim Gallivan said. Ten of them have professional potential, including the top boarder among the group of local experts, 14-year-old Craig Hall.

The average age of clients is between 12 and 18 who pay $1 an hour to rent a board if they don't own one, and $3 for a half-day on the course. For $2 more they can spend the whole day there, any day but Monday.

Fit bicycle to the child, parents told

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Adults wouldn't dream of driving a car without brakes, unsafe steering or loose wheels.

Yet many allow their children to take to the streets on bicycles in that kind of shape.

Safety officials say that thousands of youngsters will cycle back to school next week and many will be riding bikes which are dangerous.

"It's amazing the number of young people riding bikes not suited for them or ones which are deficient mechanically," says Ken Wyatt, manager of the Capital Region Safety Council.

Wyatt said the council inspects bicycles at schools or summer playgrounds throughout the year and consistently finds many with poor brakes, loose axles, spokes and mudguards and poor seats.

"And most of the repairs could be done by the parents," says Wyatt.

Another major safety problem found by the council is that too many boys and girls graduate from tricyles to bikes which are totally unsuited for their age and skills.

"It's just a wonder there are not more accidents," Wyatt says.

"Parents aren't doing a child a favor by giving him a 10-speed instead of an ordinary small coaster — it's just inviting trouble."

He said the Canadian Standards Association has set up standards covering bicycles.

It covers reflectors, height of handlebars, size of seat, braking ability, frame strength and a number of other factors.

But at the moment, Wyatt said, only Manitoba makes CSA certification mandatory.

"I wish B.C. would follow Manitoba's example. For if you have a bike bearing the CSA mark of approval, you can rest assured that it passed a series of gruelling tests by an independent organization."

Wyatt urged parents to take their time when bike shopping, especially those parents planning to give their children a first bike.

Wyatt says parents should first assess the skill of a child and provide removable training wheels for the bike if not absolutely certain that he or she will be comfortable with the initial challenge presented by two instead of three wheels.

He says a key to safe cycling is to fit the bicycle to the rider.

A boy, standing with the balls of both feet on the ground and with both hands on the handle bars, should still have adequate clearance between his body and the crossbar.

Even though the bar is absent in girls' bikes, a similar standard can be established by leg reach measurements.

Wyatt stresses correct saddle height is essential.

It should be adjusted so that the leg is almost fully extended when the rider is seated with the ball of the foot on the pedal.

Brakes. There are two types of braking systems commonly available — the caliper brake which is hand operated and the rear coasterbrake, found only on single-speed bicycles.

While Wyatt prefers the latter for beginners, he says if parents opt for caliper brakes, they shouldn't expect a youngster to cope with an adult-size handgrip.

"Choose one sufficiently small for little hands to operate easily."

Wyatt says every bike should have a rear red reflector which can be seen clearly.

Amber or white reflex reflectors should be fixed on both front and rear surfaces of the pedals.

It's also recommended that reflectors or reflective material be clearly visible from each side in both front and rear wheel areas.

With regard to style, he says the popular high-rise child's bicycle with its banana seat and high handlebar can be just as safe as a standard convertible model, provided the handle bars remain upright.

But if they are allowed to lie back, the rider's ability to turn propertly is severely impaired.

Wyatt says the size of bicycles for youngster and adults is important.

Guidelines suggest that an adult under 5 feet 10 requires a 21-inch frame, those up to six feet a 23-inch frame and six feet or over, a 25-inch frame. Measurements are taken from the centre of the pedal axle sprocket to the top of the tube where the seatpost joins the bicycle frame.

OVERCOME WITH HAPPINESS, or just plain camera shy? Whatever, three-year-old Jenny Moore, 748 Chesterlea, won a new bike during Saanich Police Bike Safety Week. She wasn't having any part of Constable Mike Copp's soothing efforts but James Maxwell, 1857 Hillcrest, is ready to take off. His bike is right size but Jenny's is too big. Safety officials say kids and bikes should be matched for size.

A beer garden on the Causeway over the B.C. Day weekend impaired Victoria's tourist image and should be rejected if proposed next year, local hotelmen have demanded.

In a letter to city council's economic and tourism committee, the Victoria Hotel Association alleges drunkenness, rowdyism, unsanitary food and a lack of supervision and toilet facilities at the beer garden operated by Associated Commercial Travellers.

Funds from the event go to charity.

A number of verbal complaints from citizens have also been made to city hall along with a letter from the Empress Hotel.

"We feel that any industry that pays to the Victoria area over $2 million in taxes and has a combined payroll of well over $23 million should have some say in how the beer garden should be run, or even allowed to be run if it has detrimental effect on this industry or tourists visiting our city," said association president Gordon C. Card.

But the hotel body's allegations were dismissed by ACT past-president Dave Garrand, who claimed the Causeway beer garden is the best run of any in the province.

"We've had no complaints about the way it was run. There were no problems at all down there. We run it very efficiently," he said.

Garrand said the beer garden raised $9,000 for ACT charities this year and nearly $17,000 during the brewery strike a year ago, using imported beer.

Card's letter to Mayor Mike Young asked how he would like to visit a city and while walking on a warm summer evening come upon five or 10 men urinating on flower beds.

The letter said there was a complaint about a 15-year-old boy getting drunk because no one supervised the beer garden or checked for ID, another about loud drunken comments directed at a teen-aged girl and others about loud rock music which disturbed the sleep of hotel guests.

"If we in the hotel industry ran our liquor and beer outlets as the beer garden in the Inner Harbor was allowed to be run, the Liquor Control Board, health department and the police department, I am sure, would take a very dim view of our operation," Card's letter said.

Garrand said the health department approved the two commercial and one non-profit food outlets at the beer garden and that commissionaires and ACT volunteers manned gates to check ID.

Two survive explosion

Two Sidney men escaped unharmed Tuesday afternoon when their $32,000 sailboat exploded then burned and sank in Haro Strait.

Alan Dickinson, owner of the quarter-tonner Red Sled, and a companion, Allan Kelly, were picked up by a passing pleasure boat.

The Red Sled was rocked by the explosion as it towed the six-metre yacht Alarm with owner Guy Drake aboard.

Dickinson, manager of the Van Isle Marina, said he only carried $21,000 insurance on the boat.

The explosion occurred as the two boats passed east of Zero Rock.

Dickinson said he and Kelly were unable to put out the fire and took to the water.

The Saanich fire department's Zodiac inflatable arrived on the scene to find a Seaspan tug pumping water on the boat.

The fire department vessel used a dry chemical extinguisher to put out the blaze but the yacht sank while being towed by the Zodiac.

The Alarm, which will compete in the six-metre world championships in Seattle, was being towed to the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

Red Sled was designed by marine architect Richard Day of Friday Harbor and was launched last August. She was well-known on racing circuits in B.C. and Washington.

Time running out, gov't told

Action asked on bus depot

Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce today expressed concern that Victoria could be without a bus depot in two years unless the provincial government soon builds a permanent transportation centre.

The lease expires on the present depot on July 31, 1981. The site is owned by The Empress.

Chamber transportation director Larry Martell in an interview said the provincial government should be working now to find a permanent site and to draw plans for a new building.

The provincially-owned land behind the old Crystal Garden, across the street from the present depot, would be an ideal location, Martell said.

(The NDP government, 1972-75, had planned a large depot on that site to co-ordinate Pacific Coach Lines, city buses and rail transportation but the plan never got off the drawing boards).

Martell said action must begin now or the city could find itself without a depot. Officials of Pacific Coach Lines also expressed concern.

The present depot is used by PCL and tour bus operators. There is no depot for city buses.

In a separate issue, Martell also urged the provincial government to spend funds to upgrade the Princess Marguerite as soon as her 1979 season ends.

The ship must have its galley improved or it will not be allowed to operate on the Seattle-Victoria run next year.

Martell said loss of the Marguerite would be a serious blow to the Victoria tourist industry.

The chamber's hope, he said, is that the Marguerite can be saved. If not, then the government should obtain some other suitable vessel to carry on the service.

"I'm afraid we will lose a large number of tourists without the Marguerite.Many people say they come for the trip.

Arriving in Victoria is just a secondary idea."

Martell said there is a proposal for jetfoil service between Victoria and Seattle but it would supplement and not replace the Marguerite.

Martell is a member of the Princess Marguerite Advisory Board, a group appointed by the provincial government to recommend improvements in the service.

Martell is also making recommendations on improvements to the B.C. Ferries service. One change being considered, he said, is to have buses act as a shuttle only.

Under this plan the bus would drive to the ferry, discharge passengers and then load passengers from the ferry that had just arrived. It would not drive on to the vessel. Luggage would be carted aboard and loaded on another bus waiting at the far side.

The plan is favored by Pacific Coach Lines, which would not have drivers losing almost two hours on the crossing.

It would also free some additional space for cars on the ferry. However, B.C. Ferries Corp. has not expressed enthusiasm for the plan.

Martell also said the chamber has decided to support West Coast Air and Airwest in their rival applications for land-based plane service between Pat Bay and Vancouver International Airport.

"The chamber will always support improved transportation service for the Victoria area."

$25,000 damage in blaze

An early-morning fire today caused $25,000 damage to an office building at 719 Alderbury in Esquimalt.

The fire was reported at 1:56 a.m. after a passer-by spotted flames shooting out of the north side of the building owned by Write Accounting Systems Ltd.

Several offices were damaged in the fire which generated such heat a cement driveway was cracked and a window broken on the south side of a building next door.

The blaze was brought under control within minutes by Esquimalt fire department which is investigating cause of the blaze.

$50,000 to synagogue

The provincial government has granted $50,000 towards the restoration of the synagogue at Pandora and Blanshard, the oldest in Canada.

The grant to the 113-year-old Congregation Emanuel Synagogue at 1461 Blanshard is the largest made by the British Columbia Heritage Trust.

Dr. Martin Levin, chairman of the committee charged with raising the $250,000 needed to restore the building, said the money was given on the condition the congregation would match it.

Levin said the synagogue was actually the third Jewish house of worship in what was to eventually become Canada, but the first two, in Eastern Canada, no longer exist.

The structure is unique in several ways. It is the oldest house of worship of any denomination still standing in B.C. that has not undergone major structural alteration.

It was built in 1863, but the "Act to Incorporate the Israelite Congregation Named the Emanuel of Victoria" wasn't passed by the colonial legislature until the next year.

Levin, pointing out the importance of the building to Canadian Jewry and the historical signifigance to B.C., said a fund-raising campaign will be launched soon. The congregation has fewer than 100 members.

Paopao hits Young with TD pass

Lions win thriller as time runs out

By Canadian Press

VANCOUVER — Backup quarterback Joe Paopao moved British Columbia 81 yards to a touchdown in the last 33 seconds, culminated by a 12-yard pass to Jim Young, to give the Lions an electrifying 18-17 decision over Calgary Stampeders in a Canadian Football League game Tuesday night.

Paopao's heroics allowed the Lions, 6-1-1, to retain first place in the Western Football Conference, one point ahead of Edmonton Eskimos, and dropped the Stampeders, 5-2, to third place.

The second-year quarterback started the drive by losing four yards on a pass to Larry Key, then fired a 55-yard bomb to tight end Harry Holt at the Calgary 35 yard line.

Paopao then found Holt for an 18-yard gain and, with one second left, the Lions had one more play. Paopao coolly stepped back and found the veteran Young open in the corner of the end zone just across the goal line for the 12-yard major.

Lui Passaglia didn't attempt the convert as many in the Empire Stadium crowd of 30,018 spilled over onto the field to congratulate the Lions. Passaglia had six points on a 31-yard field goal, a convert and two punt singles.

Starter Jerry Tagge threw 25-yards to wingback Terry Bailey for the other B.C. major, while quarterback John Hufnagel hit Willie Armstead for a 75-yard passing major and Willie Burden ran five yards for the other Calgary touchdown. J. T. Hay converted both and kicked a 44-yard field goal.

Lions appeared doomed to defeat after Calgary went ahead 17-12 at 5:37 of the fourth quarter on a spectacular 75-yard pass from Hufnagel to Armstead, who beat defender Frank Oliver of the Lions easily over the middle.

Paopao entered the game at the start of the second half, replacing Tagge, who was ineffective in the first 30 minutes. Paopao threw the ball well at times, but seemed to have trouble finding open receivers.

Calgary led 7-0 after the first quarter on Burden's five-yard run after Tagge was intercepted by Robert Sparks of the Stamps at the B.C. 23 yard line.

The Lions came alive late in the half when Tagge found running back Larry Key for a 32-yard pass to the Calgary 25. On the next play Tagge combined with Bailey for a 25-yard touchdown, with Bailey making a diving catch at the goal line.

Paopao entered the game with the score tied 7-7 and led the Lions downfield in the third quarter, with Passaglia punting a 66-yard single to give B.C. an 8-7 lead.

Calgary came back on the next series and, after Hufnagel found Armstead for a 22-yard pass, Hay kicked his field goal to give the Stampeders a 10-8 lead.

Middle linebacker Sam Britts recovered a fumble by Calgary's Richard Crump at the Stamp 27 and Passaglia then kicked his field goal to give the Lions an 11-10 lead going into the final quarter.

Passaglia punted a 51-yard single into the coffin corner to put B.C. two points ahead, but on the next play Hufnagel once again found Armstead behind defender Oliver for a 75-yard touchdown pass and a 17-12 Calgary lead.

The Lions didn't seem to be in the game until Paopao got hot in the last 33 seconds.

Young's catch was his first of the season — he's the Lions' all-time receiving leader — and the club announced after the game that the 36-year-old veteran would be honored with a special night Sept. 29.

The crowd of 30,018 was the Lions' largest of the season.

Coach Vic Rapp of the Lions praised Young for his leadership role following the game and said that the veteran is always alert on the sidelines and ready to go into the game.

"That's the first ball he's caught this season and what a time he picked," said Rapp. "He's still our team leader, even if he's not a starter anymore."

Rapp also said that Holt is maturing quickly into a dependable tight end and "he showed us some things out there tonight, especially his concentration on that 55-yard — that was a tough catch under tremendous pressure."

Young said he ran a "flag pattern" on the last play and in the huddle "we told all the receivers to make sure they got over the goal line on their patterns."

The Lions had 15 first downs and a net offence of 312 yards, while Calgary had just 11 first downs and 202 net yards in Hufnagel's first start of the season. The game was a defensive struggle until the last quarter.

B.C. rushed for 93 yards as Key carried the ball 12 times for 57 yards, while Calgary gained 56 yards on the ground, with Burden getting 35 tough yards on 12 attempts.

The Lions passed for 253 yards as Tagge completed eight of 16 attempts for 100 yards and Paopao nine of 16 for 153 yards. Paopao was twice intercepted. Calgary got 159 yards through the air as Hfnagel completed 15 of 20 attempts.

Bailey led B.C. receivers with five catches for 58 yards and Holt had four receptions for 93 yards. Armstead grabbed five passes for 120 yards for Calgary and Burden had four catches, but lost eight yards.

Speaking of Irish dandies '57 was an historic year

So it was back in 1957. That's 22 years ago, son, when lacrosse was king and the Shamrocks were cock of the walk.

The Mann Cup championships were about to be held in our town and Peterborough was the team to beat, just like this time.

But it didn't come off. There was a major fuss about the eligibility of a Peterborough player, Bobby Allan, that tossed that series into a cocked hat.

Allan had played in Nanaimo the year before, had signed two forms, one with Nanaimo and one with Peterborough and had been declared ineligible. The Petes said they wouldn't play if Allan didn't. Thousands came to the scheduled opening game at Memorial Arena to see if the threat would stand. It did. The faceoff was made. The Petes didn't show. The Timbermen were then suspended, sent home and Long Branch, the defeated Eastern finalist, was summoned and came west.

The Rocks were much too good for Long Branch and Victoria had its second Mann Cup. The first came in 1955.

But that was a time of hassles, protests and the like. Almost every year.

In 1954 the Rocks had protested playing on the dirt floor at Miller Bowl in Peterborough; in 1955 Peterborough threatened a walkout here because of a disagreement with refereeing; in 1976 the Rocks walked off the floor in a playoff against Vancouver Pils and defaulted that series; and, in that year of 1957, the Rocks had to survive a post-game protest from defending-champion Nanaimo before their final 8-6 victory in the seventh game of a best-of-seven series stood up.

Nanaimo had protested a time-clock discrepancy and a half-hour emergency meeting of officials was held after the game before the Irish victory was finally proclaimed.

Let's see now. The game was played in 15-minute quarters in 1957. Remember? Betcha you'd forgotten.

It was also a time when the Strait of Juan de Fuca swim craze was at its peak. People were talking about a plaque in Beacon Hill Park for Marilyn Bell for her feat of swimming the strait. Marilyn had left town and was making wedding plans in the east.

It was the also a shopping period of chuck roasts at 33 cents a pound, smoked picnics at 47, rump roast at 69, steaks for 79, two dozen eggs for 93, a new hat for $5, a good new suit for anywhere between $30 and $60 (the $60 model was a dinger) and a three-bedroom house for $12,500 . . . And oh, yes, Archie Browning was coaching the junior Shamrocks who lost in the Minto Cup final . . . Jackie Parker was leading the Western Interprovincial Union in scoring and the Plumper Bay sawmill was about to go up in flames.

This year's Shamrocks plan to invite all the 1957 Shamrock championship team, and also others from the past, to the series here.

But before they do, here are some of the names that were making headlies then. Whitey Severson was the playing coach. He's in the hall of fame. Geordie Johnston was the goalkeeper. He's in the hall, too. Jack Northup was the club's most valuable player in the cup final and won the Mike Kelly medal for that honor. And he's in the hall.

There was also Bert Bertoia, Lew Landess, Bill Bamford, Art Green and Art Green (that's right), Alan Gill, Don Sherry . . . and maybe Fred Wooster, a goalkeeper, may recall that event as well. Seems there's a fellow by the same name still around.

But now it's a new breed, anchored by a grand veteran, Ranjit Dillon. Fourteen years Ranjit's been trying and he wants that cup so bad he can taste it.

And, in this book, he best typifies the Shamrock spirit through the years.

Budgets get a scare

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. — Carl Walker came up with a timely hit Tuesday which enabled defending-champion Victoria Budgets to chalk up an extra-inning victory as play opened in the Canadian senior "A" men's softball championship tournament.

Walker, the second baseman, bashed a two-run single in the eighth inning to help Budgets to a 3-1 decision over Brookfield Elks of Nova Scotia.

The game, because of delays earlier in the tourney, wasn't completed until 1:30 a.m. local time.

Perhaps still suffering from jet lag, Budgets were unable to get a hit until the seventh inning.

The Nova Scotia squad was leading 1-0 when Walker connected for a single. Randy Benn came in to run and then scored on a double by John Green.

In the eighth, Clearbrook Four Star pickup Gord Fadden doubled, catcher Alden Govenlock doubled and both managed to race home on Walker's single.

Mark Smith, playing in his native province, started on the mound for Budgets and was tagged for a run in the third inning when Dennis Peterson singled, advanced on a sacrifice and a wild pitch and scored on a throwing error by Govenlock.

Dave Ruthowsky came in to relieve Smith in the seventh and picked up the pitching victory with two hitless innings.

Budgets were scheduled to face Manitoba earlier today.

It was the second loss of the day for Elks, who dropped a 3-1 decision to New Brunswick, in the six-team Red Division.

In other Red games, Newfoundland edged Northwest Territories 2-1 and Manitoba blanked Territories, 7-0.

Ontario had to go 15 innings before edging Quebec 1-0, Gene McWillie struck out 15 while pitching a no-hitter as Saskatchewan nipped Prince Edward Island 1-0 and host St. John's Alpines trounced Yukon 12-1 in Blue Division encounters.

Eskimos thump Argos

Times News Services

Half a loaf is better than none, so they say, but the same can't be said of football teams.

Toronto Argonauts produced some game-winning defence against Grey Cup champion Edmonton Eskimos at Commonwealth Stadium, but the Argo offence couldn't capitalize. The Eskimos found their feet in the second half and went on to thump the easterners 28-13 in the only interlocking matchup of a three-game card in the Canadian Football League Tuesday night.

At Winnipeg, the Blue Bombers dumped the last-place Saskatchewan Roughriders, 30-1.

The Eskimos, knocked off balance by the hungry Toronto defence, gave up four turnovers in the first half, including three interceptions. In all, the Argos picked off six Edmonton passes.

But Toronto only managed to capitalize on one opportunity, recovering a fumbled punt by Gregg Butler to allow quarterback Tony Adams to hit Peter Muller for a touchdown in the second quarter. The Eskimos led 13-10 at halftime.

Waddell Smith, John Konihowski and Tommy Scott scored the Edmonton touchdowns, Scott's coming on a pretty 47-yard performance of broken-field running.

Dave Cutler kicked three converts, a single and a pair of field goals, including one for 51-yards out, made on the second of two tries because the first was spoiled by a Toronto offside penalty.

Ian Sunter rounded out the Toronto scoring with two field goals and a convert.

The beating Winnipeg administer to the winless Roughriders gave the slightly more successful Blue Bombers, now 2-5, a needed lift, said coach Ray Jauch.

"We've played well against B.C., we could have beaten Montreal, we beat Hamilton, we played well against Edmonton up to a point. If we just keep coming, I hope we can still put a pretty good team together."

Winnipeg quarterback Dieter Brock threw three touchdown passes, two Mike Holmes and the other to Walt Passaglia, and kicker Bernie Ruoff had 12 points on two field goals, three converts and three singles in a generally dull affair. Bob Macoritti's missed field goal gave the Roughriders their only point.

Holmes rolled up 107 yards on six passes before leaving the game in the fourth-quarter to give a second-stringer a chance. Meanwhile, the Blue Bomber defence beseiged Saskatchewan's quarterbacks, catching Tom Clements and Larry Dick for a total of five sacks.

Mussels still on track

Victoria Mussels did what they had to do Tuesday night but Bellingham Mariners didn't.

Mussels, who must win all of their remaining games for a chance at the Northern Division pennant and a berth in this weekend's Northwest League baseball playoff, beat Grays Harbor Mets 5-2 at Royal Athletic Park.

But the Mariners lost 3-2 in Bellingham to Walla Walla Padres, the club Mussels are trying to catch

The loss wiped out any chance Bellingham had of winning the division title.

With two games left in the schedule for all teams, the situation is this:

Mussels must beat Grays Harbor tonight and tomorrow night at Athletic Park while the Mariners must beat Walla Walla twice in Bellingham.

If that happens, Victoria will win the division crown, finishing one game ahead of Walla Walla and two ahead of Bellingham.

They would then face Bend Phillies, the southern division champs, in a best-of-three playoff starting Saturday in Victoria and continuing Sunday and Monday, if necessary, in Bend.

But Walla Walla, with a one-game lead over Victoria and a two-game edge on Bellingham, can clinch the title by winning either tonight or tomorrow night.

If Walla Walla finishes tied for first place with Victoria or Bellingham, the Padres win on percentage because they have played two games less than their rivals.

Lefthander Steve Hartery was the hero Tuesday night before about 300 Athletic Park fans, going 8⅔ innings on a six-hitter, striking out 11 and walking only one. Roy Moretti picked up the save by striking out the only batter he faced in the ninth.

Home runs by Doug Morganti, his third in four games, and Gary Ledbetter sparked Mussels' offence.

Tonight's game begins at 7:30 with Ed Koziol nominated to start for Victoria.

Koziol was one of two Mussels named Tuesday to the league all-star team selected by the managers. First baseman Ed Drzayich was the other.

Canadian team eliminated

TOKYO (CP) — Canada dropped a 3-0 decision to Paraguay and was eliminated from playoff action at the world youth soccer championship Wednesday.

The loss left Canada at the bottom of the Group C qualifying section with only one win in three games. Paraguay and Portugal, which played to a scoreless draw against South Korea, qualified as the quarter-finalists from Group C.

Algeria, which beat Spain 1-0 Wednesday, also qualified for the quarter-finals, joining Argentina, Poland, Uruguay, the Soviet Union and Spain which had clinched berths earlier.

Team captain Julio Romero led Paraguay with two goals against the Canadians.

In the 34th minute, Roberto Cabanas lofted the ball to the goal and Romero smashed it into the left corner when the Canadians failed to clear it.

Ramon Isasi headed in Paraguay's second goal in the first half and Romero added his second goal in the 57th minute from a free kick.

Wests set plans for national tourney

It may be only fitting that Victoria West Soccer Club, at age 83 one of Canada's oldest continuously-operated sports clubs, will represent the host city in the 1979 Canadian soccer championships.

The Bob English-coached Wests will join three other regional winners in the playoff for the Labatt's Challenge Cup at Royal Athletic Park Sept. 14-16.

The soccer showdown will be the second Canadian championship event staged in Victoria within a three-week period. Victoria Shamrocks will be the host team for lacrosse's Mann Cup finals which start at Memorial Arena on Tuesday.

Winnipeg Tatra, coached by former Vancouver Whitecap professional Bob Cram, Lasalle Olympics of Quebec and Holy Cross of St. John's, Nfld., are the other soccer teams challenging for national honors.

It will be the first time the soccer final has been held in British Columbia in 12 years, and the first-ever appearance of the playoff on Vancouver Island.

Wests won the Canadian title four years ago, successfully defending Victoria's claim after London Boxing Club triumphed in 1974.

And the soccer finals could be one of the best sports bargains of the year. Tournament passes for adults will sell for $5, which works out to $1 a game.

The four teams will play a modified round-robin to determine finalists for the Sept. 16 championship game.

The series opens Sept. 14 with an evening doubleheader. Winnipeg will meet Lasalle in a game starting at 6 p.m. while Wests will play Holy Cross at 8:15.

Lasalle and Holy Cross will play off in one game while Wests go against Winnipeg in the second encounter the following afternoon.

Alex Kemp, secretary of the B.C. Soccer Association who visited Victoria Tuesday, feels Newfoundland's entry may be Vic West's biggest threat.

Akamina road stopped by salvage shortage

It appears there might be a little light at the end of the tunnel in the fracas over logging the Akamina-Kishinena Valley in southeastern British Columbia.

Last May, the commercial value of about 2,600 acres of lodgepole pine threatened by the mountain pine beetle was judged to outweigh the recreational and wilderness values of the Akamina-Kishinena Valley, bounded by Waterton Lakes National Park in Alberta to the east and Glacier National Park in Montana to the south.

Now we see that construction of the road to provide access to the area has been halted because Crows' Nest Industries says only 740 acres can be logged and that will not even provide enough stumpage revenue to pay for the road.

Meanwhile, the B.C. taxpayers are left holding the bill for work that has been completed.

It now appears the provincial Forest Service, which promoted and paid for the road, might have been more interested in guarding its land base in the area than with salvaging the pine.

"We've stopped building now but I agree it's not a very good thing the road got that far," zone forester Ross Tozer was quoted as saying.

He excused the mess by stating Crows' Nest officials had okayed Forest Service estimates on the timber available and road construction began on that basis.

Meanwhile, one other kettle of fish remains. Mining claims have been staked and gas exploration permits granted in the area.

Perhaps the provincial government would do well to cut the losses sustained in our name and grant the area the park status it merits.

This area has been proposed either as a national or a provincial park by various agencies (including the Forest Service in 1927) since 1917 because of high scenic, flora and fauna values.

Title game breeze for Seaboard club

Seaboard Construction captured the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League playoff title in relatively easy fashion Tuesday night at Central Park.

With the help of 10 errors, Seaboard posted an 8-5 decision over Elks-Athletics in the deciding game of a best-of-five series.

Elks-Athletics opened the first inning with three runs on a hit batter, a single by Wally Popoff, a fielders' choice, a pair of sacrifices and an error.

Seaboard came back in the second with a solo home run by Glen Kilduff and then took advantage in the third inning when Elks-Athletics collapsed.

Tom Robertson hit a single for the lone Seaboard hit of the inning but the winners scored four runs as Elks-Athletics committed seven errors.

Seaboard added two more runs in the fourth on two singles and three errors and Scott Sinclair drilled a homer in the sixth frame.

At Heywood Avenue Park, Glen Coffey pitched a one-hitter as Victoria Athletics opened the best-of-five Heywood Men's League playoff final with a 9-0 victory over Capital Builders.

Coffey struck out 11 batters and walked eight while yielding a second-inning triple by Barry Milne.

Victoria inherits Open for two-year period

By ERNIE FEDORUK, Times Staff

Victoria will be "home" to the British Columbia Open golf championship for the next two years.

This year's Open has been committed to Glen Meadows Golf and Country Club and a media assembly Tuesday was prepared to listen to only some "cleanup" details in connection with the Sept. 26-29 championship.

The "cleanup" details were provided, as expected. They included confirmation that this year's 54-hole event will, indeed, be played at the McTavish Road course. Sponsored by Harbour Towers and the Chateau Victoria, it will carry a prize purse of $20,000.

Quite unexpected, however, was Ken King's declaration that the B.C. Open also will be played here in 1980.

Speaking on behalf of both sponsoring hotels, King said Chateau Victoria and Harbour Towers and the governing B.C. Professional Golfers Association agreed to the two-year involvement.

"We fully expect this year's tournament to be first class," he added, "but the expertise gathered this year will make it a bigger and better tournament next year."

Attracted as sponsors by Glen Meadows pro Bill Penny, the Victoria hotels stepped in erase doubts as to the tournament's future and are making it the richest provincial test in Canada. The only Canadian tournaments to offer more prize money this year were the Canadian Open and the Labatt-sponsored CPGA championship.

BCPGA president Al Kennedy of Richmond said his association has approached Mark McCormick and that there was "a good chance" the famed golf agent may be able to persuade some of his name clients to play here in September.

Kennedy said the entry of Jerry Anderson, winner of the Ontario, Quebec and Saskatchewan Opens, can be confirmed and that he "fully expects" the appearance of Jim Nelford, Dan Halldorson and Dave Barr — the three Canadians were are regulars on the U.S. PGA tour.

Field hockey title game today

VANCOUVER (CP) - The Netherlands and West Germany, two top-seeded countries at the women's world field hockey championship, share flawless records heading into the final today.

Both teams illustrated polished stick-handling and an aggressive but controlled style of play as they manoeuvred their way undefeated through round-robin play in the 12-day tournament.

However, both faced strong competition in their respective semi-final matches Monday, each defeating their opponent 1-0 in closely-contested games.

The top-seeded Netherlands had a tough time with Australia but managed to defeat the sixth-seeded team with less than two minutes remaining in regulation time.

While they battle for the top two spots, Australia and the U.S. play for third and fourth and Wales and England battle for the crucial fifth position.

Ninth-ranked Canada will take on Scotland, seeded 10th, to decide seventh and eighth.

Five of the 18 teams competing here will gain berths in next year's Olympic games in Moscow, where women's field hockey will be included as an event for the first time.

Caterpillar Sealed and Lubricated Track meant over 150% more track life for Larry Chevallier.

It can do the same for you.

Tailing ponds are tough on a machine. For Larry Chevallier, owner/operator of Chevallier Construction Ltd., the abrasive sands at Brenda Mines' two tailing ponds at Peachland meant only 900 hours out of a set of tracks, and only 600 hours before needing to turn the pins and bushings.

Then he tried Caterpillar Sealed and Lubricated Track.

"I got almost 2,400 hours out of that first set," says Larry, "so I'm changing all my other tractors over as soon as the old tracks wear out."

Larry Chevallier has discovered what more and more profit-conscious owners are finding: that in abrasive and heavy-impact ground conditions, Caterpillar Sealed and Lubricated Track means longer track life, significantly lower operating costs and reduced maintenance—because it virtually eliminates wear between pins and bushings.

"I'm convinced!" says Larry Chevallier. You will be, too. And you'll appreciate Finning's Custom Track Service. We'll send a specialist to inspect your tracks regularly, measure wear, and advise you how to get the lowest cost-per-hour on undercarriage service; because the lower your cost-per-hour, the bigger your profit-per-hour. And that's the name of the game.

Russ tennis suffers from equipment shortage

MOSCOW (AP) — Why hasn't the Soviet Union — a stiff competitor in so many other world sports — produced more tennis stars?

The answer, says one tennis official here, is that the nation is crippling the sport by not building more tennis courts or providing such basic equipment as rackets and balls.

"The popularity of tennis is growing year by year," Vladimir Kuibyshev, an architect and member of the USSR Tennis Federation said in a letter to the editor of the newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta.

"It must be said frankly, though, that the development of tennis in our country is proceeding unevenly. After an unquestionable boom in the mid-1970s, we are going through somewhat of a slump."

The problem seems to be this: In Soviet eyes, tennis still is seen as a rich man's sport enjoyed mainly in the West.

The Soviets have, of course, their own tennis champions but none are axactly household names around the world like Jimmy Connors, or Bjorn Borg, or Chris Evert.

The Soviet news agency Tass says the Soviet men's No.1 player is Alexander Metreveli, followed by Teimuraz Kakulia and Vadim Borisov. For the women, No.1 is Olga Morozova — who is known in the West — followed by Natalya Chmiryeva and Yelena Granaturova.

There also is an annual championship to determine the best Soviet men's and women's player. But no world tourneys, like Wimbledon, the French Open or the U.S. Open.

The Soviets did have a one-year deal to join World Team Tennis. But the International Tennis Federation demanded that the Soviet players declare themselves amateurs or pros, and the Soviets decided to pull out of WTT.

But for the Soviet boy or girl who wants to take up the sport, it's a long struggle that usually ends in disappointment.

First, the racket. Soviet tennis rackets are well-made and look similar to a Wilson or Dunlop medium-priced model. The problem is not quality, however, but quantity.

The typical Moscow sports store is full of soccer balls, ski poles and the like but only rarely stocks tennis rackets. When they do come in, huge lines stretch down several street blocks.

As for tennis balls, Kuibyshev pointed out that "things are reaching the point where not only training sessions are being missed for lack of tennis balls, but competitions are being postponed. The quality of the balls must be criticized; They last an extremely short time," he added.

The black market, needless to say, does a thriving business in Western tennis rackets and balls, and it is not unusual for Sovies to ask their foreign friends to bring them a racket.

Proper tennis clothes also are difficult to find, and Kuibyshev called it a "bad problem that the USSR Ministry of Light Culture should have taken care of by now."

However, the real problem is where to play.

Moscow is a city of eight million people, but there are only an estimated 70 tennis courts in the entire metropolis. Of these, 25 are located near Lenin Stadium — under renovation now for the 1980 Moscow Olympics — and are always overcrowded.

The shortage of courts is so acute that officials have begun asking would-be players to show their Soviet passports — and those who don't have them are turned away.

Borg breezes in first match

NEW YORK (AP) — Bjorn Borg says he's relaxed and not feeling any special pressure as he goes after his first U.S. Open championship. But the defending champion and Borg's arch-rival, Jimmy Connors, is hoping to change that over the next two weeks.

Borg, who often has had to fight for his life in early matches of major tournaments, breezed past former NCAA champion Matt Mitchell 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 in a first-round match Tuesday at the U.S. Open tennis championships.

"Always the first round is most difficult for me because it takes me a while to get used to the courts, the balls, the atmosphere," said Borg, the 23-year-old Swedish star who won the the French and Wimbledon titles earlier this year. "I need time to find my rhythm."

A victory here, plus a victory in the Australian Open in December, would give Borg the Grand Slam of tennis.

Connors, the No. 2 seed behind Borg, also won in straight sets, defeating Anand Amritraj of India 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Among the women, top-seeded Chris Evert-Lloyd opened her quest for a fifth straight title with a 6-0, 6-0 romp over West Germany's Iris Riedel.

Of the 12 seeded players to see action Tuesday, 10 came away with first-round victories. The only exception in the men's draw was Adriano Panatta of Italy, who lost to Kevin Curren, a South African who won the NCAA singles title this spring playing for the University of Texas, 6-3, 7-5, 7-6.

Last year's Cinderella star, Pam Shriver, was upset by little-known Julie Harrington 6-4, 6-1.

The 14th-seeded Shriver, who became the youngest finalist in Open history when she reached the women's singles final at the age of 16 last year, has been bothered by tendonitis in her right shoulder all summer and showed little of her usual effective net game.

Fourth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis easily beat Mark Edmonson of Australia 6-3, 6-2, 7-5; No. 6 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina defeated Onny Parun of New Zealand 6-1, 6-2, 7-6; No. 8 Victor Pecci of Paraguay outlasted Andy Kohlberg 3-6, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, and No. 10 Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina beat Bruce Nichols 6-1, 6-0, 6-4.

No. 4 Virginia Wade of Britian beat Paula Smith 6-3, 6-3; No. 6 Dianne Fromholtz of Australia topped countrywomen Dianne Evers 6-3, 6-2; No. 7 Wendy Turnbull of Australia outlasted Marie Pinterova of Hungary 4-6, 6-3, 6-4; No. 8 Kerry Reid of Australia defeated Rosie Casals 6-1, 6-2; No. 9 Billie Jean King downed Zenda Liess 6-3, 7-5; No. 11 Kathy Jordan beat Betty Ann Stuart 6-4, 6-0, and No. 15 Ann Kiyomura topped Beth Norton 6-4, 6-1.

U.S. takes title

SALVADOR, Brazil (Reuter) — The United States beat Brazil 75-55 Saturday night to win the world junior basketball championship. The U.S. wound up the final round with a 3-0 record. Canada placed seventh.

Savard fingers Dickie Moore as next coach

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — Serge Savard, veteran defenceman of the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens, suggested last week that one-time Canadiens' forward Dickie Moore has the best chance to become the next coach of that National Hockey League team.

Savard also said that he thought former Buffalo Sabres' coach Marcel Pronovost would be the second candidate to assume the Canadiens' bench duties.

The Canadiens' coaching spot has been a guessing game since Scotty Bowman resigned the position last June to become the director of hockey operations for Buffalo Sabres.

Two city rowing crews on Canadian world team

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Canada will have 13 entries in the 1979 world rowing championships which get under way this week at Bled, Yugoslavia.

Three Canadian women's crews have been overseas since June, rowing on the European summer regatta circuit. They were joined last week by 10 other Canadian boats in preparation for the regatta.

In all, there are 52 competitors with the Canadian team at Bled, making up five women's entries, three lightweight boats and five men's crews.

The women will race the eight, cox four, pair and double with Andrea Schreiner of St. Catharines trying the single. The men will go for the cox four, cox pair, pair and double with Phil Monckton of London, Ont., in the single.

The Canadian lightweight entry will consist of an eight, a four and singles sculler Brian Thorne of St. Catharines.

Canada won a silver medal in the women's pair and a bronze in the women's eight at last year's worlds in New Zealand.

The current women's squad includes three national boats, all having enjoyed medal success at summer regattas in the Netherlands, Switzerland and West Germany. The rest of the Canadian entries are essentially club crews.

The men's team is led by two Pan-American Games medal boats. Silver medalists at the Pan-ams, the Hamilton Leander cox four is boated as Dan Turton, Ron Cherwinski, Mel Laflorme and Carl Zintal with Tony Biernacki Jr. of Brock University as cox.

Victoria City Rowing Club of Vancouver Island has the gold medal Pan-Ams double of Pat Walter and Bruce Ford.

Janice Mason and Lisa Roy give Victoria City RC the women's double. They are the 1979 Canadian champions, having won at the recent Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

The cox pair is from the Ridley Boat Club of St. Catharines with Andy Messer and George Tintor, coached by Kai Syri. Messer is from Renforth, N.B. and a student at Yale University while Tintor's home is Toronto and he rows at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mike Evans and Tim Britton-Foster combine for a Woodstock Rowing Club pair.

Feeling of loneliness in half-empty stadium

MONTREAL (CP) — Attendance figures for the World Cup of Athletics have convinced most Canadian competitors that a major selling job is needed for track and field in this country.

Although attendance increased daily after a meagre turnout of 12,567 paid for the Friday night opening, the total of paying customers for the three-day event ending Sunday amounted to about 53,000, a mark usually surpassed in one day at any European track holding that number.

"I think the media have to take responsibility for the selling job," said Anne Mackie-Morelli, the Vancouver runner who finished a highly-respectable fourth in the women's 800 metres.

"Track and field as a sport doesn't get enough press coverage," she said.

"If we had more coverage, I think it would be great for the development of new track and field talent. Look how many hockey players were created as a result of the coverage received by Guy Lafleur."

Philippe Laheurte, a sixth-place finisher in the 3,000-metre steeplechase, seemed particularly frustrated by the endless rows of empty seats.

"As a Montrealer, I find it very discouraging that more people show up for a horse race than to watch some of the best athletes in the world," he said.

Gold-medal high jumper Debbie Brill of Aldergrove couldn't help but remark on the eerie feeling. "I had such a feeling of smallness," said Brill.

Morelli added: "In Europe, I've seen people go wild when (East Germany's) Rosemarie Ackermann completes a high jump. They treat it differently over there. The media give it as much space as a major sport such as soccer."

PHYSICIAN FINED

Doubts remain of fowl deed

- Did the goose honk?
- Was the doctor putting?
- Will truth ever be known?

By CHRIS SCHAUBLE
Special to The Washington Post

BALTIMORE — A Washington physician accused of slaying a goose with his golf club at Congressional Country Club paid a $500 fine for violating federal hunting laws last week and left federal court without telling anyone what happened.

"This is the end of history," Dr. Sherman A. Thoams told a mystified court clerk as he handed over his personal check for the fine. "Do you want to handle history?"

Thomas had been charged with using his golf club to illegally kill a Canada goose out of season and with unlawful possession of a goose protected by the Migratory Bird Act.

The physician's attorneys plea bargained with prosecutors and won a reduction of the charges to a hunting citation, similar to a traffic ticket.

Thomas' criminal record will reflect a misdemeanor conviction of a hunting law, a court clerk said, although a person charged by citation is not required to enter a formal plea.

Thomas still could face possible loss of his country club membership in Bethesda, where his activities during a much-publicized golf game last May 3 incurred the wrath of some members.

A source close to the investigation said Thomas gave a statement to the country club's board of directors, saying the goose was injured by his golf ball and he decapitated it by pulling its head off to put it out of its misery.

He tossed the head into a pond and brought the carcass back to his golf cart, sources said.

Decapitation "sounds sort of gruesome," said one source. "But to a hunter, it's not a gruesome or abnormal thing to kill a crippled bird by cutting its head off. His whole defense was that what he did was permissible during hunting season, and he's right, if you assume his story is correct that the goose was wounded."

Several golfers who were near the 17th green, where the incident occurred, told investigators the goose was 'a lot more lively than Thomas indicated," one source said. They reportedly added they saw Thomas "thrashing wildly" with his golf club but said they weren't close enough to see what had caused the 60-year-old family practitioner's apparent anger.

"Was the goose injured? Did he hit the goose with the ball? I don't know," one witness said. "I really couldn't see anything because of the slope at the 17th green.

"Sherman's probably the only guy who knows the the true story."

The two most often repeated versions of the indictment are Thomas' defense that it was a mercy killing and an earlier account that the goose honked and spoiled a putt, enraging the doctor and prompting him to beat the animal to death.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Kurt L. Schmoke said that "neither the putting story nor the mercy-killing story is true. The truth probably lies somewhere in between."

He refused to elaborate.

Charles N. Shaffer, Thomas' closed-mouthed lawyer, said: "The statute calls for a maximum penalty of $500, which Dr. Thomas had agreed to pay. And that concludes the case of U.S.A. versus Thomas."

Shaffer, who attained a national reputation when he represented Nixon accuser John W. Dean III during the Watergate scandal, refused to discuss the incident further.

Gray surprised by battered foe

HALIFAX (CP) — "Stop the fight," the crowd hollered as a doctor examined Chris Clarke after round nine of his Commonwealth welterweight title fight with Clyde Gray Tuesday.

Clarke had staggered to his corner after Gray hammered him for the fourth straight round of one-sided punishment. As his handlers applied smelling salts and ice packs the former Pan American gold medal winner and former Olympian appeared headed to a humbling first loss of his 20-fight professional career.

But the cocky 22-year-old maintains he wasn't surprised that he turned the tables in the next round and opened a cut under Gray's eye that put the champion away by a technical knockout.

"I knew he was gonna run out of gas," the elated new champion told reporters.

Mining development is proceeding at a strong and steady rate, with these major new projects to provide more jobs and tax revenues for B.C.—

Equity Silver
a new $85 million silver-copper-gold mine now under construction near Houston; providing 300 jobs during the construction phase and 200 permanent jobs when the mine and mill are completed next year.

Highmont Mine
a new copper-molybdenum mine in the Highland Valley; development now underway at a cost of $150 million, with 500 people employed during construction and 400 permanent jobs when the project is finished in 1980.

Climax Molybdenum will re-open and expand the Kitsault molybdenum mine on north coastal B.C. at a cost of $143 million. Construction begins this summer—when production commences in 1981, there will be steady work for about 450 people.

Bell Copper
a $19 million expansion of the Babine Lake copper mine will create 50 new jobs by 1981.

Newmont Mines
has announced plans to extend the life of its mine near Princeton. A new $23.4 million construction project will provide 100 new jobs over the next two years.

AND THAT MEANS MORE JOBS FOR BRITISH COLUMBIANS.

B.C.'s mining industry today employs more than 15,000 people in our province, while supporting roughly 40,000 others in companies which depend on mining activity. With the continued development of our mineral resources, mining will play an increasingly vital role in the B.C. economy.

Ferguson will deal Hull to Black Hawks

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Bobby Hull will rejoin Chicago Black Hawks for the coming National Hockey League season.

The paper quotes John Ferguson, Winnipeg Jets general manager, as saying he planned to talk with Hawks general manager Bob Pulford today to work out a trade agreement for Hull.

Hull on Tuesday vetoed a trade that would have sent him from Winnipeg to Hartford Whalers.

The Globe quoted Ferguson as saying he had given Pulford four proposals that would to return the 40-year-old left-winger to the Black Hawks.

Ferguson would not elaborate on the proposals.

"If he wants Hull, and believe me, Chicago Black Hawks want Bobby Hull, then he has to meet my demands," Ferguson said. "We want fair compensation."

Hull scored 604 goas in 15 seasons with Chicago before he left the NHL for the Jets, then of the fledgling World Hockey Association, seven years ago. He retired from the Jets last season.

Judge not informed of settlement terms

HOUSTON (AP) — The $1.8 million-dollar damage suit filed against Los Angeles Lakers by Houston Rockets was settled out of court Tuesday for an amount not even disclosed to the presiding judge.

Lawyers for the two National Basketball Association teams said a part of the settlement was the agreement to withhold all information on the money to be paid the Rockets by California Sports Inc., owners of the Lakers.

Houston was suing the Lakers for the loss of star Rudy Tomjanovich for most of the 1977-1978 season.

Tomjanovich, team captain and then top scorer, was injured the night of Dec. 9, 1977, when hit in the face by Lakers forward Kermit Washington.

Tomjanovich suffered a fractured skull, fractured jaw, broken nose, numerous other facial injuries, and leakage of spinal fluid.

Earlier, a five-man, one-woman federal court jury awarded Tomjanovich $3.3 million in damages. The same jury was hearing the second phase of the trial when the settlement was reached after only one day of testimony.

The award to Tomjanovich stands, although defence counsel Robert Dunn said the Lakers will appeal.

Reds down Phils to lead NL West

By The Canadian Press

The last time Houston Astros were not leading the National League West, it was the U.S. Memorial Day weekend, 91 days ago.

So today is a red-letter day for Cincinnati Reds.

After a long uphill climb, the Reds finally moved ahead of Houston with a 5-2 victory Tuesday night over Philadelphia Phillies while the Astros were losing a 7-6 decision to Montreal Expos.

"We're starting to come together now," said Reds manager John McNamara after watching his baseball team win its seventh straight game and 17th in the last 22. "We got very good pitching and three home runs."

The pitching came from rookie Frank Pastore and Tom Hume and the home runs from Joe Morgan, Ray Knight and Dan Driessen.

"I'm willing to forget the past if we stay healthy the rest of the season," said Morgan, referring to a run of injuries that helped bury the Reds deep in the NL West before their recent turnabout.

One of the recent returnees off the injured list is power man George Foster.

"It's good having Foster back in the lineup," said Morgan. "It makes it easier for all of us."

Elsewhere in the NL, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1, Chicago Cubs beat San Diego Padres 3-1, St. Louis Cardinals nipped San Francisco Giants 2-1 and Atlanta Braves edged New York Mets 6-4.

After Garry Maddox put the Phillies in front 1-0 with his 12th home run of the season in the second inning, Cincinnati tied the game on Morgan's homer opening the fourth. Knight homered leading off the fifth to put the Reds in front again, 2-1, and Cincinnati scored three more times in the sixth on Driessen's homer.

Warren Cromartie drove in four runs, including one with a bases-loaded walk in the ninth, to lead Montreal over Houston. Larry Parrish opened the Expos ninth with a single off reliever Pete Ladd and moved to second on a wild pitch.

Singleton edged in cycling final

AMSTERDAM (CP) — Defending champion Lothar Thoms of East Germany outfinished Pan-American Games champion Gordon Singleton of Niagara Falls, Ont., Tuesday to win the 1,000-metre amateur time trial, the only final contested on the opening day of the world cycling championships.

Both covered the first half in 33.88 seconds but Thoms pulled away to win in one minute 6.61 seconds. Singleton's time was 1:07.53.

You've got to persevere to prosper in Thompson

By GARRY FAIRBAIRN

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — It takes a different kind of businessman to prosper in Thompson, says druggist Ken Biberdorf.

Biberdorf, president of the chamber of commerce in this northern mining city, is not your ordinary chamber-president optimist.

"This area is not dynamic at all, it's going backwards," he said in an interview.

Sharp population decreases, boarded-up vacant housing and an oversupply of retail services followed 1977 layoffs at the Inco Metals Co. mine which is virtually the entire economic base for the community.

Like the workers and Inco itself, Thompson businessmen are dependent upon the swings of the world nickel market.

They also, Biberdorf says, suffer from "the three-year syndrome" — fear that at the next contract negotiations the city will be hit by a strike like the eight months of bitterness that crippled Sudbury, site of Inco's other major Canadian operation.

"A lot of them just can't hack it. They just can't face that threat of a dramatic loss of population, of investment."

But for those who are willing to sink long-term roots into Thompson, to ride out the low periods and avoid over-expansion on the upswings, he says, Thompson can be an attractive home.

Orderly development of mining, hydroelectricity and tourism in northern Manitoba, plus the possible routing of the Polar Gas pipeline through the area, provide a basis for long-term hope for the city, Biberdorf says.

It's got everything going for it — though it might be 20 years from now."

The community has settled down since the rambunctious 1960s boom days when thousands of single transient workers formed the bulk of the population.

The trend today is to family life and a more stable population.

"The general characteristic now is that this is their home and they're going to tough it out no matter what."

Part of the city's attraction and most of its tourism hopes lie in the wilderness on its doorstep — a long weekend finds Biberdorf off on a three-day canoe trip.

"A guy in New York would give an arm and a leg to do what we just did."

But people need jobs to enjoy such lifestyles and the city's maturing teen-agers now find limited opportunities.

"The community doesn't keep its young people. We have nothing other than Inco to improve them."

One opportunity for growth, he says, is expansion of government services. Although Thompson is providing more medical services for the north, other government activities have to date been limited under the provincial restraint program.

As an example of how far Thompson has to go in its quest to be a northern service centre, Biberdorf notes that the city's land titles office is in Minnedosa, more than 800 kilometres south.

On a larger scale, he says, speeded-up hydro development based on electricity exports to the United States could do much for the north.

But until such initiatives are taken, businesses must "just wait out this lull period."

"We're just coming out of it now. It looks like there will be some rainbow at the end of it."

Gateway seeks to drop air run

EDMONTON (CP) — Gateway Aviation Ltd. wants to drop its weekly Edmonton-Jasper-Hinton-Vancouver service because of a lack of demand.

Gateway general manager Bob Russell said the Edmonton-based airline has applied to the Canadian transport commission to suspend the service effective Aug. 31.

He said the firm's 48-seat Hawker-Siddeley 748 was less than half full during most of its Thursday flights to Vancouver and back.

The airline had introduced the service earlier this year. Russell said Gateway intends to bring the service back again next spring.

The airline, meantime, is applying to the transport commission to use a larger plane on its Edmonton-Cold Lake-Grande Centre route. It wants to replace its 15-seat Beech 99 with a Hawker-Siddeley 748 in anticipation of increased traffic when Esso Resources Canada Ltd. begins building its $4.7-billion oil extraction plant near Cold Lake.

Television ads set precedent

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Winnipeg law firm is embarking on an advertising campaign in what is believed to be the first use of television to promote a law firm in Canada.

The ads for McRoberts and Henderson began Tuesday and will be shown regionally 45 times over the next month.

In most provinces advertising by law firms is banned, Bob McRoberts, a partner in the firm, said in an interview. He said that of all the provinces Manitoba has the most liberal attitude towards advertising.

"Basically we're marketing a service like anyone else," he said.

Real thing beats fake fires

CALGARY (CP) — Forest firefighters across the province won't be battling make-believe fires in their annual competition this year — they're too busy facing the real thing.

For the first time in its five-year history, the provincial firefighters competition, scheduled for Aug. 29-31 at North Vermilion, has been cancelled because of fires.

More than 430 men, including the cream of the competition circuit, are trying to control 11 fires covering 275,000 acres in northern Alberta.

Jaywalkers crackdown

EDMONTON (CP) — City police have declared war on downtown jaywalkers, saying they are responsible for a number of recent accidents.

Sgt. H.B. Shukalek has said he expects many $10 tickets to be issued as enforcement officers mount the blitz next week. In the first six months of this year, 459 people were ticketed for jaywalking, he said.

Chain gang pays off

EDMONTON (CP) — Minimum security prisoners working on community projects without pay have saved the province $500,000 in labor costs in the past year.

The minimum security inmates worked as manual laborers clearing brush, chopping firewood and cleaning ditches.

Chief's election splits band

EDMONTON (CP) — The Enoch Indian Reserve, just west of Edmonton, has been divided by the election of Raymond Cardinal as its new chief.

Some of the residents of the 650-member reserve have been circulating a petition protesting the election.

Cardinal was elected by 66 of the 216 eligible voters when the band manager and chief electoral officer, a non-Indian, cast the deciding ballot to break a tie between Cardinal and former Chief Jim Brule.

Even before the controversial election, the reserve had divided itself along family lines with Cardinal charging mismanagement of the band's substantial budget ($6 million last year, mostly from oil revenues.)

Farmers' advocate tackles land-grab

By MARK LISAC

EDMONTON (CP) — "I made my commitment in 1973 when I started this job," says Helmut Entrup. "I never set out to do any empire building."

But with only an assistant and a research officer, he travels about 65,000 kilometres a year and handles about 3,000 calls for information or help in a job whose influence he says has become "all-encompassing."

Entrup is a farmers advocate. He started the office in January, 1973, and said in an interview that he now would like to have some colleagues in other provinces.

He used to operate his own irrigation farm in southern Alberta and moved to the advocate's office from his former job as director of farm services for Unifarm, Alberta's comprehensive farm organization.

He is proud of his impacts — he points to a "$2-billion plaque" commemorating his fight against a strip mine.

With his direct manner of speech he sounds like the embodiment of his preferred way of doing business: "Instead of waiting for companies to do something we get on their tails."

The advocate's office tries to do things informally and quickly, he says, turning over cases in an average 10 days but often clearing up complaints in 10 minutes with a phone call or two.

It's all done with moral pressure and appeals to reason and good will.

"Thank God we have the backing of the legislature," Entrup says. "Without that we couldn't get anywhere at all. We have found we have tremendous support in the legislature.

Entrup and his assistant, Bard Haddrell, need it. The advocate quickly found about 75 per cent of the complaints from farmers were directed against petroleum companies or their land agents.

Entrup acted for farmers in negotiation of leases and other agreements; he lobbied for higher compensation payments from petroleum companies to farmers whose land they were using.

The companies went to Premier Peter Lougheed, who backed Entrup.

When they failed, the companies had about 250 persons waiting to confront Entrup at a memorable meeting in a Calgary hotel. Entrup said one jovial oilman told him before the meeting to expect a couple of black eyes.

But the oilmen calmed down when they heard him out and now tend to co-operate in all their contacts, he says.

"They're anxious to keep a good public image. Companies try to be very fair and try to do their utmost to have good staff.

"They are preserving more topsoil. . . . The confrontation isn't as severe now as it used to be."

More than 2,000 have acted on Entrup's suggestion and voluntarily raised compensation payments to farmers who have land out of production because oil or gas wells were on their property.

The advocate's office also has removed major sources of irritation by encouraging development of standard forms and contracts.

A standard right-of-way agreement spelling out terms and conditions for laying pipelines replaced an estimated 160 different company contracts.

A standard surface lease now spells out terms under which companies come onto farmland. A standard geophysical permit covers seismic exploration.

With Alberta's spectacular urban growth, Entrup also finds himself trying to mediate between farmers and urban municipalities, which he says do not always realize the implications of their decisions.

"Nobody wants to live close to a sewage lagoon."

By the same token, no town dweller wants to live near a livestock operator who's careless about spreading manure. Entrup demands such operators live up to the terms of written compliances calling for adequate storage and disposal of manure.

The key to it all, says Entrup is education and reasonableness. "We do not like confrontation."

GOOD VIBES make the work go quicker, especially if you're working on an new entrance for a zoo. Calgary city worker Danny Bell says he enjoys his job even if it does shake him up a bit.

Manitoba anglers get helping hand

CADDY LAKE, Man. (CP) — It's not likely that the Manitoba angler battling a trout gives much thought for the Whiteshell Fish Hatchery. But he should.

Without the helping hand that the hatchery gives nature, the battle might not have taken place.

Located on a two-acre site in Whiteshell Provincial Park, the hatchery turns out thousands of trout each year to stock lakes in the province.

Ray Scheufelt, resident fisheries technician, says the hatchery helps maintain the population of four species of trout — rainbow, splake, brook and lake trout.

The trout breed in Manitoba's relatively few spring-fed cold water lakes and are not as plentiful as other fish which thrive in the province's warm water lakes.

Without the hatchery, avid fishermen and natural predators would soon cause the trout population to dwindle to an unacceptably low level, Scheufelt says.

The fish are kept in the hatchery until they become about 125 millimetres long, a period of from one to three years. During this time the fish progress through several stages.

Eggs are brought to the hatchery during the spring from spawning camps throughout Manitoba. After an incubation period of several weeks, the newly-hatched trout are moved to one of several 4.5-metre-long tanks for the summer.

While at the hatchery, the fish are fed a dry concentrate. By the time they are mature enough to be transported by truck to various lakes, they have become very selective about the type of bait they'll take, says Scheufelt, who has worked at the hatchery for seven years.

But once hooked, they provide the fisherman with a good fight and a good meal.

Manitoba prof develops a better TV antenna

WINNIPEG (CP) — A miniature dish antenna is being developed which will allow northern Canadian television viewers to receive satellite signals directly.

The result will be improved picture quality and wider program variety, reasearcher Lotfollah Shafai says.

"What it will mean to residents of the north is that they will be able to receive television programs just as Canadians in larger cities can," says Shafai, an engineering professor at the University of Manitoba.

"That's very important because the people in the north should have the same amenities that anybody else in Canada has," he says.

Shafai was contacted by the federal communications department two years ago to participate in the project and devoted part of a sabbatical year to developing the antenna.

The result is a two-foot aluminum dish on a supporting structure, with a miniature receiver and a signal amplifier which can be connected to a television set.

"The unit we designed is far and away better than what was available in the marketplace," says Shafai.

The advantages of the latest model are its higher efficency rating, lower cost and better portability, compared to existing dish antennae.

Previously, the top models operated at no better than 50 per cent efficiency. Shafai says the research team has improved that to 75 per cent with the latest product.

He says tests, using signals from Canada's Hermes satellite, showed there was virtually no difference in picture and sound quality between transmissions from space and signals from a cable system or an ordinary roof aerial.

ity," says Shafai.

He says the cost of a fully-installed receiving system should be less than $500, even in the early marketing stages. He estimates the actual hardware will cost about $400, including $300 for the amplifier and receiver.

One of the major advantages of the new antenna is that it can be transported and set up by one person without special tools. And it can be packed and taken into buildings easily.

Shafai says the antenna can be placed in the attic of a home or right in the living room, on or beside the television set.

Shafai says the federal government is buying more than 100 of the new units for testing in northern Canada in the next several years.

Jessie keeps sourdoughs healthy

By ROGER SMITH

ATLIN, B.C. (CP) — Jessie James rode into this frontier outpost in 1941 as a 25-year-old nurse, married a gold miner and has been looking after the sick since the last doctor left in 1943.

She has delivered babies, seen frostbitten toes chopped off and doesn't always keep regular hours at the Red Cross hospital because everyone in town knows where she lives.

During a conversation one night this spring, an Indian girl fetched Mrs. James to look after a boy who had cut his head on the nearby reserve.

Despite all that, she doesn't think her stories would be interesting to anyone else.

"I'm not really one of the oldtimers," says Mrs. James, now 62. "I can't see what's so interesting about all this."

She has a point. Atlin, like any other once-booming goldrush camp turned almost ghost town, has its share of old sourdoughs who can spin tales late into a northern night. But the fact that there are so many other characters in town doesn't detract from the bit of frontier history that Mrs. James has to tell.

Gold fever first hit Atlin, just south of the Yukon border, in 1898, the year after Fritz Miller and Kenny McLaren came in by dog team from Juneau, Alaska and found the metal in nearby Pine Creek.

That news attracted hundreds of prospectors who hadn't struck it rich in the Klondike and hoped to do so at Discovery, the original goldrush settlement which now is no more than half a dozen tumbledown buildings several miles down the road from here.

Atlin, on the shores of ice-blue Atlin Lake, became Discovery's supply centre, the end of a fragile supply system that included dog teams, horses, sleighs and lake boats.

By the time Mrs. James, born in Trail, B.C., flew in on a chartered plane in 1941, attracted by the offer of $75 a month plus room and board — $25 a month more than she had been making at St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver — the boom was long over.

The population dropped even lower, to about 100, as most of the eligible men went off to fight in the war.

"Gold mining had no priority," Mrs. James says. "You could apply to the labor board for miners and they'd send in kids, pink-cheeked children. They were no more miners than I was."

The hospital closed and the only doctor left town in 1943, but Mrs. James, who had by then married Atlin native and gold miner Cyril James, stayed on. Her husband, who she said "was one of the few who could really describe Atlin in the early days," died last year.

While raising their three children, Mrs. James filled in occasionally as a string of public health nurses came and went. She went back to full-time nursing in 1961, seven years after the Red Cross opened its outpost hospital.

"They hired me because I was a permanent resident and wouldn't be coming for a year and then leaving."

Since then, she has been the town's only nurse, attending to all but the most serious cases which she sends to Whitehorse, now only two hours away by road. Such relatively easy access to modern facilities has eased the pressure.

"There's always an out — if he's that sick, he can go to Whitehorse. And you can always pick up a phone and call the doctor."

It also makes her discourage people from having babies here.

"I don't see the point in it," she says. "People go over to Whitehorse to shop, to bank, to see a show, or just for a drive.

However, many of the new pioneers who have moved into the area in the last 10 years, pushing its population back up to about 450, came to a faster-paced life that goes with new modern facilities.

Mrs. James sees no objections to modernization.

"Some of the newcomers seem to think there's romance in the old life, but I don't think there's any romance in packing water and using gasoline lamps."

She says that their lifestyles make her job easier.

"The general health of the people here is good. It must be the fresh air and the clean water."

They missed the senoritas

Otherwise, Mexican teens enjoyed it in Atlin

ATLIN (CP) — There was more than a metre of snow in Atlin last winter, but that didn't bother exchange students Gerald Ortiz and Eric Vallebueno who had only ever seen the fluffy, white stuff a couple of times before in the mountains around their Mexican homes.

They weren't homesick for warm, winter sunshine or for spicy Mexican cuisine.

In fact, the only thing the two 16-year-olds missed during their eight-month stay in this old goldrush town along the British Columbia-Yukon border was the senoritas.

"There are no girls here," said Gerald, "that's why we want to go back there."

There were only two girls in their Grade 9 class, the highest level at the only school here.

And the two boys didn't fare too well the first time they tried to entice two Grade 7 girls for a night on the town, which in Atlin would probably have been a Coke at the general store.

While Gerald and Eric argued about who would make the first move, their female prey fled out the back door of the school.

"I guess they were scared of us," Gerald offered, "but why I don't know."

Gerald, from Campeche on the Yucatan Peninsula, knew some English before he came here, but Eric, who lives in Durango in northern Mexico, knew none. After applying for the exchange through the International Institute in Buffalo, N.Y., both boys were told they'd go to Atlin.

"I tried to find it on the map but I couldn't," said Eric.

Gerald went to the Canadian Embassy in Mexico City to find out what he could about his destination.

"They told me it was far away, a little place, and not much good in winter. They told me 'you will miss people because there aren't many here.' "

The embassy might have been right about the pace of life in this once-booming town which only 300 people now call home, but both boys enjoyed the uniqueness of their first Canadian winter. They skated, skidooed, ice-fished and Gerald even won a trophy in a curling bonspiel.

In return, they taught the families they stayed with a few words of Spanish and whipped up a Mother's Day feast of tacos, enchiladas, beans and an almond-and-egg dessert using ingredients they bought during a spring-vacation visit to Vancouver.

Legion disease hits 14

TORONTO (CP) — Four more cases of legionnaires disease have been confirmed in Toronto, bringing to 14 the number of cases discovered since the beginning of August.

A 61-year-old man is responding well in hospital, a ministry of health spokesman, Diane Rimstead, said Tuesday.

A 42-year-old man has recovered from the lung disease and has been released from hospital.

A 79-year-old man was discharged from hospital and is recovering at home.

A 58-year-old man, recovered from the disease, was released from hospital Aug. 11.

Love those 'cots' — they're versatile

Kay Spicer

The new, full crop of our apricots is here for all of us to enjoy fresh. So often we use only the dried fruit and may miss the real pleasure of eating fresh apricots.

In compotes, cobblers, pies and parfaits, even pickles, this golden little fruit is wonderful.

Tuck apricots into a picnic basket; star them in a beautiful dish as a gorgeous centrepiece (then use them later as dessert served with almond-flavored liqueur or apricot brandy) or cut them in half, remove the pits and serve them in entrees, salads and desserts.

EASY APRICOT LETTUCE TOSS
(Makes 4 servings)

250 mL apricots, cut into quarters
1 banana, sliced
500 mL shredded lettuce
125 mL walnuts, chopped
125 mL apricot yogurt dressing

Toss together lightly until all ingredients are coated.

APRICOT YOGURT DRESSING

1 can (284 mL) apricot nectar
15 mL cornstarch
15 mL honey
5 mL grated orange peel
125 mL plain yogurt

Combine enough nectar and cornstarch to make a paste in saucepan. Stir in remaining nectar, honey and orange peel. Cook over medium heat until thickened and bubbly. Reduce heat and continue cooking 1 minute more. Cool. Stir in yogurt and chill until serving time.

Frosty Apricot Ring
(Makes 8 servings)

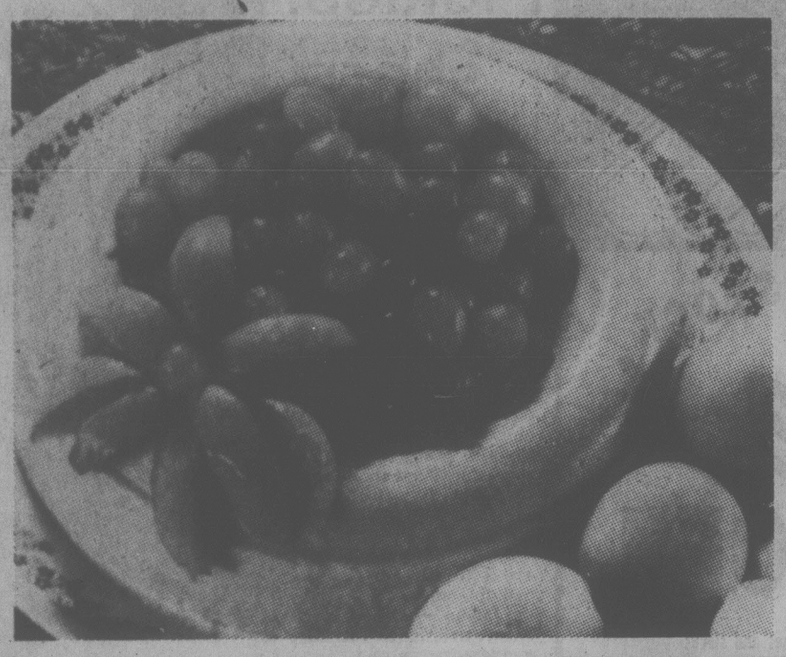
500 mL fresh apricots, pitted
1 package (85 g) apricot jelly powder
125 mL hot water
250 mL whipping cream
125 mL sugar
5 vanilla

Puree apricots in blender or food processor, or mash with a potato masher to a pulp. Dissolve jelly powder in hot water; add to apricots. Chill 20 minutes until cool and slightly thickened. Whip the cream using chilled bowl and beaters until thick; add sugar and vanilla. Fold into apricot purte. Pour into 1 L ring mould. Freeze. Unmould on platter. Fill centre with fresh green grapes. Garnish with flower made from an apricot.

BEEF AND APRICOT STIR FRY
(Makes 6 servings)

0.45 kg. round steak (1 pound)
30 mL dry sherry
30 mL soy sauce
50 mL vegetable oil
2 garlic cloves, crushed
15 mL cooking oil
1 package (198 g) frozen snow peas
500 mL quartered fresh apricots
45 mL soy sauce
5 mL sugar

Cut meat into thin strips. Sprinkle with sherry and soy sauce. Mix with cornstarch. Set wok over high heat 30 seconds. Pour in oil. Swirl garlic cloves in oil add beef and stir fry until color has changed. Remove to bowl. Add 15 mL oil (if using teflon coated wok omit). Add snow peas. Stir fry until tender crisp, about one minute. Return beef to wok. Add apricots. Sprinkle with 45 mL soy suuce and sugar. Stir fry one minute.



Don't overcook corn

When cooking fresh corn, drop the cobs into boiling water and let the water return to simmer. Then, turn off the heat, cover and let poach five to eight minutes. While most vegetables become softer with longer cooking, corn only becomes firmer and tougher.

Heady world of espresso

NEW YORK — (NYT) The world of espresso is full of impostors. What many restaurants bill as espresso is actually filter coffee made from dark-roasted, espresso-type beans. And what many home espresso machines spew out is a brew totally unrelated to the distinctively dark, rich and foamy drink known as espresso.

When properly brewed — fresh, and one tiny cup at a time — espresso fills the air with the aroma of just-roasted coffee beans. The perfect cup is the color of semisweet chocolate, thinly layered with rich foam — a sign the brew was freshly expressed. Touched to the lips, espresso is smooth, creamy, almost as thick as syrup. It should be steamy, but not boiling, robust with a bittersweet bite, prepared double the strength of regular coffee. Espresso is served in demitasse cups, with a touch of sugar, and, if desired, a twist of lemon peel, but never with cream.

Espresso is produced by a combination of steam and boiling water, forced under pressure through finely ground coffee, packed tightly into filters holding just enough grounds for a single cup. A special machine with a heating chamber, spigot and quickly detachable filter holder is essential for distilling the essence of the coffee bean.

Preparing espresso is uncomplicated, but the ritual requires practice. Fresh water and freshly roasted, dark and oily beans are a must. Grinding is an art in itself. Too fine and the water is slowed down. Too coarse and the liquid gushes through, producing a watery potion. Just right — some say grind to a fine grit, not a dust — and out comes a special brew, in steady drips, not a stream.

Because espresso is brewed quickly and individually, it tastes cleaner and fresher than coffee prepared by the filter, percolator or drip method. It is also more aromatic, for the pressure of the steam and boiling water force more oils into the brew. True espresso is never bitter, for bitterness results when the coffee and the hot water spend too much time together.

Hungry? Raid the backyard

AURORA, Colo. (UPI) — Botanist Exie White says most homeowners are wasting a lot of good things just sitting out in their yards — like pigweed, Russian thistle, milkweed and even plain grass.

Miss White, a teacher at Colorado Women's College, puts all of those items to good use. She uses them for food and serves them to guests in a variety of dishes.

Her suburban yard is filled with such edibles as rabbit bush, Plains daisies, pussy toes, mules ears, milkweed and day lillies. She said the bluegrass on her lawn also can be made into a delicious green drink.

"Grass is tremendous food," she explained. "Cows live on it. I think the drink is annoying to most people because it tastes like grass smells."

A diner who visits her home is likely to find her table filled with such delicacies as purselane pickles, pigweed in cheese sauce, Russian thistle in a cream sauce and milkweed and pods in tempura.

For the past five years, Miss White has been teaching students about the edible wilds. She said she began her college course because "people were going into the mountains to eat, but they didn't know how dangerous some of the weeds were."

Boys dropping out

TORONTO (CP) — Boys have been dropping out of gymnastics clubs in Toronto over the last five years and the Ontario Gymnastics Federation is trying to learn why. "There is a declining enrolment of boys in gymnastics programs in the Metro area," says Lillian Babineau of the federation. "It seems that hockey has a stranglehold."

Dread to spread? The confusion grows

MONTREAL (CP) — What's all this olio about oleo?

Consumers trying to keep healthy seem to have a hard time trying to keep up.

First, consumers are told to spread sandwiches with margarine because it is healthier than butter. But butter producers now are back with an ad campaign suggesting that natural food is more healthful than a man-made product.

And nutrition research indicates neither assertion is accurate.

Researchers have found that more than half the brands of margarine sold in Canada contain between 25 and 40 per cent of the type of fat to be avoided by those who worried about heart disease, and several claims made about butter by the dairy producers are either false or questionable.

A new study of margarine, funded by the Canadian Dairy Commission, examined 95 Canadian hard and soft samples and found that 82 brands contained more than 10 per cent of "trans-unsaturated" fatty acids.

These substances are equivalent, as far as cholesterol levels are concerned, to the poly-saturated fats which should be avoided.

Almost half the margarine samples studied contained less than 10 per cent of the more beneficial poly-unsaturated fats and 25 samples had less than five per cent of these.

The study also questions the hydrogenation process by which margarine manufacturers add hydrogen to vegetable oil to harden it and lengthen its shelf life.

The method reduces levels of the more beneficial poly-unsaturated fatty acids contained in vegetable oils and creates trans-unsaturated fats.

Federal food scientist and study director Madhu Sahasrabudhe recommends that margarine manufacturers switch from the hydrogenation process to one of "interesterification," a method of solidifying oil by rearranging the fatty acids.

But manufacturers asked about the new findings said research has not yet proven that interesterification is a better method and agreed that for a large plant to switch procedures would cost more than $60 million during a 25-year period.

One scientist employed by a major manufacturer said the bulk of oil and margarine research is being done in Europe and is "totally confusing."

Meanwhile, the Dairy Bureau of Canada has just launched an advertising campaign to preach "the truth about butter."

Montreal nutritionist Louise Lambert-Lagace objected to the claim that "butter is not hydrogenated."

"There is a certain amount of bio-hydrogenation that happens naturally in butter fat," she said, pointing to a recent University of Maryland study that showed the proportion of trans-unsaturated fats in butter ranges from eight to two per cent.

She also disputed the claim that there is no proven link between butter and heart disease.

"There is a proven link between saturated fats and cholesterol in vulnerable people — people with a family history of cardiovascular disease," she said.

The best margarine for health's sake, the dietician said, is a corn oil variety since totals of hydrogenated oil are lower in these brands than in varieties made with soya or other vegetable oils, and are more likely to be listed on their labels.

And, she said, the amount of hydrogenated oil is more important for people concerned about their health than the more prominently displayed information about poly-unsaturated and saturated fat content.

Pickles: sharp flavor plus crunch

The sharp flavor and crunch of pickles makes them a delicious companion to sandwiches and salads. Though many fruits and vegetables lend themselves to pickling, cucumber pickles are by far the most popular.

Bread and Butter Pickles are a traditional favorite and this recipe is a spicy variation — sliced white onions are added for taste and texture contrast.

Pickling is one area of canning where it is essential to use top-quality ingredients and follow proper procedures carefully. Pure granulated or pickling salt should be used. Un-iodized salt is acceptable but contains an anti-caking agent that may make the brine cloudy. Because it may darken pickles, iodized salt is not recommended for making pickles.

As for equipment, a large saucepot of stainless steel, glass-ceramic or unchipped enamelware is best. Utensils of zinc, iron, brass, copper or galvanized metal should not be used.

Zesty Bread and Butter Pickles are good enough to win a blue ribbon

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES

16-20 medium-sized cucumbers, sliced
10 small onions, sliced
⅓ cup canning salt
3 cups white vinegar
2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons mustard seed
2 teaspoons turmeric
2 teaspoons celery seed
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon peppercorns

Wash cucumbers; trim ends. Cut into slices ¼-inch thick, making about 4½ quarts. Slice onions. Combine cucumbers and onions in a large glass or stanless steel bowl. Layer with canning salt. Cover with ice cubes and let stand 1½ hours. Drain liquid and rinse.

Prepare home canning jars and lids according to manufacturer's instructions. Combine vinegar, sugar, mustard seed, turmeric, celery seed, ginger and peppercorns in a large stainless steel, glass-ceramic or unchipped enamel saucepot. Bring to boil. Add drained cucumbers and onions to syrup. Bring back to boiling.

Pack hot cucumber mixture into hot 1½-pint size jars leaving ¼-inch head space. Remove air bubbles with a non-metallic spatula. Place lid on clean jar rim and screw band down evenly and firmly. Process 10 minutes in a boiling water bath canner. Yield: five 1½ pints.

The sweet trap of 'lusciousness'

Hilda Beastall

Reading most of today's recipes using fresh Canadian fruits in season, one has to wonder at the vast quantities of sugar listed as being needed to make a "luscious" dessert. Usually topped with sweetened whipped cream or equally sweet ice cream, I have totalled as much as two cups of sugar exclusive of topping, in a dessert given as serving six persons.

This works out at exactly one-third cup of sugar in each serving plus the sugar in the topping, plus the natural fruit sugars in the fruit. No wonder nutritionists are alarmed at our per capita consumption of 100 to 110 pounds of sugar each year.

With fresh peaches, dessert plums, logans, and blackberries available locally, we can prepare wonderful desserts worthy of being a meal in themselves. Indeed any one of the recipes in today's column need only a green salad and a hunk of cheese or a hard boiled egg to satisfy almost any healthy appetite as a complete meal.

Fruit Savarin is just an extra good yeast bread made in a ring mould or tube pan so that the dessert is more decorative.

The same recipe baked in a 6 by 10-inch baking pan and cut into squares with the fruit over the top serves the same purpose.

Consider the Fruit Braid in the same way. But when we homemakers want to feel creative and successful there is satisfaction in fashioning an elegant dessert which tastes as good as it looks.

Braided breads are in this category — continental European homemakers are known for their Braided Breads which they beat up and fashion for all events worthy of a celebration.

So let us in British Columbia celebrate the season of fresh fruits by making a Fruit Braid, and a Fruit Savarin in a tube-pan or regular pan.

With your metric measuring cup and measuring spoons, let us put together a Fruit Savarin, making the light textured bread first.

FRUIT SAVARIN

50 mL warm water
5 mL sugar
15 mL granular yeast (1 pkt)
50 mL hot water
15 mL sugar
2 mL salt
45 mL soft margarine
2 small eggs
250 mL unbleached flour
200 mL wholewheat flour
15 mL wheat germ
125 mL skim milk powder
500 mL prepared fresh fruit

Measure warm water into large warm bowl; add 5 mL sugar and stir. Sprinkle yeast on surface and let stand 10 minutes.

In small bowl pour hot water over margarine; add salt and 15 mL sugar. Stir to dissolve. Beat in the eggs.

When egg mixture is same temperature as yeast mixture, add to yeast mixture together with 1 cup flour. Beat all together with wood spoon until smooth.

Stir in remainder of dry ingredients, beating as well as possible with wood spoon. Dough will be sticky but elastic.

Spoon into well greased and floured 9-inch ring mould or tube pan (or a 6 by 10-inch pan).

Put pan into cold oven; turn heat to about 90 deg. F and leave to rise to about half height. Then turn off heat, letting pan remain in warm oven to continue rising to double the original bulk, or to the rim of the mould.

Now turn heat up to 400 deg. F to stop the rising action and to commence baking. At this point, cover with foil loosely to prevent scorching. After 10 minutes, turn heat down to normal baking temperature, removing foil cover and baking for about 20 minutes.

NOTE on preparing fruit: Remove stones or pits from fruits requiring this, and skin peaches or apricots. Use fresh lemon juice squeezed over all cut fruits to prevent loss of vitamins and discoloring. Keep one cup of the chosen fruit whole (berries) or in slices (peaches, apricots) to fill center of baked Savarin.

Mash remaining cup of fruit with 15 mL sugar (or honey) and set it away for spreading over the baked Savarin. Keep both lots of fruit covered, in refrigerator.

When Savarin is an even light brown, remove from oven and let cool in pan for 10 minutes. Remove upside down to large plate and prick all over bottom to allow some fruit juice to soak in. While still warm, spoon mashed fruit over surface, allowing juice to soak in.

Fill center with the whole berries or sliced fruits. Just before serving heap thick homemade low-fat yogurt on top.

Serves 8 to 10 wedges.

To Make Fruit Braid: use same recipe as for above Savarin - EXCEPT one egg (in place of two), and use more unbleached flour if needed to produce the ball of dough capable of being rolled out on a lightly floured board.

Roll out into a rectangle about 8 by 14 inches.

Lift carefully to greased cookie sheet. Spread with the following fruit mixture down the middle of rectangle.

Fruit Filling: 375 mL chopped fresh peaches or apricots
5 mL lemon juice
15 mL brown sugar

Combine ingredients and cook gently in pan to a smooth pulp, about 15 minutes. If still juicy, add a little flour to thicken slightly. Cook for another minute until thickened. Cool a little before use.

After spreading down the middle of the dough on the cookie sheet, slit the dough each side of fruit with clean kitchen scissors, for an inch or so, alternating from side to side.

This results in the dough rising at the sits to almost cover the fruit filling, and creates the braided effect.

Use same procedure as for raising and baking Savarin (above) beginning at "Put pan into cold oven" and ending with "baking for about 20 minutes".

Remove Braid from cookie sheet and cool on wire rack. You will find the dough has risen and baked around the filling without completely covering the fruit.

These two — Savarin and Braid with the fruits may be considered as coffee cakes, for school lunches, at home, or when ever a filling and nutritious dessert is needed instead of the fruit alone.

FOOD QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Only for heavyweights

Q. I bought a few pans and skillets made of the Silverstone finish about a year ago. After using them heavily since then, I can say that they do last longer and perform better than my old non-stick cookware. I would like to have some baking pans made with this new finish. However, I have not seen any bakeware (cookie sheets, jellyroll pans or layer cake pans) that is made with Silverstone. Can you please find out why?

A. Silverstone, a non-stick finish formulated by DuPont, was developed for heavy-gauge aluminum cookware. It has not been applied to bakeware because most aluminum baking pans are not made of sufficiently heavy gauge to utilize this new finish. Bakeware does not require heavy gauge materials that withstand the hard use and high temperatures that stove-top utensils must withstand.

Q. If you want to substitute unsweetened chocolate squares for semi-sweet chocolate chips, how much unsweetened chocolate and how much sugar would you need?

A. For every cup (6-ounce package) of semi-sweet chocolate pieces, substitute 2 (1-ounce) squares unsweetened (baking) chocolate, 7 tablespoons sugar and 2 tablespoons shortening.

Q. I've got a box of powdered non-fat milk that has been stored too long. Does it lose any protein value on long storage?

A. No. The protein value will remain the same no matter how long you store non-fat dry milk, but you will find that the taste will be affected.

Q. I am looking for a recipe for a coldpack pickle that does not require processing. However refrigeration is necessary for this pickle to maintain shelf life. Can you please print one?

A. The Sunset Book on Home Canning (cost: $2.95) has the following recipe for Fresh Refrigerator Pickles. These paper-thin, mildly sweet pickles require no canning and stay very crunchy up to about three weeks in the refrigerator.

FRESH REFRIGERATOR PICKLES

2 unpeeled English or Armenian cucumbers or 3 large regular cucumbers (each about 1 to 1½ inches in diameter)
1 medium green pepper, finely chopped
1 medium onion, finely chopped
1 tablespoon salt
2 teaspoons celery seeds
¾ cup sugar
½ cup white vinegar

Cut cucumbers into slices about 1/16th of an inch thick. In bowl combine cucumbers with green pepper and onion. Sprinkle with salt and celery seeds. Stir gently and let stand about 1 hour.

Combine sugar and white vinegar and stir to dissolve sugar. Pour over vegetables and stir to blend. Cover and refrigerate. Makes about 5 cups.

Q. What is silverside roast?

A. It is a boneless bottom round roast. It was so named because of the silvery membrance covering the side of the muscle next to the sirloin tip.

You and Your Contented Baby is a fine 31-page booklet that is offered free by Carnation Company. The booklet is intended as a supplement to the more specific advice that your own doctor can provide. Only the most widely accepted methods of prenatal and infant care have been included in ths booklet.

A well-balanced diet is important to anyone, but it is of paramount importance to an expectant mother. Her diet should contain a high percentage of protective food: proteins, vitamins, and minerals. Appropriate foods and suggested meals are charted for both expectant and nursing mothers on page eight of the booklet.

There are also long lists of boys' and girls' names, a rundown of the clothing that baby will need, and an analysis of bottle feeding versus freeding. If you're having a child, or looking forward to having a child, this is one booklet that you shouldn't miss out on. Write: Carnation Inc., Aylmer (West), Ontario, N5H 2S6.

Diet fiends are flirting with a well-known killer

NUTRITION MATTERS
Dr. Elizabeth Bright-See and Jane Hope

"I'm frightened of becoming overweight.

"I'm hungry but I don't eat.

"I go on eating binges and can't stop.

"I feel guilty when I eat.

"I won't eat certain foods that I think are high in sugar.

"I feel food controls my life.

"I can't seem to concentrate and I'm not sleeping well.

If you have a friend, relative — or are parents of a child — who makes statements similar to those, chances are he or she is well on the way to becoming an "anorexia nervosa" victim.

Anorexia nervosa isn't a new problem but the increased incidence of this potentially killer disease is perhaps due to our obsession with weight.

It's interesting that the large proportion of truly weight-conscious individuals simply don't need to lose weight. There are even increasing numbers of normal weight — even underweight — people who yearn to be even slimmer than they are now.

Anorexia nervosa, an exaggerated fear of eating and of weight gain, is an extreme condition. It can happen to either sex at any age. But the majority of cases involve adolescent girls. They often think that boys won't like them unless they're super slim. It's estimated that one in every 100 adolescent females suffer from this serious problem. It's rare in males but it does happen.

Why is there such great concern and why the need for early detection? Because the death rate of its victims is high — as high as 15 to 20 per cent.

This increasing frequency and potential danger makes it important for parents, teachers and friends to be on the lookout for early warning signals.

Anorexia nervosa often begins by a girl who's just slightly overweight starting to diet because of comments made about her size by family and friends. She'll decide to lose "just a couple of pounds" and will cut out the foods such as candies, ice cream, milkshakes — mainly carbohydrates. When the few pounds are lost, she still thinks she's overweight and will increase her avoidance of foods. The problems begin when she simply refuses to eat anything but very tiny amounts. Comments such as "I've already eaten at a friend's house and don't want dinner" or under-the-table feeding of the dog become common.

How can you tell if your child or friend is an anorexic?

Watch for the following:

— a drastic weight loss (about 25 to 30 per cent of body weight), when her weight was almost normal at the beginning of the loss.

— an overwhelming obsession with nutrition and fad diets. (Only eating yogurt and lettuce, for example.)

— a sudden interest in food preparation and clean-up but never eating anything that she has prepared. Often, anorexics will read cookbooks by the hour but never eat.

— going on huge eating binges, gorging dozens of donuts or numerous ice cream cones following immediately by self-induced vomiting. Excessive use of laxatives is common (a life-threatening problem on its own as the body's electrolyte balance is upset).

— withdrawal from social contacts in order to prevent any control from family or friends.

— a delay in the beginning of menstruation, or if this has begun, it may stop completely.

— a noticeable mood swing or deep depression.

— a delusion about their appearance. No matter how thin the anorexics become, they still see themselves as being permanently fat.

— an obession with strenuous exercise. One anorexic university student runs 10 miles back and forth to school each day.

— endless studying and mountains of homework in an attempt to gain good grades.

— difficulty in concentrating, not able to sleep.

If you notice these symptoms (and parents of teenagers, particularly, should be on the lookout), insist that the child or adult consult a physician immediately.

Damage to the skeleton and to internal organs can be devastating if the problem isn't caught in time. Both medical and psychological treatment are required and moral support is mandatory at this time. Don't force the child or adult to eat. In extreme cases, hospitalization is needed for proper medical treatment and counselling.

Aspirin is aspirin, the rest is show biz

YOUR HEALTH
by L. L. Coleman, MD

The headaches for which I occasionally take aspirin are made worse by the bombardment of television commercials about special kinds of aspirin. "Super strength, double strength, extra strength!" That's all we hear. My head bounces from side to side like a ping-pong ball. What's this all about? — Mrs. R.R.

DEAR MRS. R.:

Aspirin is aspirin is aspirin (apologies to the poet, Gertrude Stein). All aspirin made by reliable manufacturers is the same. The wide disparity in the cost of aspirin must therefore be attributed to the packaging, advertising and overhead costs, not to the quality of the aspirin.

Aspirin, or salicylic acid, is universally accepted as a valuable and effective drug when used judiciously. There are some instances when the use of aspirin is not advised. People prone to peptic ulcers of the stomach or the duodenum should not take aspirin without medical advice. Those who are known to be allergic to the drug must avoid it. Aspirin is not commonly used postoperatively because it tends to increase the possibility of bleeding.

There is no such thing as "extra strength" or "super-strength" aspirin, in the sense that most people think of these expressions. Five grains of aspirin is the size of the average tablet of aspirin that we are all familiar with. Now, it stands to reason that if the manufacturer is going to increase the amount of aspirin in each tablet it will, of course, in that sense be "stronger" than five grains of aspirin.

But there is no intrinsic difference in the aspirin itself. In other words, you can take two ordinary five-grain aspirin tablets and get the same effect as taking a "super-strength" 10-grain tablet.

While on the subject of aspirin, I'd like to call attention to parents who sometimes tend to suggest to their children that good-tasting aspirin is "candy," in order to get them to willingly take it. Children implanted with such an idea are the ones who are later tempted to help themselves to such "candy," with dire results.

Dear Abby
by Abigail Van Buren

Just where is Beverly mornings from 6-8?

DEAR ABBY: About Beverly, the beautiful, meticulously groomed wife who arises at 3:45 every morning, spends two hours dressing and leaves at 6 a.m. for a 15-minute drive to her job which begins at 8 a.m.

You seem to have overlooked a piece of key information. Just where is Beverly between 6 a.m. and 8 a.m.? Many of us will not be able to sleep until we know. Also, what kind of shape is she in when she arrives at her job? Still sleek and perfectly groomed? Or perhaps with a few spangles missing here and there? Office clerks who start out for work two hours early every day are usually a pretty shifty bunch!

If you would like to put a gumshoe on this lady, many of us readers would be glad to chip in. — ARTHUR RYE

DEAR ARTHUR: Where Beverly goes for two hours before work every morning is anybody's guess. She could be doing anything from attending yoga class to meeting a lover who works the night shift.

I wondered, too. But since her husband apparently isn't curious, I say, "Never wise up a chump."

DEAR ABBY: I am in desperate need of your help. I am a 15-year-old boy, clean-cut and religious, but I am a child molester.

Every time I baby-sit, or am alone with a child from a year old to 8 years old, I just can't control myself.

I know I have a problem. Please tell me where I can go for help before I do something really terrible. I am almost at that point now.

I can't talk to my parents about this. — DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: You say you are religious. Could you talk to your clergyman about this? If not, please call your local mental health clinic and tell them you urgently need an appointment — that Abby told you to call.

I commend you for intelligently recognizing the seriousness of your problem, and courageously seeking help. Please write again and let me know how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago I was introduced to a man whose first name is Bruce. It was easy for me to remember because that's my first name, too.

Since meeting him I've run into him several times, and each time he has forgotten my name. I find this a little weird. If there is a hidden psychological explanation for his not remembering my name, what is it? — BRUCE

DEAR BRUCE: I suspect he doesn't want to be identified with you.

Beauty Now

Leave it to the French to think of using a magnet to deep-cleanse skin. The system, called MAGNEDERM, works like this: A cream containing pulverized iron is massaged into the skin: the iron adheres to excess sebum and dead skin cells; then a contour magnet is applied with a feather-soft movement, whisking away the special cream along with the impurities.
You'll be amazed at the velvet smooth sheen that can be seen and felt after just one MAGNEDERM treatment.

Discover the MAGNEDERM experience for yourself soon. In Victoria, only at the MARGO SKIN CARE STUDIO.

Human hair a good repellent

NEW YORK (AP) — Years ago, when spring came, Indians would cut their hair, grown long through the cold winter, and spread it on their vegetable patches to discourage animals from browsing there.

Today, both scientists and farmers are collecting human hair from beauty parlors and barber shops and putting it in net bags to hang from trees and shrubs. This to deter deer from feeding on the vegetation.

It works quite well, says Jay McAninch, wildlife biologist at the New York Botanical Garden, Millbrook. Testing has been under way thee since 1977.

The method, says McAninch, is inexpensive, the material readily available, non-toxic and completely bio-degradable.

What he wants to know is how long the hair will remain effective under various climatic conditions, and the best packaging techniques for best results. Rain washes away the hair oil, which is the key ingredient, and sunlight causes bleaching. The hair is not effective for more than one season.

McAninch says human hair will repeal deer up to about a metre away; that unwashed hair is better than washed; that short hair works better than long hair because it is cut closer to the head and thus has more of the oily sebum secreted on to the hair by the scalp's sebaceous glands.

The sebum is what keeps the deer away.

The biologist one day hopes to synthesize the secretion inexpensively and impregnate a substance, possibly felt, that will hold it and make it effective for a long period.

Men's hair works a bit better than women's because generally it has not been washed directly before being cut. Women's hair also may have been dyed or sprayed, lessening its effectiveness.

McAninch, 27, says much of the testing is in areas where there already is planted material and where deer herd for the winter.

Elephants across the alps

PARIS (AP) — A California philosopher, a former Parisian dancer and a 65-year-old U.S. businessman will ride two elephants across the Alps next month in a 10-day re-enactment of Hannibal's march against Rome 2,000 years ago.

"We've scouted the route and walked all of it," said Jack Wheeler, 35, a former philosophy professor from Los Angeles. "But to take an elephant is really an experience. To relive that history will be a great thrill."

Wheeler, author of a book called The Adventurous Guy, will cross the mountains between France and Italy with his fiancee, Las Vegas dancer Jacqueline Vial-King, 35, a former star at the Folies Bergere in Paris, and Sam Oschin, a friend and financial backer from California.

They plan to film their re-enactment of the crossing made by Hannibal, commander of the Carthaginian army in the Second Punic War against Rome in 218 BC. Hannibal managed to occupy much of the Italian peninsula between 217 and 203 BC, but never took Rome and eventually withdrew to Carthage, in northern Africa.

Electrical cause of crash

KINGSTON, WASH. (AP) — An electrical problem is responsible for Monday night's collision between the Washington state ferry Tillicum and the dock here, officials said Tuesday.

Service between Edmonds and Kingston has been halted, they said.

The accident badly damaged the dock's main support beam in this north Kitsap Peninsula town, and Kingston-Edmonds service will be discontinued until repairs are completed, said ferries spokesman Newel Hunter.

The Tillicum, with a capacity of 100 vehicles and 1,200 passengers, was shifted to join the two regular ferries on the parallel Seattle-Winslow run Tuesday to help make up for the loss of the more northern route, said Hunter.

The ferry was approaching the dock when an electrical part failed and the vessel was unable to reverse its engines, he said. Replacing the defective part would take three or four hours, he added.

Death Angel most wanted

VIENNA (UPI) — There's a new $50,000 price on Dr. Josef Mengele's head — making him number one on the list of most wanted Holocaust criminals.

Mengele was a young doctor of medicine when he joined the Nazi SS to serve as camp physician at the Auschwitz-Birkenau complex in Poland.

From his office above Crematorium Number One, SS Capt. Mengele allegedly directed the selection of men, women and children for the gas chambers and ran the camp's notorious genetics laboratory from May, 1943, to January, 1945.

According to Nazi Hunter Simon Wiesenthal, the man who tracked down Hitler's extermination chief Adolf Eichmann, Mengele personally selected 200,000 children and 200,000 adults for the gas chambers during 1944 alone.

Mengele, now 68, was dubbed the Angel of Death by camp inmates because it was allegedly he who decided who was strong enough for a life of slave labor and who was weak and should die.

The first thing prisoners saw as they were unloaded from the cattle cars at Auschwitz was Mengele, in high-polished boots and white gloves, standing on the railway platform. He would jerk his thumb right or left — indicating life or death — as the inmates filed past.

A total of 4 million people, most of them Jews, were gassed, shot, starved, tortured or worked to death at Auschwitz.

Auschwitz survivors testify that Mengele showed a particular interest in children and would often visit the children's barracks to measure their growth. He allegedly drove nails into the wall indicating the average height for each age group and any child who showed stunted growth was sent to the gas chambers.

As head of the Genetic Experimentation Laboratory, Mengele allegedly used thousands of children as guinea pigs in experiments aimed at fulfilling Hitler's dream of breeding a blond, blue-eyed race.

For example, he allegedly tested dozens of different chemicals on children in search of an injection that would change the color of eyes from brown to blue. Most of those children died agonizing deaths.

Records show that Mengele intended to make up for Germany's losses in the war and for the population decrease caused by the extermination camps by inducing twin births in "genetically fit" women. He allegedly ordered hundreds of sets of twins from all Nazi-occupied Europe sent to Auschwitz for laboratory observation and experimentation that few survived.

Mengele disappeared from Germany shortly after the defeat of the Nazi regime. He fled first to Argentina and then to Paraguay where he obtained citizenship on Nov. 27, 1959.

The West German government issued an arrest warrant for Mengele years ago but whenever West German authorities asked Paraguay to arrest and extradite Mengele, they were told his whereabouts were unknown.

The Paraguayan supreme court annulled that citizenship earlier this month on the grounds Mengele had forfeited his right to it by living outside the country for more than two years. In fact, Paraguay said Mengele had not been in the country since 1960.

From his Vienna Documentation Centre, Wiesenthal disputes this and says he has photographs of Mengele on an Asuncion street taken in 1973.

President Alfredo Stroessner has ruled Paraguay with dictatorial powers since 1954 and has been accused of harboring several Nazi war criminals. Eduard Roschmann, known as the butcher of Riga and wanted for the murder of 40,000 Jews in Latvia, died in an Asuncion, Paraguay, hospital in 1977.

According to Wiesenthal, only international pressure and a threatened cutoff of U.S. development aid caused Paraguay to act, leaving Mengele stateless.

Wiesenthal believes Mengele is still living somewhere in South America.

Wiesenthal said he decided to offer the $50,000 reward for Mengele's arrest because of the enormous public interest in bringing Mengele to justice — interest sparked by the television series Holocaust, by the film The Boys from Brazil and by concern for children sparked by the U.N. International Year of the Child.

Since the West Germans do not try in absentia, his case has never been brought before a court.

Mein Kampf now sold but few seem to care

BONN (AP) — West Germans can buy Mein Kampf for the first time in 34 years, but they've shown little interest in the book in which Adolf Hitler outlined his Nazi philosophy.

"From a book dealer's point of view, Nazi literature like Mein Kampf (My Struggle) and Rosenberg's writings remain without interest," said Gerhard Keller, manager of Bonn's Bouvier University Book Dealers.

Alfred Rosenberg, sentenced to death during the Nuremberg war crimes trials, was chief editor of the Nazi party organ Voelkischer Beobachter (People's Observor) and Hitler's anti-Jewish ideologist.

Sales of copies of Hitler's book printed before 1945 are legal under a recent Supreme Court ruling, but no new editions may be printed or sold in West Germany, with the exception of stores operated exclusively for U.S. and other foreign armed forces.

The Supreme Court reversed a lower court decision which fined a second-hand-book dealer $656 for selling two volumes of Mein Kampf.

Power-saver mired in law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The machine sat on a table in a crowded federal courtoom, a blue liquid gurgling through its plastic tubing.

Its inventor, Richard H. Baker, said the machine — or more precisely the bread-box-sized brain that controls it — could, when developed, save vast amounts of energy and thereby benefit the public.

But the machine is the center of a court battle among the Exxon Corp., Reliance Electric Co., a Cleveland-based electric motor manufacturer, and the Federal Trade Commission.

After a hearing Monday, U.S. District Judge John Pratt took the case under advisement, calling for submission of further materials Sept. 7.

Baker, who invented the machine, first at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and later as an Exxon consultant, calls it an "alternating current synthesizer."

Basically, it is a computer which controls the speed of an alternating current electric motor. There are 20 million large electric motors in U.S. industry, Baker said, and most of them run at a fixed speed because devices to control them are expensive and cumbersome.

When an electric motor pumps liquid through an industrial system of pipes, Baker said, the rate of flow usually is controlled by valves. That, he said, is like controlling the speed of a car by putting on the brakes with the engine at full throttle.

He illustrated by turning a valve. The blue liquid slowed, but the electric motor pumping it kept churning at full power.

Hitching up his computer device, Baker slowed the speed of the motor. The flow again abated, but this time the amount of electric power dropped by two-thirds.

"This is the beginning of a power processing industry like the data processing industry was some years ago."

Exxon says it wants to buy Reliance for $1.2 billion and develop this technology through that firm.

At Pratt's suggestion during an interim ruling Aug. 17, Exxon is willing to license any other firms to compete in developing and marketing the devices to ensure competition.

The FTC opposes both the merger and the suggestion that the judge might permit it with a licensing requirement.

FTC attorney Ernest Nagata said Exxon didn't get from MIT the right to sublicense, so "in effect it's trying to sell the Brooklyn Bridge."

Also, Nagata said, government studies show licensing does not result in new technology being marketed. He said Baker's invention isn't necessarily the last word in controlling electric motors to save energy, and that Exxon and Reliance should be separate competitors.

The merger question will take the courts years to decide. The immediate issue is what interim rules Pratt may set.

Edwin Zimmerman, representing Exxon, said the FTC would put Exxon in a "straightjacket."

Now he fills in giant statues

By WILLIAM S. MURPHY
Los Angeles Times

AUBURN, Calif. — When Dr. Kenneth Fox isn't fashioning dental bridges and filling cavities, he's busy sculpting giant statues in concrete.

Two legendary Amazons dominate the land adjoining his office. One is 42 feet high and weighs 120 tons. The other is 35 feet and weighs five tons less.

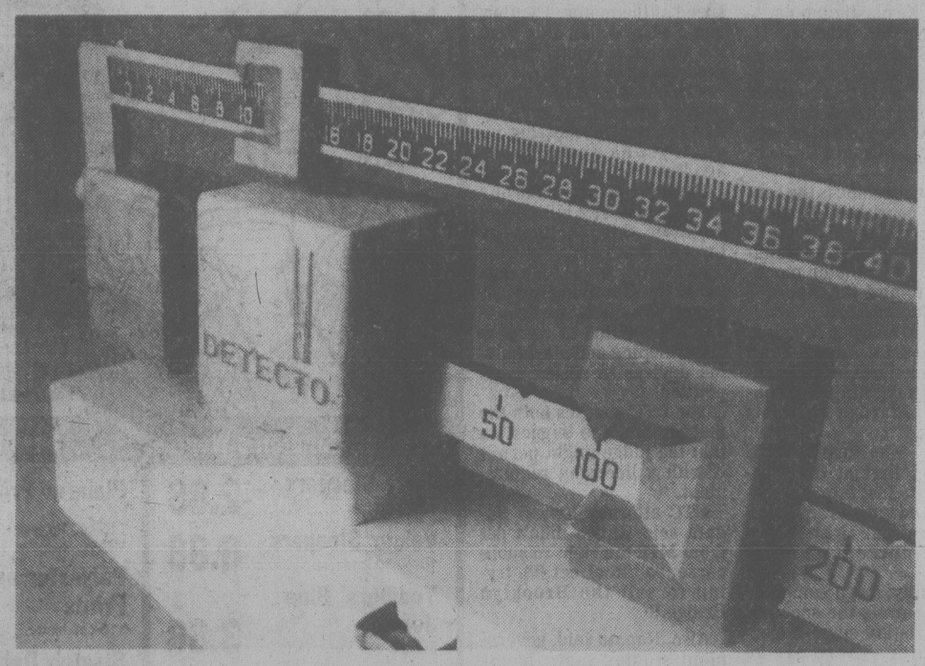
Fox begins his projects in an adjoining studio, sculpting his figures in smaller scale using terra cotta as the medium. After calculating the desired size, he begins work on the statue's steel framework using an acetylene torch to bend and weld the rods into the desired shape. The steel work requires approximately six months.

He is then ready to pour the concrete. That takes eight to 10 days. The concrete on the outside of the figure is sprayed on with a blowgun and finished with sculpting tools that Fox designs and makes.

Fox dislikes traditional bronze, calling such statues mere copies cast from a mold in a foundry. "I prefer to work from clay, Mother Earth," he said. "I like to feel it in my hands. Concrete is beautiful, and it will harden with time and last forever."

Fox had no formal art training. Graduating from the University of Southern California dental school after the Second World War, he established his practice in this picturesque community at the northern end of the Mother Lode. Appropriately, a 45-ton statue of Claude Chana, who discovered gold in Auburn in 1849, overlooks Highway 80, the route between Sacramento and Reno, Nev. It was one of Fox's commissions, paid for by the community.

"I always had the dream of becoming a sculptor," Fox recalled. "I told my wife, Georgia, that after our children were grown and I was 40, I would begin my second career. People didn't believe me."



Sadat book profit goes to houses in his home town

CAIRO (Reuter) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has handed over the deeds to 22 new houses, which he had paid for, to people in the village of his birth, the Middle East News Agency reported.

The money for the two-storey limestone houses in the Nile Delta village of Mit Abul Kom, 88 km north of here, came from about $1 million in royalties Sadat received from his autobiography In Search of Identity and his share of last year's Nobel Peace Prize, about $70,000.

The daredevil actor has swashed his final buckle

By YARDENA ARAR

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When a big-name star takes a tumble, his production company can end up suffering. Though there are still a few holdouts, the era of the daredevil actor is over.

James Garner does handle many of the chase scenes in The Rockford Files. And last year, Robert Conrad, 44, went eight rounds with an 18-year-old Golden Gloves champion for Duke, a miniseries in which Conrad portrayed an aging fighter.

But the days when Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Errol Flynn risked life and limb to perpetuate their swashbuckling images have vanished in the face of the prohibitive losses faced by production companies forced to halt shooting because of a disabled star.

"When this sort of thing happens the whole company goes down," says Brett Garwood, spokesman for Aaron Spelling Productions, which makes such action TV series as Charlie's Angels and Starsky and Hutch.

Insurance companies do a multi-million dollar business providing policies to protect against a star's absence, whether through accident or illness, industry officials say.

"Many of them (actors) say they do their own stunts, but in reality the stunts they do are very simple or they don't do any stunts," says one insurance company official who declined to be identified.

Yet even activities not considered stunts can lead to accidents. Such was the case with Erik Estrada, critically injured during the filming of the NBC series, CHiPs.

The 30-year-old actor, who plays officer Frank (Ponch) Poncherello of the California Highway Patrol, was riding a motorcycle on a studio lot at speeds described by MGM spokeswoman Gail Cottman as relatively slow.

"He just slipped on an oil slick in an alley," she said. Estrada's motorcycle hit a car carrying a camera crew to film the scene, and the actor broke his sternum, several ribs, his right wrist and suffered two slightly collapsed lungs.

The accident is to be incorporated into a segment of the CHiPs series, he said.

William Vanden Bossche, director of insurance for the entertainment conglomerate MCA, which owns Universal Studios and MCA Records, estimates that when a star is absent and the company is forced to cancel a day's shooting, costs run between $25,000 and $30,000.

Showbiz sisters share limelight

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Kim Richards, who costars as Ruthie in the Hello, Larry, series, is only 14 years old but she's been acting for more than 13 years.

Kim began her career at five months in a TV commercial and has been acting more or less steadily ever since. Her credits include 10 Disney films, among them No Deposit, No Return and Escape to Witch Mountain.

Her younger sister, Kyle, 10, is a regular on the Carter Country series. Older sister Kathy, 20, is an actress, too.

All three Richards girls live with their mother in a beautiful Bel Air home which justifiably qualifies as a mansion.

The five-bedroom dwelling includes a swimming pool and tennis court with broad lawns and neatly tended gardens. Her parents separated six years ago. Kim's father, a businessman, makes his home at the beach.

Kim and Kyle spend every weekend with him, flaking out on the sand and swimming.

Kim is driven to work during the week alternately by her mother and grandmother, who lives with the family. Mother and grandmother trade off, driving Kim one week and Kyle the next to their respective studios. As guardians they must remain on the set with the girls as prescribed by California law.

The day begins at 6 a.m. for Kim who rarely gets home before 8 p.m., taking out three hours for studies under the watchful eye of a studio tutor. Kim begrudges her studies, prefering to roller skate around Paramount Studios during her free hours.

She manages only about one day a year in a public school but receives high scholastic marks from her tutors on the set.

Kim and Kyle aren't bothered by sibling rivalry. Each has her own career, her own room and her own pets.

Unlike many teen-agers, Kim has no posters of rock stars on her walls. She's furnished her bedroom with a high antique bed and armoire and lacy chairs. There is, of course, the requisite stereo rig and TV set.

She dotes on disco music with a preference for Donna Summer and Diana Ross. Her weakness is junk food — pizza, hamburgers, spaghetti, candy and gum. The recent addition of braces to her teeth has cut down on her gum chewing.

Kim has five parakeets and a Mutt named Thumper at home. She also has a dog, another mutt who answers to Trouble, at her father's house, along with 14 cats.

Mrs. Richards doesn't allow Kim to date, but the youngster does go roller skating and to movies with a group of friends. She has a boyfriend, despite the restrictions, 17-year-old actor Lance Sloane.

In addition to junk food, Kim is addicted to clothes, especially gabardine pants, blue jeans, T-shirts and terrycloth beach dresses. She's happiest lying on the beach and around her pool in fancy bikinis.

Kim's not much of a cook, but she's learning. Almost every day she bakes a batch of brownies or a cake, although a family cook prepares most of the meals.

Almost all of Kim's earnings go into a trust fund which matures when she's 18. The young actress says she wants to be "sensible" about financial investments and won't touch her nest egg until she's 21.

Kim has no plans to attend college, choosing to concentrate on her acting career.

Her most pressing desire at the moment is to drive her own car, a spanking new white TransAm which rarely leaves the garage. She won't be able to get a driver's license for another year, the only glitch in an otherwise idyllic life for a young girl.

Britain to get 'passion pit'

LONDON (CP) — Just as anxious Canadian parents once dubbed them passion pits, taciturn Britons are not amused as plans progress for Britain's first drive-in theatre.

Canadians have enjoyed the drive-in for nearly 30 years and, although operating costs continue to climb, there are almost 300 across the country.

But dubious Britons have been earnestly knitting their eyebrows since the idea was first suggested here in 1960.

Now, 19 years later, architect David Haynes says he expects project approval for the first experimental drive-in cinema by the end of the year.

A Nottingham site has been chosen by Apollo Drive-In Cinemas, but the residents of Nottingham — and nearby Wolverhampton and Leicester — are less than keen.

Besides the late-night traffic that the cinema will generate, residents say the great silver screen will be visible from the main Nottingham Ring Road, distracting passing motorists and undoubtedly causing accidents.

But the main snag is a British Waterways Board objection that the access road bridge leading to the site is sub-standard.

But when the bridge is repaired, Haynes expects approval.

Britons, Haynes adds, have always been curious about drive-in movies.

Ferry hunt for nabbed pop stars

SASSARI, Sardinia (AP) — Police stepped up checks on ferries leaving for the mainland today in a hunt for two of Italy's leading pop singers, the 10th and 11th kidnap victims on Sardinia in two months.

The top police general, Carlo Alberto dalla Chiesa, toured the island inspecting kidnap-prone coastal areas housing holiday villas of Europe's wealthy.

Dalla Chiesa, who heads the government's anti-terrorist operations, also met with the father of pop singer Fabrizio de Andre, 39. The younger de Andre and his wife Dori Ghezzi, 31, a winner of the San) Remo song festival, disappeared from their vacation home in the latest abduction.

Police found the singer's car parked in the port of Olbia, where ferries depart for the mainland.

De Andre, and his wife, vanished from their villa in northern Sardinia between Monday evening and Tuesday morning, police said.

Police said they were notified of the couple's disappearance Tuesday morning by a maid who found their bedroom in disorder, with clothes strewn all over, pillows slashed and the telephone lines cut outside.

De Andre's 67-year-old father, Giuseppe, is a director-general of a leading sugar refinery in Italy.

An anonymous caller told an Italian news agency in Rome the singers were being held by a group called the Action Squad for the Counter Revolution in the Music World.

But police sources said they have never heard of the group, that the caller probably was an impostor and that the kidnappers of the pop singers most likely were gangsters after ransom.

Police also continued searching for British businessman Rolf Schild, his wife and 14-year-old daughter who disappeared Aug. 20 on their way back to their villa from a dinner party. Their burned-out car was found Saturday.

You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.
2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, but may only be used once in any one entry.
3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.
4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.
5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.
6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.
7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.
8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.
9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to the The Name Game will be final.

BRASS KNUCKLES, left, and a .22-calibre device that can be concealed in the palm of the hand have been placed on the national prohibited-weapons list, the federal justice department announced Tuesday. The SSS-1 Stinger, right, is a .22-calibre, single-shot weapon about eight centimetres in length.

Pioneer snaps Iapetus

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Pioneer 11, racing toward Saturn's misty rings, has transmitted its first pictures of Iapetus, one of the mysterious planet's outermost moons.

In the next few days, scientists at the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Centre hope the craft — speeding through space at 80,000 kilometres an hours (50,000 m.p.h.) — will transmit photographs of the ringed planet that surpass anything ever seen through an earth telescope.

Mission controllers say that if all goes as planned, the craft will complete its six-year, 3.2-billion-kilometre (two-billion-mile) journey by surveying the planet, its rings and eight of its 10 moons.

The chief worry now is that the spacecraft might be disabled if it smashes into cosmic debris.

However, the craft has already successfully weathered intense radiation storms.

U.S. economy to continue falling, new index shows

By LEE M. Cohn
Washington Star

WASHINGTON — Predictions that the U.S. economy will continue declining were supported by a government index released today, but the figures offered no clear clues to the severity of the recession.

The Commerce Department reported that its index of "leading indicators" — designed to help forecast economic movements — dropped 0.4 per cent in July following a decline of 0.3 per cent in June.

July marked the third decline in four months. Though weak, the index has been erratic this year, with scattered plus months.

The leading indicators were selected because they usually rise and fall several months in advance of broad movements in the economy. This makes the index useful as a forecasting tool, but it sometimes gives false signals.

Furthermore, the figures are often revised substantially. For example, a decline of only 0.1 per cent was reported for June a month ago, compared with the estimate of a 0.3 per cent drop in Wednesday's report.

Almost all analysts believe the economy is in a recession, conventionally defined as a decline of total output over two or more calendar quarters.

Output as measured by the gross national product declined at an annual rate of 2.4 per cent in the April-June quarter, and most economists predict two or three additional falling quarters.

The consensus is that the recession will be relatively mild, although some economists worry that the rise of interest rates engineered by the Federal Reserve to fight inflation may lead to a sharper drop than had been anticipated.

Most economic statistics indicate that the economic decline so far is mild. The fractional declines of the leading indicators can be interpreted as consistent with a mild recession, but the figures are not conclusive.

Four components of the index were negative and six were positive in July. After weighting, the total index declined.

The biggest factor in the decline was vendor performance — deliveries speeded up, indicating weaker demand for goods. Also on the negative side were contracts and orders for plants and equipment, new orders for goods and materials and building permits.

A decline in the job layoff rate was the biggest plus factor in the index. Also boosting the index were an increase in the average work week, a rise in liquid assets, acceleration in the trend of sensitive price increases (indicating strong demand), a rise in stock prices and faster growth of the money supply.

Crowds laud Mondale

XIAN, China (UPI) — Tens of thousands of people turned out today to greet Vice President Walter Mondale and his motorcade in the first visit of a U.S. official to this ancient city of 1.6 million in central China.

The vice president flew to Xian after wrapping up a series of political conferences in Peking and visiting its most famous tourist sites.

Residents of Xian lined the road 10 deep, smiling broadly, waving and clapping as Mondale's motorcade made a 30-minute drive from the airport to the guest house where he is staying.

Mondale, the first U.S. official to visit China's ancient capital, obviously relished the enthusiastic welcome.

"This has never happened to Walter Mondale, even in Minnesota," said one staff aide looking at the crowd. The reference was to Mondale's home state, where he is a popular political figure.

Earlier Mondale received a warm sendoff from Peking by Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping, who traveled to the guest house where Mondale was staying to ride with him to the airport. Chinese officials decribed this as a gesture of friendship on Deng's part and pointed out such action is usually reserved for heads of state.

Mondale said Deng told him he considered the Peking talks highly successful. The Chinese leader sent his regards to President Jimmy Carter, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, and National Security advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski. Deng also expressed "affection for the people of the United States," Mondale said.

Soviet author dies

NEW YORK (NYT) — Konstantin Simonov, 63, a prominent Soviet author known for his novels, poems and reportage of the Second World War died Tuesday, cause of death was not disclosed.

Simonov was the author of a wartime trilogy that began with The Living and the Dead, written in 1959, about the Red Army's retreat before the Nazis in 1941, and the battle for Moscow. He was best known abroad for an earlier novel, Days and Nights, an epic account of the battle of Stalingrad.

Dancer bribed, say Soviets

Times News Services

With ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova home safe, the Soviet Union turned its attention today to her husband, charging that Bolshoi star Alexandr Godunov's defection involved bribery and psychological stress, including slanderous rumors about his wife.

The Soviet newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta reported today that U.S. "provocateurs" baited Godunov with promises of "mountains of gold and a sea of whisky" and then started "dirty slanderous rumors" to make him leave his wife.

It was the first Soviet account of why the Bolshoi's 29-year-old star left a touring troupe in New York a week ago and obtained asylum in the United States.

Literaturnaya Gazeta did not say that the dancer defected. Instead it said he disappeared last Wednesday without saying a word about his plans to his wife, ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova.

A dispatch by the newspaper's New York correspondent, Iona Andronov, gave this version of the "bandit operation" that took Godunov away from his wife and the Bolshoi:

The "huge success" that the 150-member Bolshoi troupe scored at the start of its New York engagement on Aug. 1 forced U.S. "provocateurs in desperation to undertake an impudent political sabotage." They focused their efforts on Godunov, trying to make him leave the Bolshoi and stay in the United States.

"He was literally under siege everywhere by a whole team of instigators who promised him mountains of gold.

"That bait probably was not sufficient. And then these trappers of men's souls decided to strike at his psyche, planting in the American press dirty slanderous rumors about his wife in order to persuade the husband to leave her and to break him spiritually.

"Unfortunately, the main plan worked and on Aug. 23, Godunov disappeared without saying a word to his ballerina wife, Ludmila Vlasova."

The correspondent said Godunov is being "kept under guard in a secret place" and that his only statement to the press so far were the words: "I am in a state of complete shock and horror."

Literaturnaya Gazeta also published an interview today with Miss Vlasova, who returned home Tuesday after a 74-hour U.S.-Soviet standoff at Kennedy Airport.

In the interview she was quoted as saying:

"After the sudden disappearance of my husband, I immediately felt that I was in danger. Everywhere I walked, an automobile with unknown people in it followed me.

Indian band barricades halt 'white man's law'

HOGANSBURG, N.Y. (AP) — A group of Mohawk Indians has vowed to keep state police from entering the St. Regis Reservation to impose "white man's law" and arrest more than 20 indicted Indians.

For three weeks, Indians have manned barricades at the reservation to prevent the arrest of Indians indicted for the takeover of the reservation police department earlier this year.

The Indians claim "white man's law" has no power on the 30,000-acre reservation in northern New York.

About 50 state police arrested three Indians during a pre-dawn raid on the reservation Tuesday. After making the arrests, the police were held at a tense standoff for 11 hours, before retreating with no agreement reached between the two sides.

The Indians at the barricades said Tuesday they expect the state police to return. They said if state police insist on carrying out their warrants, they can expect "another Wounded Knee" — a 1973 siege at a South Dakota Sioux reservation in which three persons died.

As many as 150 Mohawks were camped out in teepees surrounding the home of chief Loran Thompson, one of the Indians facing arrest.

Civil rights lawyer William Kunstler called on Gov. Hugh Carey to avoid bloodshed by calling off the state police.

"The Mohawks will not give up without a fight and that fight will result in heavy casualities on both sides," Kunstler said, urging Carey to avert what he termed "the roll call of the dead."

Publishers blocked by Kremlin

By HERBERT MITGANG
New York Times

NEW YORK — On the eve of the second International Book Fair in Moscow, the Soviet Embassy in Washington has cancelled the visa of Robert L. Bernstein, chairman of Random House, and is delaying the visa of another major publisher, Lawrence Hughes, president of William Morrow and Company. Bernstein was scheduled to lead the Random House delegation to display, buy and sell books at the fair, next Tuesday to Sept. 10.

Some publishers in New York believe that there is a link between the cancellation of Bernstein's visa last Thursday and the defection the day before of Alexander Godunov, the Bolshoi Ballet dancer, and the subsequent Washington-Moscow confrontation over the delayed departure of his wife, the Bolshoi ballerina Ludmila Vlasova. It was pointed out that Orville H. Schell, lawyer for Gudunov, is vice-chairman of the American Helsinki Watch Committee, of which Bernstein is chairman.

Concerned publishers now packing to leave for the fair interpreted the cancellation as an implied threat to U.S. and other international exhibitors not to engage in activities in Moscow next week that might encourage Soviet writers and citizens active in human-rights concerns.

Hughes, who applied for his visa two months ago, was informed by a State Department spokesman Tuesday that he would receive it and by the Simoro travel agency, which processes Soviet visas in New York, that the delay was possibly caused by "bureaucracy."

One immediate effect of the Bernstein visa withdrawal is that Toni Morrison, the author of the novel Song of Solomon who is a part-time editor for Random House, has cancelled her plans to attend a four-day exchange between a group of American and Soviet writers at the Black Sea resort of Pitsunda next week.

Icon charges red herring?

By DAN FISHER
Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — Soviet authorities have arrested an author of popularized science books and articles for trading in stolen icons in what friends and relatives of the man said Tuesday is a pretext for a crackdown on an underground Jewish journal published here.

Igor Guberman, who had applied to emigrate to Israel late last year, was arrested after he had twice refused to inform for Soviet secret police about the journal, according to Viktor Brailovsky, a prominent Jewish "refusednik" here. Brailovsky is also one of the editors of the journal, called Jews in the U.S.S.R.

While Brailovsky and others have been interrogated and their apartments searched periodically since 1975, when the authorities first showed interest in the journal, Guberman's is the first arrest of anyone linked to the publication.

Guberman was first interrogated about his friendship with several editors of Jews in the U.S.S.R. in 1975. Soon after he applied to emigrate last December, he was twice asked to collaborate with the Soviet police.

When he refused, according to Brailovsky, the authorities pointed out that his hobby of collecting icons might make him vulnerable to criminal prosecution.

Guberman has a reputation among Russian Orthodox dissidents as well as Jews here of being an expert on icons.

Cambodian support vow

PEKING (Reuter) — China said today it will continue to support guerrilla forces in Cambodia as long as Vietnam has soldiers stationed there.

The blunt statement, aimed both at Hanoi and delegates to the non-aligned summit conference in Havana, was made by Vice-Foreign Minister Han Nianlong today as China and Vietnam held their 11th session of peace talks.

Han used the occasion to demonstrate Peking's unwavering support for the government of Pol Pot in advance of the Havana meeting. The Vietnamese-backed Hang Semrin government in Phnom Penh says it should represent Cambodia at the conference.

The Chinese vice-minister was quoted by the Xinhua (Hsinhua) news agency as saying that "no progress whatsoever" has been made at the talks, originally called to discuss ways of resuming relations following the Sino-Vietnamese border war earlier this year.

So he restated China's stand on the situation in Cambodia and Laos, barely mentioning Sino-Vietnamese relations.

"So long as the Vietnamese troops do not withdraw from Cambodia and the Vietnamese authorities do not stop their war of aggression against and military occupation of Cambodia, China will not cease its support to the Cambodian people's struggle against Vietnamese aggression," he said.

'Lop-sided aid hasn't curbed Asia starvation'

MANILA (Reuter) — Sweeping changes in development programs are urgently needed to keep millions of people in Asia from starving, according to a report by the Asian Development Bank.

The report also says that well-meaning aid programs during the last 10 years have done little or nothing to improve the lot of hundreds of millions of people, despite evident success in some areas.

The billions of dollars poured into Asia had in fact produced "lop-sided" progress, distributing benefits unevenly and often leaving those most badly off in a worse situation.

The report says that if the world remains on its present development course, the gap between the amount of food many people need for good nutrition and what they will be able to obtain is unlikely to close and that hundreds of millions of people will still be starving in 1985.

The report says it was not just money that is needed but money in the right places and used more efficiently.

But it had to be done without wrecking the ecology. The 90-page report says that some development during the last two decades, especially in forest areas, was destroying the balance of nature.

The survey, which acknowledges that in many areas there had been good progress, was presented to members of the bank several months ago but has only just been formally published.

It was released with the caution that it did not necessarily reflect the views of the 42-nation bank's board of management, some of whom were understood to disagree with aspects of the report or were concerned about the possible impact of its negative conclusions.

The report says that even where food production increased, people still suffered because they were not paid enough to buy proper food or did not know what was best to eat.

Many changes in emphasis were needed, including better grass-roots management and much more initiative from national governments, encouraged in the right directions by such institutions as the Asian Development Bank.

Food, drugs on way

BANGKOK (Reuter) — An international relief flight left today for Phnom Penh carrying 20 tons of medicine and food for famine-threatened Cambodia after a refuelling stop in this Thai capital.

The flight, whiich originated in Geneva and was organized jointly by the International Red Cross and the United Nations Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) also carried two officials from the organizations. Their task will be to complete negotiations on an international relief effort, reliable sources said.

Thousands of people in war-torn Cambodia are threatened with starvation in the next two months. Previous flights carrying aid have gone through Vietnam.

The sources said a large-scale relief operation will be needed to get about 700 tons of rice a day for several months into Cambodia.

They quoted recent travellers to Phnom Penh as saying that the small population of the capital was receiving only 2.2 pounds of rice each week a person, compared with the World Health Organization minimum required figure of about one pound of rice each day.

Mulder not guilty plea

PRETORIA (Reuter) — Former cabinet minister Connie Mulder pleaded not guilty Tuesday to charges of refusing to give evidence in South Africa's so-called slush funds scandal.

Mulder, a former information minister whose political career collapsed as details of the scandal became known, is accused of refusing to testify before a commission of inquiry headed by Judge Rudolph Erasmus.

The opening session of the Supreme Court hearing centred on a transcript of a conversation between Mulder and Erasmus on April 26 when the former minister was called to give evidence. Mulder had given evidence to the commission twice before.

The transcript showed that Erasmus told Mulder he was interested in hearing details of a secret attempt to buy The Washington Star and the alleged financing of U.S. publisher John McGoff with $10 million to buy The Sacramento Union newspaper.

Mulder told the commission that he had not been given access to documents he had requested and under the circumstances, he did not wish to give evidence.

East bloc faces inflation crisis

By MURRAY SEEGER
Los Angeles Times

BRUSSELS — Communist Eastern Europe is facing its most divisive economic conflict since the formation of its mutual trading bloc 30 years ago.

At the core of the dispute is the failure of the Soviet-dominated trading group known as Comecon to develop a common currency or system to exchange their national moneys.

The lack of "currency convertibility" or "interchangeability" caused Romania, the most independent-minded Comecon member, to stop selling gasoline Aug. 1 to travellers from neighboring Communist states unless they paid in Western or convertible cash.

After sharp diplomatic protests were levelled at Bucharest by its Comecon partners — and after thousands of tourists were stranded on Romanian roads — the government of President Nicolae Ceausescu lifted its current edict temporarily.

Bucharest has announced, however, that the order will go into effect permanently on Saturday unless individual countries negotiate satisfactory financial agreements before then to protect their citizens.

The Romanians' initiative brought out of the shadows a fundamental economic problem that the seven main Comecon members have been dodging for years.

Insisting that their planned economies were immune from such capitalist diseases as inflation, the Comecon members have established an awkward system of paying bills to each other and setting prices for the goods they offer in trade.

Now, Eastern Europe, including the Soviet Union, the dominating economy in Comecon, is suffering its worst dose of inflation since the economic bloc was formed in 1949.

The worldwide increase in oil prices has broken the propaganda facade that the Communist countries maintained to hide their inflation.

The moneys of the Comecon members — the Soviet ruble, Polish zloty, East German mark, Czechoslovak crown, Hungarian florint, Romanian leu and Bulgarian lev — cannot be traded freely either inside the Communist world or outside of it.

Exchange rates, set by national banks, are arbitrary, and have no relation to the value of the moneys for buying goods or an objective standard such as relationship to gold or hard currencies such as the dollar, British pound, West German mark or Swiss franc.

In fact, for the ruble — the currency that should be most valuable because of the size of the Soviet economy and the resources including oil and gold available to Moscow — there are several quotable values.

There is the official value stated each month by the Soviet state bank, which now stands above $1.50. Then there is a street, or black market, rate of 50 to 75 cents, and then a rate paid in open money markets such as Zurich and London of about 25 to 30 cents per ruble.

Because the ruble is not allowed to cross the Soviet border and take its chances on the open market, no one knows its true economic value. The same is true with the other six Comecon currencies.

Man dies in hot springs

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (AP) — A Gig Harbor man died at the Olympic Hot Springs when he "just quit breathing" after about an hour in steamy water, the National Park Service said.

Paul Heins, 47, had done some deep breathing exercise before entering the hot springs Sunday, said Steve Kernes, an investigator.

Kernes said the hyperventilating had combined with the hot water to imbalance Heins system.

Klan sailors transferred

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Three sailors identified by U.S. Navy officials as card-carrying members of the Ku Klux Klan have been transferred under a new policy to crackdown on shipboard racism.

The men were transferred from the supply ship Concorde in the wake of an order by the head of the Navy's Atlantic Fleet, Navy spokesmen said Tuesday.

Earlier this summer, Adm. Harry Train, four-star commander of the Atlantic Fleet, issued direct orders to commanding officers to "identify and eliminate" all racist organizations.

Train's orders to ship captains, made public Tuesday, said he "will not tolerate" shipboard behavior that advocates the superiority of one race over another.

He also suggested that "continued and flagrant disobedience to (his) orders might necessitate trial by courts-martial."

Members of Train's staff met last week with local officials of the NAACP, who had expressed concern about increased reports of growing KKK activity in the military.

Navy spokesmen said Tuesday the Concorde, currently in the Mediterranean, is the only ship known to be experiencing racial problems.

Spokesmen said a disagreement between white and black sailors broke out just before the Concorde left port. As a result, one KKK member requested a transfer to another ship, a second was sent back to Norfolk to await possible legal action, and the third was transferred to another ship in the Mediterranean.

Aircraft mystery solved

ANCHORAGE (Reuter) — A 21-year-old mystery surrounding the disappearance of an amphibious aircraft has been solved with the discovery of the wreckage and remains of all three persons aboard, aviation officials said Tuesday.

The plane, its fuselage burned, a wing torn off and the remains inside, was found by hikers on an eastern slope of the Brooks Range about 160 kilometres southeast of Anchorage.

The plane's pilot was Clarence Rhode, regional director of the fish and wildlife service. The passengers were his 21-year-old son Jack and another game management official, Stan Fredereickson.

They were headed for northeast Alaska.

Rabbi sent to prison

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — An Israeli military court Tuesday sentenced Rabbi Meir Kahane, head of the U.S.-based extremist Jewish Defence League, to three months imprisonment.

He was convicted of entering the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River in defiance of an order forbidding him to do so.

Kahane has appealed his sentence.

Before the judge

A 44-year-old man who was caught trying to break into a Colwood food store was given an extra year in prison by Judge Fred Giles in provincial court on Tuesday.

Donald Raymond Gray, who was at large from the Snowden minimum security prison camp near Campbell River since July 15, pleaded guilty to attempted breaking and entering.

Crown counsel Don Laughton said RCMP, alerted to a break-in in progress at the Warehouse Foods, 877 Goldstream, found Gray at the rear near a broken window and a ladder. When an officer asked if he worked there, Gray replied that he did, but when police moved towards him, he ran and was captured near Hockley Road hiding behind a car.

Gray has a lengthy criminal record dating back to 1953, including convictions for breaking and entering, auto theft, escape, possession of stolen property and drugs, being unlawfully at large and false pretences.

He was serving a 20-month sentence imposed Oct. 6, 1978, in Victoria for false pretences when he left Snowden camp July 15.

Gray said he was mentally and physically ill, complaining of chest pains for the past month and a half.

Giles handed Gray a one-year, consecutive sentence and recommended he be given medical and pyschiatric assistance.

Giles ruled that a 26-year-old man was fit to stand trial and instruct his lawyer.

Terry Harrison, no fixed address, is charged with breaking and entering a Whittier Avenue residence in Saanich on Aug. 19 and with the unlawful confinement, attempted rape and indecent assault of a young woman.

Judge William Ostler ordered a psychiatric examination last Friday and Harrison was returned to court Tuesday for a fitness hearing.

After he was declared fit, defence lawyer Scott Marshall elected trial by judge without jury and asked for the case to be remanded until Thursday to fix a preliminary hearing date.

Fined $250 each for drinking-driving were Owen Nat Inglis, 48, of 1120 Lone Home Road; Helen Margaret Mulcaster, 45, of 1483 Edgeware; and Bernice Jean Stubbings, 40, of 70 St. Giles.

Israeli leader coming

A woman who played a major part in organizing women volunteers to serve with the Israeli army will visit Victoria Sept. 6.

Mrs. Michal Modai, chairman of the Israel Women's International Zionist Organization (WIZO), is coming here in conjunction with annual Hadassah-WIZO events to be held in September.

More than 17,000 members in 55 centres across Canada will participate in promoting the goals of the organization.

Its aims include assistance to the needy population of Israel by sponsoring health, education and social welfare measures and the provision of special services for women and children.

It also works to extend the material and moral support of Canadian Jewish women to the people of Israel.

New director for B.C. lab

Microbiologist Dr. William Black has been named the new director of the health ministry's provincial laboratory in Vancouver.

Black succeeds Dr. E.J. Bowmer, who retires after 23 years as director of the centre of diagnostic services for communicable diseases.

The new director, originally from Glasgow, held teaching and research posts in Ontario before joining the B.C. health ministry last year.

Business booming for energy supermarkets

New York Times

NEW YORK — Energy supermarkets have arrived. Stocked with hundreds of products to create and conserve energy and staffed with people who can make sense of the bewildering array of energy equipment, building regulations and government programs, these new stores constitute a welcome milestone in the energy crisis.

"We sensed a void between the manufacturers who had the equipment and the people who needed it," said Nelson B. Robinson, owner of a nonprofit environmental bookstore and one of three partners in Cambridge Alternative Power Co., 299 Concord Avenue, Cambridge, Mass. (617-547-0400). "We want to be a one-stop energy shop, something like the L.L. Bean of alternative power equipment."

The Cambridge shop is one of at least four energy supermarkets that have sprung up in the Northeast. A 50-foot windmill marks the entrance to the store, located in a recycled 1923 gasoline station about a mile west of Harvard Square. Inside the brick building, there is more 19th-century charm than 20th-century gadgetry, which many visitors find reassuring. Displayed on the polished oak floor are about 20 European and American stoves, priced between $295 and $920. Some stoves are decorated with squirrels and other wildlife scenes, some open and become fireplaces, some burn wood or coal or both, but all are highly energy efficient.

"It's important to carry stoves because people just starting to look for alternative energy feel comfortable with them," said Bertram Johansson, another partner, whose career includes 34 years as an editor and writer and three years of owning his own stove shop. "We try to have working demonstration models of everything we sell — so people can come in and kick the tires," said Johansson.

To heat the store, the company uses a small Norwegian stove ($350) and a Danish multifuel boiler ($2,700) that uses wood, compressed sawdust pellets or coal and has a backup oil burner. Air-conditioning is achieved by two open doors, two ceiling fans ($75 each), two open skylights ($140 each) and a window quilt ($36) shielding the sun from one window. A solar energy system ($2,500) provides hot water and a small windmill ($625) provides electricity for one lamp; there are also kerosene lamps ($23 to $100). Music is provided by a solar-operated music box ($29.95) that plays Edelweiss. ("We're trying to program it for Here Comes the Sun," said Johansson).

"When we opened, most people thought we had pretty exotic stuff," said Dr. Alfred Kraft, a dentist and the store's third partner. "Now, they just ask a lot of questions, and sometimes we suggest they buy a book and read up on it." The store carries about 400 books on energy topics.

Sales are 50 per cent ahead of projections and are edging toward $1 million in the store's first year. Aside from stoves, which in some cases are selling faster than they can be made, the big seller is an auxiliary wood or coal furnace that can be added to a conventional oil or gas burner. It costs between $1,500 and $2,700, depending on size and options like an automatic stoking device. The store has sold 100 this spring and will sell as many as the Danish manufacturer delivers, possibly 200 more this year.

"The Monday after President Carter's energy speech we were swamped with customers," said Maureen Butler at Energy Alternatives Inc., 52 French King Highway, Greenfield, Mass. (413-773-5175). "Last year we used to be closed on Mondays and one person could handle the store," she said. "Now, six of us can't keep up with the business. Our waiting list for stove installations goes into 1980."

The Greenfield store, which is about 50 miles north of Hartford, Conn., opened two years ago and may now be the biggest energy supermarket in the Northeast. The three partners are Klaus Kroner and Frank Kaminsky, both professors of industrial engineering at the University of Massachusetts, and Eugene Butler, a building contractor. Helen Kroner, Maureen Butler and Anne Kaminsky, a lawyer specializing in energy law, help their husbands mind the store.

"Last year at this time we were installing one solar water heating system every couple of weeks," said Kaminsky. "Now we are selling about five systems a week. In just the past five weeks, we've sold about 25 windmills."

Besides stoves, solar systems and windmills, the store carries a large inventory of useful devices: a waterless, composting toilet ($800), a mechanism that circulates hot air from a clothes drier ($39.95), snap-on interior storm windows ($22 for an average window), water-conserving spouts ($7.95), insulating blankets for water heaters ($39.95) and highly efficient, portable space heaters ($62.50). Stove brushes, coal scuttles and water purifiers hang from the rafters and fans, shades and clock thermostats line the shelves. Like other energy supermarkets, the Greenfield store acts as a clearinghouse for energy information and services, including equipment installers and companies that inspect houses for energy efficiency.

Percy Newbury, a retired fireman, bought a stove to heat his house in Colrain, Mass., last year. "Now I exclusively use wood for fuel, with no backup system," he said. This spring he bought a newly developed windmill, the Enertech 1500, that plugs directly into ordinary house current, eliminating the need for storage batteries. It can supply up to 60 per cent of residential electricity needs and costs about $4,500 installed. In slow summer winds, Newbury's savings have amounted to 25 per cent of his electricity bill, but his anticipated annual savings should pay for the equipment in five years, he believes. The Greenfield store also expects to stock hydro-electric turbines for residential use in the near future.

Harry Evans, owner of Energy Alternatives Unlimited, Main Street, Amagansett, N.Y. (516-267-3733), said he is doing 10 times as much business as he did last year and his sales are approaching $750,000. "There's a hysteria now, a fear of the unknown," he said.

His shop is a beamed barn, sharing a shady courtyard with village shops, and its hardware is stacked helter skelter. Since the area has a large number of vacation homes, Evans sells many solar pool covers ($185 to $385), which prolong the swimming season; rolling vinyl shutters ($300 for a sliding glass door), which reduce energy consumption in all seasons and hopefully deter burglars; solar heated hot tubs (about $4,000) and ceiling fans ($120 to $190). There are stoves, stove-pipe water heaters, brushes, gloves, fireplace grates that generate hot air, water savers, a new type of solar collector, made of synthetic rubber and costing only about $500, and even hand-woven woolen shawls. Soon to be added is a solar greenhouse and the Enertech 1500 windmill.

Evans is attempting to organize a solar utility company, which will sell, lease or meter solar heating and hot water systems. The concept has interested a national equipment leasing company and many individual investors, according to Evans, who estimates the solar utility might install 5,000 to 10,000 solar systems on Long Island in the next five years.

Kelly House is a Connecticut building contractor (with a degree in philosophy) who "saw the mess we were getting into and wanted to do something about it." Three years ago he opened The Energy Store, 10 Water Street, Mystic, Conn. (203-536-7811), and now he is installing three solar systems a week, compared with two a month last year.

House's inventory includes many of the stock-in-trade products carried by other energy supermarkets. Because builders have been slow to respond to solar energy innovations, he has been teaching a course, called "low energy house building," in his store one night a week for three years. To his surprise, lawyers, bankers, real estate salesmen and homemakers as well as contractors have taken the $55 course.

"If business keeps up like this, I may franchise the energy store or open up some branches," said House. "People are really angry and they are beginning to do something about it."

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Let's say you're declarer in four hearts and West leads the king of diamonds. If you win with the ace and return the suit in order to try to ruff a diamond in dummy, you later go down one after East shifts to a trump.

It is much better to duck the king of diamonds. If you do, you make the contract regardless of what West plays next. Assume he shifts to a trump. In that case, you draw trumps and take a spade finesse. Win or lose, you're certain of at least ten tricks.

If West plays another diamond at trick two, you respond by taking the ace and leading the queen of spades from dummy. Again you have ten tricks whatever is returned. In the actual hand, East wins the spade queen with the king but cannot stop you from discarding a loser on one of dummy's high spades.

It is true that the contract can also be made by taking the king of diamonds with the ace and playing the queen of spades at trick two. However, this subjects you unnecessarily and prematurely to the possibility that the spades are not divided 4-3. You should try to minimize this risk, even though you might be forced to accept it if West plays another diamond at trick two.

The point is that while you can count ten winners from the start — seven hearts, two spades and a diamond — you must be careful not to let one of them get away by losing control of the hand at trick one. In order to stay in the driver's seat and be ready to ward off any attack that might be mounted against you, you should momentarily allow West to stay in command by yielding the first trick to him.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR
for
Thursday, August 30, 1979

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 1): Collect data; prepare for future rather than taking immediate action. Long-range view brings best results. Cancer, Capricorn natives figure in your personal scenario. What appears to be indecision could be proverbial blessing in disguise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): You get "sudden" opportunity to express views, demonstrate capabilities. Necessary financial support will be forthcoming — one close to you makes a major concession. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals figure prominently. You receive surprise social invitation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Check promissory notes, contractual obligations, legal right and permissions. Study fine print and read between the lines. Protect self in emotional clinches. Refuse to be rushed into decision. You gain by playing waiting game.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Plan, analyze, utilize your natural sense of perception. One who shares your basic interests can help you overcome groundless fears. Be receptive enough to accept needed support. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius natives play significant roles.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Personal magnetism abounds; members of opposite sex are drawn to you. Cycle features a variety of sensations, changes, chances for travel and greater self-expression. Major domestic adjustment could occur. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives figure in scenario.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Property values and basic security dominate. Perfect techniques, select quality material and avoid self-deception. Define terms and don't permit anyone to quote you out of context. Message will be clarified. A "psychic" associate provides missing link.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Ideas can be transformed into viable concepts. Relative in transit wants you to cosign or provide reference. Be aware of credit ratings, financial obligations and past performances. Capricorn, Cancer and the number 8 figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Obtain valuable hint by reading Libra message. Accent on money, personal possessions, locating what has been lost or stolen. Prestige rises as you complete important project. Love and universal appeal are part of your interesting scenario.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be direct, confident, willing to take cold plunge into future. Highlight originality, independence of thought and action. Cycle high — you get to heart of matters and could fall madly in love. Leo, Sagittarius, Aquarius persons figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Read Aries, Taurus messages for valuable guidance. You feel as if being pulled in two directions simultaneously. Dream, if properly interpreted, could prove prophetic. Legal barrier to progress is removed. This could mean clear sailing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your ability to win friends and influence people surges to forefront. Humor, versatility become twin allies. Be flexible, willing to expand horizons. Recent contact provides means for fulfilling desires. A bright, restless young person is in your corner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20) Take solid steps towards goal. There is room for you at top — know it and act accordingly. You gain access to confidential information. Be discreet, play cards close to chest. Superior acknowledges your worth. The number 4 figures prominently.

IF AUGUST 30 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are perceptive, versatile, analytical and have unusual sense of humor. You are more aware of body image than the average person. Gemini, Sagittarius indivivuals play important roles in your life. You recently got rid of burden which was not your own in first place. Way is open how to professional and personal progress. You will make valuable new contacts in September. If you have courage of convictions, the sky is the limit. What had been lost will be recovered. You are popular, members of opposite sex find you attractive and you possess an abundance of intellectual curiosity. You're going places!

Molly put down her book. "Not really. I guess you mean that Dad's a year older than Mom, and there's also a one year differenc between your parents."

"Something else," her husband replied. "If you write your mother's age before your father's you get the product of my parents' age."

Indeed a coincidence. How old were his parents?

Dog lovers fight to care for burned pup

SOUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. (UPI) — Dog lovers Tuesday fought for possession of Crispy Critter, the mongrel puppy whose sufferings at the hands of a "monster" brought $30,000 in contributions.

While the Animal Rescue League of Southern Rhode Island screened applicants to find a loving home for the badly burned pup, Crispy was taken from Boston's Angel Memorial Hospital for animals and hidden away by a woman who said she won't give him up.

"I'm keeping the dog because I want it to remain alive and well," said Beverly Lockhart, a South Kingstown nurse.

She refused to reveal the dog's whereabouts but did allow a newspaper reporter and photographer to visit Crispy's hideout Monday after demanding a promise of secrecy.

On June 12, Crispy, then 4 months old, was tied up, doused with lighter fluid and set aflame. His muzzle was wrapped in rope to muffle his anguish.

A police official said it had to be "some kind of a monster to do this," but an investigation turned up no leads. The dog's original owner was never found.

Crispy's ear was burned off, the other amputated and his legs, chest and muzzle were badly scarred.

Contributions poured in from across the country to pay the costs of the special tissue surgery to relieve Crispy's suffering. The medical costs were about $1,000.

So far $30,000 has been donated.

William R. Innis, president of the rescue league, said he is "very upset."

"We are considering moves to get the dog," he said, but added he has no specific plan.

He said Narragansett police gave the league custody of the dog.

The league received about $22,000 for the dog's care and to help set up a fund to care for other abused animals. The rest of the donations were received by the Boston hospital.

Walter E. Kilroy, vice-president of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said Mrs. Lockhart violated hospital policy by taking the dog without permission but apparently broke no laws.

Kilroy said he had been in a quandry over who should get the dog. He said Mrs. Lockhart's action relieved him of having to make the decision.

Said Mrs. Lockhart: "I'm not giving him up to anyone."

TRAFFIC JAM: Early-bird buyers price models of 700 new cars and trucks that Rochester, N.Y., area Dodge and Chrysler-Plymouth dealers moved into sports stadium for special inventory reduction sale. First two days brought sale of 444 units, hardly enough to put a dent in Chrysler's huge backlog of unsold vehicles in the United States and Canada but a welcome relief to dealers in upstate New York.

Soviet safety falling short of propaganda

By DAN FISHER
Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — The recent report from Tass, the official Soviet news agency, was unusual. The Kremlin does not normally advertise industrial accidents.

This time, however, the mishap was apparently so severe that the authorities thought the news would leak out anyway. A methane gas explosion in a coal mine near Voronezh had killed an undisclosed number of workers and injured others.

According to Tass, the government had set up a commission to look into the cause of the accident, near the Ukrainian border with the Russian republic.

The Soviet Union reports to be a nation founded on workers' interests and, according to government propaganda, no nation goes as far to protect the health and safety of its citizens on the job.

Because statistics on its industrial safety record are secret, there is no way to assess the objectivity of such statements.

However, there are increasing indications that Soviet performance falls short of Soviet propaganda.

One of the primary complaints of a dissident workers' committee that emerged here last year was that official organizations ignored the committee's protests about unsafe working conditions.

Western visitors who have toured Soviet factories and job sites agree almost unanimously that the most elementary safeguard are often ignored. Even the official press appears to be reporting more worker complaints about unsafe conditions.

A contributing factor may be increasing pressure from top Soviet officials to raise output at a time when the economy is showing unmistakable signs of slowing down. With the pressure on to produce, industrial organizations are more likely to close their eyes to unsafe or unhealthy conditions.

The coal industry, for example, has been under fire in recent years for lagging behind its planned output. A former first deputy coal minister, Nikolai Grinko, conceded last year in an article in the central trade union newspaper, Trud, that since 1977 there had been an increase in the number of accidents and cases of work-related disease in most of the key Soviet coal-mining regions. He blamed the increase on poor administration, work speedups and frenzied efforts to meet quotas.

Vladimir Klebanov, a coal miner and head of the Free Trade Union for the Defence of Workers Rights, said "unrealistically high" production targets mean that miners are often forced to work 12 hours a day instead of the normal six. Accidents at the Bazhanova mine where he worked killed 12 to 15 persons a year and injured 600 to 700 others, he said.

Klebanov has been fired and placed in a psychiatric hospital because his complaints are considered slanderous to the state.

A team of Western mine safety experts visited the Donetsk coal-mining area of the Ukraine two years ago and learned that Soviet standards call for a mine to be evacuated when the level of methane gas reaches 2 per cent. (The U.S. standard is 1.5 per cent; the gas is considered highly explosive at concentrations of 5 per cent to 15 per cent.) One member of the team said that on a tour of a working mine he found methane levels of up to 5.5 per cent.

HOW TO WRITE
CLASSIFIED ACTION
AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

It is with deepest appreciation we wish to extend our thanks to relatives, friends and neighbours, for their kind expressions of sympathy extended to us at the sudden loss of our beloved husband and father Tom Graves. Sincere thanks to Rev. Dr. G. Struthers for his beautiful service and to Colwood R.C.M.P. and ambulance for so much help rendered at this very difficult time. — Jeanette Graves and Family.

WE WISH TO EXPRESS OUR heartfelt thanks to our relatives, friends and neighbours who have been so kind and helpful and for their cards and beautiful floral offerings following the loss of a beloved husband and father. Also a special thanks to the Doctors and Nurses at the Royal Jubilee Hospital for all their help this past year.
Mrs. Wm. Rutich and family.

Show offers lots of excitement

GARDENING
Hilda Beastall

It is said that dahlias are an exciting flower to see in quantity as in a grower's garden or in a flower show. This could well be true and that adds up to a lot of excitement for everyone visiting this week's annual gladiolus and dahlia show on Friday and Saturday.

The Victoria Gladiolus and Dahlia Society is host to the Pacific Northwest Dahlia Conference which means excitement will be multiplied by the number of participants, and will rub off on the visiting public.

Gladioli, too, will be on show as a splendid supporting feature.

The Hillside Shopping Mall management has made the mall available for this event to be open from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday and on Saturday from 9:30 a.m. until the show closes at 4 p.m. The mall is open throughout the regular store hours on both days.

For newcomers and out-of-town visitors a few words on finding the location of all this massed beauty: take Hillside to where it meets Shelbourne and Lansdowne. You can't miss the mall on the left-hand side of Hillside going out from Douglas.

There is also bus service to the area.

Noticing the list of flower colors in the show catalog prepared for this week's Dahlia Conference Show one can already feel the excitement of the occasion.

Here they are, without further comment: white, yellow, bronze, orange, flame, red, dark red, light pink, dark pink, lavender, purple, light blend, dark blend, bicolor, variegated.

From my own very early days I recall only what would likely be classified as a dark red, a purple and a white. These were fascinating for their symmetry of bloom and for the fact they were a natural refuge at night for earwigs, many of which were lured to small clay flower pots containing a tiny handful of warm dried grass, the pots being perched at blossom height on the supporting dahlia stakes.

Floral designs will allow for creative talent to be displayed. The general theme of the dahlia section is "What will the '80s bring?"

Turning to the gladioulus section of the show, we find almost the same range of colors can be seen as among the dahlias listed above.

The colors may have been given somewhat different names because of the different texture of the petals but the names given are official among gladioulus growers and raisers. They appear in all official show schedules.

Here are the classifications by color of gladioli: white, green, yellow, orange, salmon, pink, red, black red, rose, black rose, lavender, violet (blues), smokies, tan, brown.

As in the dahlia section of this same show, sizes of gladioli vary all the way from delightful miniatures suitable for corsage work to the giants for large garden displays.

The purpose of the Victoria Gladiolus and Dahlia Society in presenting this joint display while hosting the Pacific Northwest Dahlia Conference Show is to make it possible for Victorians and visitores alike to see what progress has been made with these two flowers in the past century.

Exhibits will have come from member societies in the Pacific Northwest, with the Victoria society the only Canadian member.

We wish them well, and a happy period to crown the months of preparation. The rest of us can contribute to the success of the show just by our attendance and interest at the same time as we get our fill of exciting color.

Twisters in Regina

REGINA (CP) — Tornadoes were sighted in the Regina area Tuesday evening but none touched down in the city and there were no reports of damage.

A tornado warning was issued at 5:15 p.m. CST by the weather office following reports of several tornadoes east of Lumsden, a community about 30 kilometres north of here.

There were many calls confirming tornadoes in the area, a weather office spokesman said.

He said there were probably three or four tornadoes travelling north of the city and bypassing it.

On Aug. 8 a tornado struck parts of residential Regina, doing more than $10 million in damage. No one was injured. The weather office issued a warning for that storm after it had passed over the city.

New policy on police brutality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim Fyfe is a powerfully built man standing more than six feet tall. He drinks beer and smokes cigars and spins out endless tales of the violence and pathos and the humor of enforcing the law for 16 years in New York City.

Not long ago, Fyfe traded his .38-calibre Special and police lieutenant's badge for a PhD. Along the way, he studied police brutality and how to curb it.

His conclusions may hold lessons for many cities troubled by mounting complaints that policemen shoot, maim and sometimes kill citizens in unnecessary displays of force.

Fyfe found that a policy change at the top, made clear to policemen at all levels and strictly enforced, can "drastically reduce" the frequency of police shootings at citizens.

That sort of policy change is what the U.S. justice department hopes to accomplish with its unprecedented federal court suit against the Philadelphia police department.

Police critics argue that a restrictive policy alone cannot eliminate use of unnecessary force by police. Fyfe agrees that the policy must be accompanied by a high-level commitment to punish violators. Minor penalties, frequently imposed, may be more effective than harsh punishment used more reluctantly, he observed.

A change to a definite policy — with a commitment — occurred in New York in 1972. That's when Patrick Murphy was police commissioner and imposed a policy that:

—Reminded policemen "to preserve and protect life wherever possible."

—Instructed them to employ "only the minimum amount of force" necessary to accomplish a mission.

—Prohibited policemen from firing a gun "where lives of innocent persons may be endangered."

—Prohibited firing at a moving vehicle.

—Stated that policemen carry guns "for personal protection against persons feloniously attacking an officer or another at close range."

Examining the records, Fyfe found that 831 policemen were involved in 630 shooting incidents in 1971. The figures rose in 1972 to 1,051 policemen and 803 incidents, though there was a sharp drop toward the end of the year after the new policy was imposed.

But in 1973, Fyfe reported, the numbers dropped to 777 policemen involved in 574 incidents. The incidents continued to fall, so that by 1978, only 491 policemen were engaged in 372 shootings, and almost half of these involved shots fired accidentally and those fired to kill stray animals.

In addition, Fyfe said the statistics rebut the argument that weapons restrictions leave policemen vulnerable to armed criminals.

Fyfe found that the number of policemen injured or killed in the line of duty also declined sharply following the policy change, dropping to a weekly mean of 2.5 from 4.4.

Sculptured Skatewave will close in face of declining use by local skateboarders

Skateboard fad falls flat

By AB KENT
Times Staff

A year ago skateboarding was the hottest thing in town.

But today the sport — victim of high prices for equipment and the fickle fancy of young folk — is on a downhill slope.

The result: A $125,000 skateboard facility in Saanich will close Friday. And Esquimalt officials wonder how they may rekindle interest in their $14,000 facility that doesn't really turn kids on.

The sculptured concrete of Saanich Skatewave, operating on land leased from Saanich adjoining Cedar Hill Community Centre, will close because its partners can't make a living, pay the rent and retire capital costs.

Managing partner Bill Lannigan said a proposal will be made to Saanich in hopes that the recreation department will assume operation of Skatewave, which has a following of several hundred youngsters.

Lannigan said the overhead is killing the business, especially the top rent being charged by the municipality.

Saanich recreation manager Bill Young wonders whether Skatewave was too sophisticated to start with.

"For one reason or another, it hasn't caught on here like in some places, like California," he said.

The area's only other skateboard facility, Anderson Park Bowl, installed by Esquimalt municipality for $14,000, is operated free of charge.

It too has declined in popularity this summer, although the core of users feels attendance will recover when classes resume at Esquimalt High School across the street.

Youngsters say the facility would be more attractive if the concrete convolutions were expanded, perhaps to include a snake run with a larger bowl to enable skaters to do more elaborate moves.

However, says Esquimalt recreation manager Jack Boutilier, "It's like a lot of fad sports; there just doesn't seem to be the interest. Roller skating is the in-thing now".

"We're having a real good look at it," Boutilier said.

Esquimalt offers plenty of opportunity for indoor roller skating in its arena and curling rink five days a week.

"It's the big rage now to skate on the streets and in parks," Boutilier said, noting the success of rented skates for sidewalk use.

Ironically, these new style skates were adapted by someone in California who used surplus skateboard wheels to make a wider, more versatile roller skate.

"It's a fluke, really," Boutilier said. "They can't get enough of them."

The reason for the decline in skateboarding popularity varies, depending on whether you skate, administer the park or own the installation.

Skatewave's Lannigan says the trend toward competitiveness is hurting the very popularity that skateboard parks hoped to encourage.

"The sport is going professional. The elite are surviving and others are getting out.

"Since the parks opened, you have to be good to use them," the manager said.

"The sport has become very specialized.

"Three years ago you could buy a skateboard for $20. Now you can go as high as $200, and a decent board will cost at least $90." Add

Armed troops guard Queen at Balmoral

Times News Services

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher flew unexpectedly to Northern Ireland today as a Protestant guerrilla organization pledged revenge on the Irish Republican Army for the killing of Earl Louis Mountbatten and 18 British soldiers.

Meanwhile, at Scotland's Balmoral Castle five truckloads of soldiers took up positions to guard the Queen, who is on vacation there. The Queen normally is guarded only by two detectives armed with revolvers.

And, the Vatican announced today that Pope John Paul has cancelled tentative plans for a side trip to Northern Ireland during his 10-day visit to the Irish Republic next month because of the renewed violence.

The Holy See had not previously indicated the Pontiff would visit Northern Ireland. However, an official said today that a trip to the archdiocese of Armagh near the border with the Irish Republic had been planned in principle after the Vatican received "numerous requests . . . from Protestants and Catholics."

Mrs. Thatcher planned to spend just one day in strife-torn Ulster, her office said, seeing administrators and commanders of the 13,000-member British garrison.

It was not known whether she would take a helicopter to Warrenpoint, the border ferry point where the Provisional wing of the outlawed IRA killed 18 British soldiers on Monday.

But she immediately went to visit wounded soldiers at Belfast's Musgrave Park Hospital.

As forces of the Irish Republic and Britain hunted for the IRA bombers who blew up Britain's famed soldier-statesman and two truckloads of soldiers two days ago, the outlawed Ulster Freedom Fighters said in a statement delivered to newspapers: "In view of the latest wave of Irish Republican Army attacks, we will resume hostilities against known IRA men."

The backlash began Tuesday night when a Roman Catholic was killed on his Belfast doorstep.

Patrick Hardy, whose brother was killed during riots in Belfast four years ago, was shot and killed by two men who escaped on a motorcycle. Six of the man's 10 children were inside the house.

U.S. dollar at banks this morning bought $1.1640 Canadian, according to the Greater Victoria Information Centre.

Canada puts on pressure

Canadian officials will ask the U.S. government to persuade U.S. tuna boats to leave Canadian waters while the two countries seek a solution to jurisdictional problems involving the lucrative albacore tuna catch.

A Canadian official, who was not identified, said the American government cannot order the boats to leave Canadian waters because they haven't broken any U.S. laws.

The U.S. government doesn't recognize jurisdiction over highly migratory fish, such as tuna, beyond a 12-mile limit. Canada claims jurisdiction over all species within its 200-mile limit.

"They (the fishermen) will be faced with the choice of pursuing their potential fishing interests and facing the real potential of arrests or of waiting a day or two with the very good possibility that they could re-enter with permission," the official said.

Meanwhile, federal fisheries vessels are continuing to patrol the tuna ground off Vancouver Island after reports that up to 30 U.S. boats were fishing in Canadian waters.

Eight U.S. fish boat captains were charged Tuesday with illegally entering and fishing in Canadian waters. They pleaded not guilty in Victoria provincial court and were released when they posted $5,000 performance bonds. They were remanded until Feb. 13.

The boats left Victoria harbor Tuesday night, their holds still loaded with the tuna, but their destinations

Oil price question may delay budget

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Canadians may have to wait until November to find out how the government elected last May plans to deal with the economy and spend their tax dollars.

Finance Minister John Crosbie told reporters Tuesday that his budget could be as late as November. Parliament is due to sit Oct. 9.

Crosbie also said Canada will not necessarily follow the lead of the United States where the major banks Tuesday boosted their prime lending rates to 12.25 per cent — a historic high.

Crosbie said the situation "has to be reviewed in the normal way, and Gerald Bouey, governor of the Bank of Canada, would have the "prime role" in deciding if Canada should increase its bank rate beyond the current record high of 11.75 per cent.

The dollar suffered its biggest drop in more than a month on North American money markets Tuesday, losing almost one-third of a cent against its U.S. counterpart to close at 85.38 cents U.S.

Crosbie said it would be "very much to our advantage" if the question of the domestic price of oil was settled before he draws up his budget.

The settlement was necessary so the government could have accurate economy forecasts.

Crosbie chatted with reporters briefly after the inner cabinet, meeting in this Rocky Mountain resort, discussed how the government would propose to allow the price of Canadian oil to progress toward the much-higher world price of between $21 and $25 a barrel.

Prime Minister Clark told reporters progress was made in developing an energy policy which must eventually be put to the provinces, industry and the consumers.

He said the cabinet must decide on a policy in which the federal government and the other three parties are willing participants.

In Calgary, meanwhile, Ontario Treasurer Frank Miller said Ontario paid its dues in Confederation through redistribution of its wealth to other provinces and now is asking oil-rich provinces to do the same.

"Ontario only asks that they remember that when it was our turn we did pay a price to be Canadians," Miller said in a speech to a Canadian Bar Association meeting.

Ontario has called for a national job-creation fund to be started from oil price increases of more than $2 a barrel, rather than seeing increased taxes go to producing provinces and the federal government or profits to oil companies.

Whitecaps game on TV

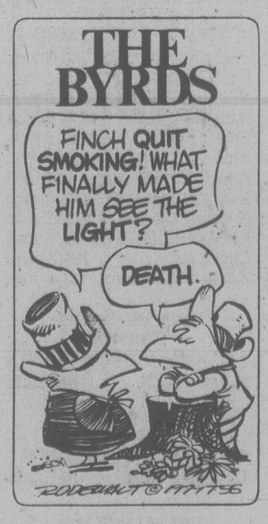
The Vancouver Whitecaps playoff game against the New York Cosmos will be seen on BCTV tonight at 8.

BCTV and the Whitecaps started negotiating broadcast rights after fans bought out the soccer game in a record 9½ hours Monday.

Permission to go ahead with the broadcast had to come from Whitecaps president John Best, the Cosmos' owner, and the commissioner of the North American Soccer League in New York.

$3.4M raid

VALENCIENNES, France (Reuter) — A gang of five men and a woman got away with the equivalent of about $3.4 million in a raid on a state pensions office near here, police said today. The gang tied up eight employees and collected the banknotes, using walkie-talkies to keep in contact with accomplices in the street, police said.



Food prices dip in August

OTTAWA (CP) — Food prices have been steadily declining this month, a government survey released today shows, but are still 11 per cent higher than a year ago.

During the last four weeks, supermarket prices have declined by 2.2 per cent, the department of agriculture says.

In its monthly survey of food prices, the department found it cost $61.47 to provide a basic nutritious weekly diet for four during the week ending Aug. 17.

The relief from rising prices appears mainly seasonal as most of the decline resulted from lower costs of locally grown fruits and vegetables, which come on the market in greatest abundance in August.

In spite of the latest month-to-month price drop, food prices are now 11 per cent higher than one year ago, the survey showed. In August, 1978, the weekly grocery bill for a basic nutritous diet for four was $55.29.

Government officials attribute part of the August drop in prices to consumer resistance to rising beef prices.

Their investigations showed that consumers have been boycotting expensive beef and switching to cheaper meats since mid-June. This forced farmers to lower their prices for live cattle.

But agricuture department analysts expect the relief to be short-lived.

"It appears that live cattles prices have now bottomed out and may drift upward during the remainder of 1979," the department said in a statement accompanying latest food price figures. "This increase in live cattle prices will result in higher beef prices in retail stores across Canada."

The department's food price index, a statistical yardstick for measuring changes in supermarket prices, reached 163.1 last month. The index was arbitrarily set at 100 in 1974. This means that a basket of groceries which would have cost $100 five years ago, now costs $163.10.

Declining prices for fresh produce and beef were partly offset by higher prices for dairy products, fish, beverages and processed vegetables.

The largest price increase was for beverages, 1.5 per cent last month. Most of the increase is attributable to rising coffee prices resulting from political problems in Uganda and Nicaragua and a May frost in Brazil, the government says.

Hurricane rips Caribbean islands

ROSEAU, Dominica (UPI) — Mighty Hurricane David slammed the Caribbean islands of Dominica and Martinique with its 224 kilometres-an-hour fury today, ripping the roofs from houses, uprooting trees and forcing thousands to seek shelter.

There was no immediate word of injuries or deaths resulting from the awesome storm, one of the most ferocious to hit the Windward Islands this century.

Weathermen at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said part of the eye of the hurricane moved through the 30-mile-wide Dominican Channel that separates Dominica and Martinique and headed toward the open Caribbean Sea.

At noon EDT David was located near latitude 15.1 north, longitude 61.1 west. It was moving toward the west northwest at 14 mph and was expected to continue on that course for the next 12 to 24 hours.

Forecasters said there was a chance David would continue to veer northward and menace Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, both 36 hours or more away at the rate of speed the storm now is travelling. A hurricane watch was issued for both areas, along with the Dominican Republic.

If David holds its current course, it would pass 80 to 120 km south of Puerto Rico, forecasters said.

The tropical twister took aim at Barbados Tuesday, but then began a gradual swing toward the north, missing the island almost entirely. No serious damage or injuries were reported.

At Dominica, freelance reporter Elsworth Carter said that roofs were torn off buildings and trees uprooted in the capital city of Roseau. There was little information from Martinique, about 48 km to the south, because communications were cut off.

"The winds are really howling now," Carter said.

In one of the last telephone transmissions, one of Martinique's more than 300,000 residents said winds were reported at 192 km/h with gusts up to 240 km/h. The storm was rated force 4 on a scale of 5.

A spokesman at the U.S. Consulate at Martinique's capital city of Fort de France said before the full fury of the storm hit that about 500 American tourists had been advised to stay where they were unless they were in a low-lying area, in which case they were urged to seek other shelter.

Air fare promise kept?

TORONTO (CP) — Air Canada will try to honor thousands of discount reservations for flights to United States destinations even if President Jimmy Carter rejects the low-fare plan, an airline spokesman said Tuesday.

John Cavill said Air Canada will ask the Canadian transport commission to make a special appeal to honor seats already booked if Carter endorses the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board's ruling against the fares.

The U.S. board opposes the airline's discounts of between 46 and 66 per cent on the grounds that Canada has refused to let American Airlines and United Airlines issue half-fare discounts for flights to Canada.

Air Canada has offered the discounts on flights of 1,600 kilometres or more in Canada between Sept. 24 and Nov. 4 and from U.S. destinations from Oct. 5 to Nov. 25.

So far, 35,000 reservations have been made for flights in the U.S. and Canada. The U.S. board's order would affect only the U.S. flights.

Malcolm Armstrong, chairman of the transport commission's air transport committee, said the commission is firm in its position that deregulation of Canada's airline industry must be carried out slowly.

Sudden deregulation, he said, could result in the collapse of some of the few airlines the country has. The situation is not as secure as in the U.S. where many airlines could replace one that folded, Armstrong said.

"Canadians wouldn't like it — would they? — if a Canadian airline folded and American Airlines came in to take over some routes," he said.

Officials from both countries will meet in Ottawa on Oct. 9 to discuss air fares.

Hank Intven, legal counsel for the Consumers Association of Canada, said the airline behaved irresponsibly by selling seats before it had Civil Aeronautics Board approval for the low-fare plan.

The captains were charged with two counts under the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act.

Penalties under the act include seizure of a boat and its catch, fines up to $25,000 and jail terms of up to two years.

Charged were:

Michael Terrance Welsh of Morro Bay, Calif., master of the Columbia, based in San Francisco;

Arne Berner Larsen of Seattle, master of the Majestic, based in Seattle;

Edward Deringer of Lomita, Calif., master of the Jean Marie, registered out of Seattle;

John Vernon Linvog of Seattle, master of the Seattle-based St. John II;

Kenneth Ledbetter of San Diego, master of the San Diego-based Jeannie;

Elmer Arnold Martens of Kingston, Wash., master of the Lorelei II out of Seattle;

Staley Carrill Johansen of Seattle, master of the Seattle-based Alma J;

Robert Sanchez of Santa Ana, Calif., master of the San Pedro-based Four C.

Defence lawyer Harold Turnham of Victoria entered pleas of not guilty to all charges on behalf of all eight before Judge Fred Giles.

The Crown was represented by Mary Jane Dodge of the federal justice department in Vancouver.

Wally Johnson of Vancouver, federal fisheries director for the Pacific region, said patrol vessels will continue to watch the vessels and other U.S. boats.

"We've had reports from several sources that there are a number of American fish boats in the general vicinity," he said. "Canadian boats have been extremely helpful and we are continuing to solicit their help."

Jack Nichol, president of B.C.'s United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said the bonds required were too small.

Johnson said the eight seized fishboats were allowed to leave Victoria harbor with their catches because it would have been too costly for Canadian authorities to freeze and store the tuna until the February court appearance.

Bus pact violation claimed

Representatives of disgruntled Pacific Coach Lines bus dispatchers appeared before the Labor Relations Board today accusing their employer of violating a collective agreement.

The 14 dispatchers claim the company is not living up to the terms of their contract.

The dispute flared up earlier this week and on Tuesday resulted in an unauthorized picket line at the company's Victoria depot.

The dispatchers, members of the Office and Technical Employees Union, removed the pickets after less than an hour.

A union spokesman said the action was not sanctioned by the OTEU.

The dispatcher's dispute with the company has its roots in the amalgamation last year of Pacific Stage Lines with Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

The contracts for the employees expired March 31 and the new company, Pacific Coach Lines, found itself negotiating six collective agreements — two with the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, three with the Amalgamated Transit Union and one with the OTEU.

The Labor Relations Board, by June 1, had streamlined the contracts, into two — one with the CBRT and the other with the OTEU.

Dancer's defection 'spur-of-moment'

NEW YORK (AP) — Bolshoi Ballet star Alexander Godunov said today that his defection was a spur-of-the-moment decison after he missed a curfew imposed by ballet troup officials. See earlier story on page 53.

Godunov told a news conference that he knew it would be his last chance to defect because missing the curfew would mean he would not be allowed the freedom necessary to contact U.S. officials.

The ballet star, whose ballerina wife Ludmilla Vlasova flew back to Moscow after refusing to defect with him, had been prevented from touring abroad for five years as a result of rumors on an earlier tour that he might defect.

Godunov, making his first appearance in public since defecting, said he was grateful to U.S. officials for giving his wife an opportunity to join him.

A Soviet airliner carrying Miss Vlasova was kept on the ground at New York's Kennedy Airport for three days while U.S. and Soviet officials negotiated over her fate. U.S. officials said they wanted the ballerina to make her decision in a non-coersive atmosphere.

The two sides later agreed on a meeting with officials from both countries present in an airport bus. During the meeting, Miss Vlasova again expressed her desire to return to the Soviet Union.

Godunov, whose remarks were translated from Russian by an interpreter, said he defected soley to further his dancing career.

Orville Schell, lawyer for Godunov, said he called news conference to answer questions, and to counter a report by the official Soviet news agency Tass that Godunov left for reasons that were "unclear."

Meanwhile, the editor-in-chief of Dance magazine, a close friend of Godunov, told the Chicago Tribune that the Godunov's marriage to Miss Vlasova was "more or less for convenience."

Sculptured Skatewave will close in face of declining use by local skateboarders

Skateboard fad falls flat

By AB KENT
Times Staff

A year ago skateboarding was the hottest thing in town.

But today the sport — victim of high prices for equipment and the fickle fancy of young folk — is on a downhill slope.

The result: A $125,000 skateboard facility in Saanich will close Friday. And Esquimalt officials wonder how they may rekindle interest in their $14,000 facility that doesn't really turn kids on.

The sculptured concrete of Saanich Skatewave, operating on land leased from Saanich adjoining Cedar Hill Community Centre, will close because its partners can't make a living, pay the rent and retire capital costs.

Managing partner Bill Lannigan said a proposal will be made to Saanich in hopes that the recreation department will assume operation of Skatewave, which has a following of several hundred youngsters.

Lannigan said the overhead is killing the business, especially the top rent being charged by the municipality.

Saanich recreation manager Bill Young wonders whether Skatewave was too sophisticated to start with.

"For one reason or another, it hasn't caught on here like in some places, like California," he said.

The area's only other skateboard facility, Anderson Park Bowl, installed by Esquimalt municipality for $14,000, is operated free of charge.

It too has declined in popularity this summer, although the core of users feels attendance will recover when classes resume at Esquimalt High School across the street.

Youngsters say the facility would be more attractive if the concrete convolutions were expanded, perhaps to include a snake run with a larger bowl to enable skaters to do more elaborate moves.

However, says Esquimalt recreation manager Jack Boutilier, "It's like a lot of fad sports; there just doesn't seem to be the interest. Roller skating is the in-thing now".

"We're having a real good look at it," Boutilier said.

Esquimalt offers plenty of opportunity for indoor roller skating in its arena and curling rink five days a week.

"It's the big rage now to skate on the streets and in parks," Boutilier said, noting the success of rented skates for sidewalk use.

Ironically, these new style skates were adapted by someone in California who used surplus skateboard wheels to make a wider, more versatile roller skate.

"It's a fluke, really," Boutilier said. "They can't get enough of them."

The reason for the decline in skateboarding popularity varies, depending on whether you skate, administer the park or own the installation.

Skatewave's Lannigan says the trend toward competitiveness is hurting the very popularity that skateboard parks hoped to encourage.

"The sport is going professional. The elite are surviving and others are getting out.

"Since the parks opened, you have to be good to use them," the manager said.

"The sport has become very specialized.

"Three years ago you could buy a skateboard for $20. Now you can go as high as $200, and a decent board will cost at least $90." Add

Flying visit to Ulster made by Thatcher

Times News Services

A Protestant guerrilla organization today pledged revenge on the Irish Republican Army for the killing of Earl Louis Mountbatten and 18 British soldiers, and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher flew unexpectedly to Northern Ireland.

Police in Dublin today charged two men with membership in the Irish Republican Army and said they are being questioned in connection with Mountbatten's murder.

The men were identified as Thomas McMahon and Francis McGirl, both from an area near the Irish Republic's troubled border with British-ruled Northern Ireland.

Police sources said the men were both associated in the past with the IRA and were arrested shortly after the Mountbatten killing, when their car was stopped as it travelled toward Dublin from the west of Ireland.

The sources said traces of nitroglycerine and sea water were found in the men's clothing.

Meanwhile, at Scotland's Balmoral Castle five truckloads of soldiers took up positions to guard the Queen, who is on vacation there. The Queen normally is guarded only by two detectives armed with revolvers.

And, the Vatican announced today that Pope John Paul has cancelled tentative plans for a side trip to Northern Ireland during his 10-day visit to the Irish Republic next month because of the renewed violence.

Mrs. Thatcher planned to spend just one day in strife-torn Ulster, her office said, seeing administrators and commanders of the 13,000-member British garrison.

It was not known whether she would take a helicopter to Warrenpoint, the border ferry point where the Provisional wing of the outlawed IRA killed 18 British soldiers on Monday.

But she immediately went to visit wounded soldiers at Belfast's Musgrave Park Hospital.

The backlash began Tuesday night when a Roman Catholic was killed on his Belfast doorstep.

Patrick Hardy, whose brother was killed during riots in Belfast four years ago, was shot and killed by two men who escaped on a motorcycle. Six of the man's 10 children were inside the house.

Dollar exchange

U.S. dollar at banks this morning bought $1.1640 Canadian, according to the Greater Victoria Information Centre.

Canada puts on pressure

Fisheries Minister James McGrath today warned American tuna fishermen off B.C. they face the "full burden of Canadian law" if they continue fishing in Canadian territorial waters.

"If we have to arrest 30, 40, 50 (fishermen), we will. I am hoping that saner, or sensible logic will prevail and the Americans will get the message and head back home, McGrath said in an interview on CTV's Canada AM.

"If they don't, then they have to take the full burden of the Canadian law."

McGrath, adding the law will be applied "with full vigor", said he has increased the number of fisheries department vessels and was using defense department aircraft to patrol west coast waters.

Meanwhile, federal fisheries vessels are continuing to patrol the tuna ground off Vancouver Island after reports that up to 30 U.S. boats were fishing in Canadian waters.

Eight U.S. fish boat captains were charged Tuesday with illegally entering and fishing in Canadian waters. They pleaded not guilty in Victoria provincial court and were released when they posted $5,000 performance bonds. They were remanded until Feb. 13.

The boats left Victoria harbor Tuesday night, their holds still loaded with the tuna, but their destinations were not immediately known.

The captains were charged with two counts under the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act.

Oil price question may delay budget

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Canadians may have to wait until November to find out how the government elected last May plans to deal with the economy and spend their tax dollars.

Finance Minister John Crosbie told reporters Tuesday that his budget could be as late as November. Parliament is due to sit Oct. 9.

Crosbie also said Canada will not necessarily follow the lead of the United States where the major banks Tuesday boosted their prime lending rates to 12.25 per cent — a historic high.

Crosbie said the situation "has to be reviewed in the normal way, and Gerald Bouey, governor of the Bank of Canada, would have the "prime role" in deciding if Canada should increase its bank rate beyond the current record high of 11.75 per cent.

The dollar suffered its biggest drop in more than a month on North American money markets Tuesday, losing almost one-third of a cent against its U.S. counterpart to close at 85.38 cents U.S.

Crosbie said it would be "very much to our advantage" if the question of the domestic price of oil was settled before he draws up his budget.

The settlement was necessary so the government could have accurate economy forecasts.

Crosbie chatted with reporters briefly after the inner cabinet, meeting in this Rocky Mountain resort, discussed how the government would propose to allow the price of Canadian oil to progress toward the much-higher world price of between $21 and $25 a barrel.

Prime Minister Clark told reporters progress was made in developing an energy policy which must eventually be put to the provinces, industry and the consumers.

He said the cabinet must decide on a policy in which the federal government and the other three parties are willing participants.

In Calgary, meanwhile, Ontario Treasurer Frank Miller said Ontario paid its dues in Confederation through redistribution of its wealth to other provinces and now is asking oil-rich provinces to do the same.

"Ontario only asks that they remember that when it was our turn we did pay a price to be Canadians," Miller said in a speech to a Canadian Bar Association meeting.

Ontario has called for a national job-creation fund to be started from oil price increases of more than $2 a barrel, rather than seeing increased taxes go to producing provinces and the federal government or profits to oil companies.

Whitecaps game on TV

The Vancouver Whitecaps playoff game against the New York Cosmos will be seen on BCTV tonight at 8.

BCTV and the Whitecaps started negotiating broadcast rights after fans bought out the soccer game in a record 9½ hours Monday.

Permission to go ahead with the broadcast had to come from Whitecaps president John Best, the Cosmos' owner, and the commissioner of the North American Soccer League in New York.

$3.4M raid

VALENCIENNES, France (Reuter) — A gang of five men and a woman got away with the equivalent of about $3.4 million in a raid on a state pensions office near here, police said today. The gang tied up eight employees and collected the banknotes, using walkie-talkies to keep in contact with accomplices in the street, police said.

Food prices dip in August

OTTAWA (CP) — Food prices have been steadily declining this month, a government survey released today shows, but are still 11 per cent higher than a year ago.

During the last four weeks, supermarket prices have declined by 2.2 per cent, the department of agriculture says.

In its monthly survey of food prices, the department found it cost $61.47 to provide a basic nutritious weekly diet for four during the week ending Aug. 17.

The relief from rising prices appears mainly seasonal as most of the decline resulted from lower costs of locally grown fruits and vegetables, which come on the market in greatest abundance in August.

In spite of the latest month-to-month price drop, food prices are now 11 per cent higher than one year ago, the survey showed. In August, 1978, the weekly grocery bill for a basic nutritous diet for four was $55.29.

Government officials attribute part of the August drop in prices to consumer resistance to rising beef prices.

Their investigations showed that consumers have been boycotting expensive beef and switching to cheaper meats since mid-June. This forced farmers to lower their prices for live cattle.

But agricuture department analysts expect the relief to be short-lived.

"It appears that live cattle prices have now bottomed out and may drift upward during the remainder of 1979," the department said in a statement accompanying latest food price figures. "This increase in live cattle prices will result in higher beef prices in retail stores across Canada."

The department's food price index, a statistical yardstick for measuring changes in supermarket prices, reached 163.1 last month. The index was arbitrarily set at 100 in 1974. This means that a basket of groceries which would have cost $100 five years ago, now costs $163.10.

Declining prices for fresh produce and beef were partly offset by higher prices for dairy products, fish, beverages and processed vegetables.

The largest price increase was for beverages, 1.5 per cent last month. Most of the increase is attributable to rising coffee prices resulting from political problems in Uganda and Nicaragua and a May frost in Brazil, the government says.

Hurricane rips Caribbean islands

ROSEAU, Dominica (UPI) — Mighty Hurricane David slammed the Caribbean islands of Dominica and Martinique with its 224 kilometres-an-hour fury today, ripping the roofs from houses, uprooting trees and forcing thousands to seek shelter.

There was no immediate word of injuries or deaths resulting from the awesome storm, one of the most ferocious to hit the Windward Islands this century.

Weathermen at the National Hurricane Centre in Miami said part of the eye of the hurricane moved through the 30-mile-wide Dominican Channel that separates Dominica and Martinique and headed toward the open Caribbean Sea.

At noon EDT David was located near latitude 15.1 north, longitude 61.1 west. It was moving toward the west northwest at 14 mph and was expected to continue on that course for the next 12 to 24 hours.

Forecasters said there was a chance David would continue to veer northward and menace Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, both 36 hours or more away at the rate of speed the storm now is travelling. A hurricane watch was issued for both areas, along with the Dominican Republic.

If David holds its current course, it would pass 80 to 120 km south of Puerto Rico, forecasters said.

The tropical twister took aim at Barbados Tuesday, but then began a gradual swing toward the north, missing the island almost entirely. No serious damage or injuries were reported.

At Dominica, freelance reporter Elsworth Carter said that roofs were torn off buildings and trees uprooted in the capital city of Roseau. There was little information from Martinique, about 48 km to the south, because communications were cut off.

"The winds are really howling now," Carter said.

In one of the last telephone transmissions, one of Martinique's more than 300,000 residents said winds were reported at 192 km/h with gusts up to 240 km/h. The storm was rated force 4 on a scale of 5.

A spokesman at the U.S. Consulate at Martinique's capital city of Fort de France said before the full fury of the storm hit that about 500 American tourists had been advised to stay where they were unless they were in a low-lying area, in which case they were urged to seek other shelter.

Budgets get 2

SUPER SOUND SPECTACULAR

OPEN LABOR DAY Monday 9 a.m.-6 p.m.

YAMAHA AUDIO

HP-3 ORTHODYNAMIC HEADPHONES

Yamaha's Orthodynamic headphones are designed not just to sound good, but to feel good, too.
Don't underestimate the importance of long-term wearing comfort, especially with headphones that sound as good as the HP-3s.

SPECTACULAR PRICE $39.95

NEW JENSEN SOUND LABORATORIES

This Jensen R400 car stereo receiver is easy listening— with good reason. It shares many of the features found in the top-of-the-line Jensen R430. At a price that's easy to take. And short chassis design is ideal for most domestic and foreign cars.

INTRODUCTORY SPECIAL $299.95

THE CLEAN MACHINE

The Vac-O-Rec record cleaner not only loosens and vacuum-cleans out deep-damaging microdust particles, but also reduces static-electricity build-up. Cleaning process takes only 30 seconds.

4 best deals from maxell®

HIGH PERFORMANCE FOR MOST CASSETTE RECORDING.
Maxell LN cassettes offer the lowest-cost way to enjoy Maxell quality, fidelity and rich, pleasing sound when used with any cassette recorder.
You can be sure of excellent results on just about any kind of program material: interviews, slide narration, educational applications and music —either live or dubbed.
Over-all, the LN series offers reliability and performance of the highest quality at minimum cost— an important factor in budget-conscious situations.

LN C-90 $2.99 ea.

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR STORAGE

Audio buffs looking for a sound investment put their money into Maxell Silver and Gold.
Maxell Silver (UD-XL1) is the most highly valued tape for normal bias. And Maxell Gold (UD-XL11) is equally valued for chrome biasing.
We realize the world's finest tape is worth a lot.

So when you buy three, we'll give you something to protect your investment. A free cassette storage case that holds up to 12 cassettes.
The way we figure it, once you hear the sound of Silver and Gold, you'll find the dividends far greater than the investment.

best deal #2

ULTRA-DYNAMIC UD

UD Ultra-Dynamic Professional choice for high fidelity. Professional recordists working in the cassette format choose - and prefer - Maxell UD cassettes.
The exclusive Maxell thermal-hardening binder system results in a notably smooth oxide coating, finished to a mirror surface for ideal head-to-tape contact and elimination of drop-out. Maxell UD cassettes are well known for extra high output, lower noise, low distortion, and very wide dynamic range.

3 PAK & CASE $15.99

UD XL I

Designed to give the best results with normal recorder adjustments for bias and equalization - no special settings or adjustments are required - Maxell UD-XL1 achieves a level of performance never before possible.
The Epitaxial magnetic formula is optimized by Maxell engineers to be high in sensitivity, higher in Maximum Output Level (MOL), and having a greater dynamic range than conventional premium cassettes. Distortion especially is substantially lower. Very simply, the sophisticated new Maxell UD-XL is notably superior to any other cassette using normal settings.

3 PAK & CASE $21.99

UD XL II

UD-XL 11 HIGHEST FIDELITY WITH LOWEST BACKGROUND NOISE
Maxell UD-XL permits you to take full advantage of recorders having "CR," "Chrome," or "70 Microsecond" switch positions. The cassette shell also includes special notches that automatically activate correct adjustments on recorders so designed.
Dynamic range— the difference between the loudest and the softest passages— is spectacular, without the unwelcome intrusion of tape "hiss." Maxell UD-XL 11 is a dramatic advance in tape technology, providing both extraordinary high-frequency response and noise reduction in a ferric-oxide based tape.

3 PAK & CASE $21.99

All the line of Yamaha components shown here, come with a full FIVE YEAR WARRANTY which also GUARANTEES the published specifications.

A NOTE ABOUT DISTORTION

0.05% DISTORTION; back in the early '70's, 1% distortion was considered good. A couple of years ago, 0.05% was HOT STUFF. Last year, 0.1% was about the lowest distortion you could find in a stereo receiver. YAMAHA receivers have no more than 0.05% Distortion. Ask us about NDCR, or just trust your ears.

YAMAHA CR-220

AM/FM Stereo Receiver. 15 Watts RMS per Channel with 0.05% Distortion

Drive main speakers in your living room plus extension speakers in your bedroom or den. Continuously variable loudness allows you to compensate at any listening level for the natural drop off of the ear's response.

YAMAHA AUDIO

FACE OF THE 80's

a&b sound is proud to bring you Yamaha's new 1980 line. This is some of the best stereo gear we've ever seen.

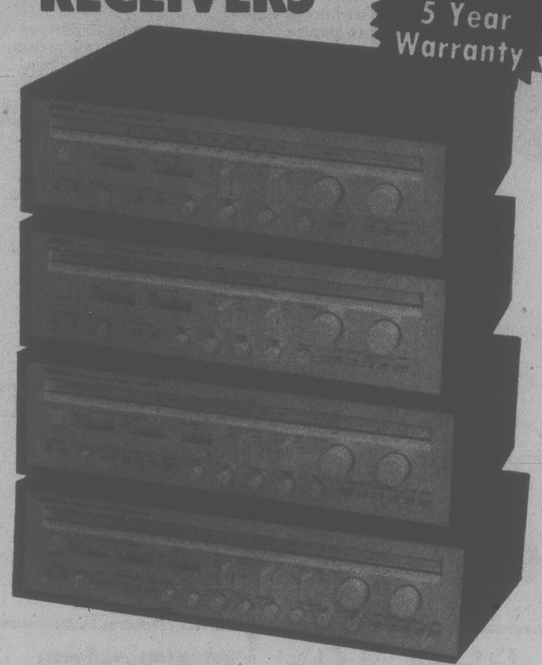
There are lots of reasons why Yamaha is leading the way in stereo. One is that they've been working at it for almost 100 years. Yamaha started as a manufacturer of musical instruments. Through the years, they expanded their activities to include concert sponsorships, recordings, and musical schools.

Yamaha's success in bringing an extra measure of musical fidelity is based on decades of experience in designing, producing, and testing musical instruments. This experience, combined with some of the world's most advanced electronic technology, has resulted in Yamaha's renowned "Natural Sound."

Yamaha has set the pace in a number of areas of music in the past. In audio, Yamaha was important in setting a new law in receivers of less than 0.05% distortion. Yamaha has reduced distortion again- to only 0.02% THD in the 1980 receiver line.

RECEIVERS

Full 5 Year Warranty



The Yamaha "Natural Sound" Receivers

The key word is "natural." The 1980 Yamaha Receivers are more clean, precise, and audibly accurate than any of Yamaha's previous models.

One of the significant features of these receivers is their new absolute low in total harmonic and inter-modulation distortion...An unbelievable 0.02%!

Once again, as in past years, Yamaha sets a standard in the audio industry that will undoubtedly keep them in the forefront for some time to come.

Yamaha CR-640 Receiver

- 40W/ch min. RMS at 0.02% THD over 20-20,000 Hz

Yamaha CR-840 Receiver

U.S. Stereo Review, June/79 said, "Our test results on the Yamaha CR-840 not only confirmed its very impressive specifications in all important respects (and surpassed them in many), but they strongly suggested that it is an outstanding product on any absolute scale of measurement without regard to price. Suffice to say that they make it possible for a moderate-price receiver to provide performance that would have been unimaginable only a short time ago."

- 60W/ch min. RMS at 0.02% THD over 20-20,000 Hz

EPI®

NOTE: THE LINEAR SOUND OF EPI

EPI builds each model to utilize sound engineering principles that will stand up over the years:

Flat Amplitude- that is, the speaker should produce no more or no less sound than is put into it.

Good Dispersion- the ability to radiate sound evenly in all directions so as to fill up the entire listening area.

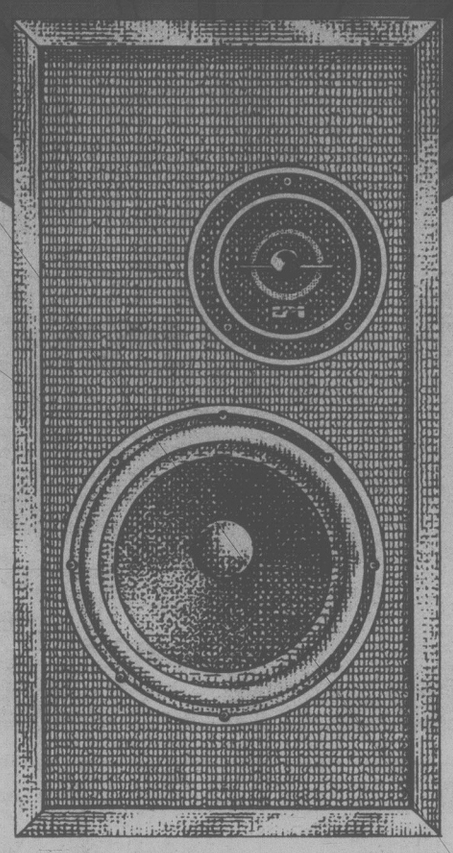
Transient Response- the speaker's ability to reproduce dramatic changes in the sound level produced by the sound source, accurately and with a minimum of time delay.

Low Distortion- a speaker system should do nothing to reinforce harmonics when they are present in a musical sound or create them when they are not.

Wide bandwidth- the greater the bandwidth, the more low and high frequency information the system is capable of reproducing.

By concentrating on these fundamental principles of sound EPI gets sound reproduction that is total, accurate, and linear.

Result: The Linear Sound of EPI



$150.00 WORTH OF SOUND

EPI® 100 ONLY $99.95 ea.

The EPI 100 has become the industry standard for bookshelf loudspeakers. Leading consumer and audiophile publications have consistently given the EPI 100 their top ratings. It does everything you want a loudspeaker to do, and it does it all in a compact cabinet!

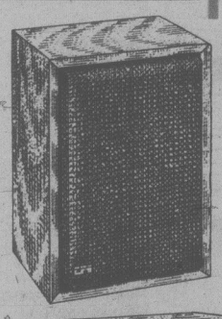
The EPI 100 offers EPI's celebrated Linear Sound: a pure, uncoloured, natural sound from top to bottom. With no artificial boosting of the bass to impress the innocent. And all the nuances at the treble end that, on most speakers, just fade away.

The Model 100 doesn't just deliver the Linear Sound of EPI straight ahead, either. In fact, up to 15,000 Hz, the speaker's off-axis dispersion is down an average of only 3db.

And, unlike nearly every other speaker, you can listen for hours to the EPI 100 without suffering listening fatigue. The reason is EPI's "minimum distortion" — both harmonic and intermodulation.

With its excellent dispersion and EPI's Linear Sound, we'd say the EPI 100 is clearly the finest speaker you can get for the money.

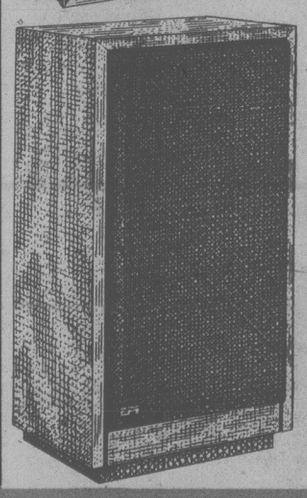
THE EPI® "LINEAR SOUND" LINE-UP



EPI® 70

EPI Loudspeaker is a 2-way system employing EPI's ferro-fluid tweeter suspension for truly "Linear Sound." The most accurate speaker in its class. Remarkable off-axis dispersion gives you true stereo separation from virtually everywhere in the listening area.

$79.95 ea.



EPI® 200B

EPI 200B Linear Sound Loudspeaker system designed for extended bass response, reduced distortion and dramatically increased efficiency.

The EPI 200B "Linear Sound" Loudspeaker employs a specially-designed 8" woofer and 12" passive radiator to give you ultra-accurate bass reproduction down to 34 Hz! And the 1" high-efficiency tweeter with ferro-fluid suspension means you get precise high frequency reproduction too! The result is EPI's unprecedented dispersion and clarity— the "Linear Sound."

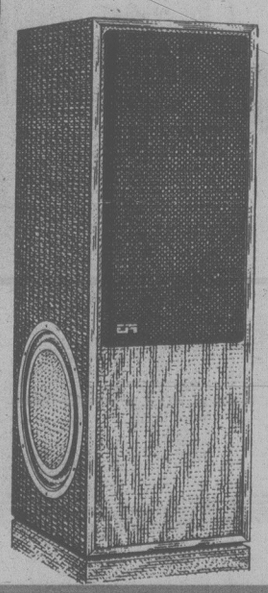
EPI® 120C

EPI 120C Loudspeaker system is a 2-way design with 10" long-traverse woofer and 1" air-spring tweeter. This system provides superior dispersion and the accurate reproduction typical of EPI's exclusive Linear Sound.

$189.95 ea.



EPI® 500

"No other accurate system offers such high-efficiency, and extraordinary power-handling capability."

The Model 500 uses an advanced passive radiator design which will deliver clean, linear, and well dispersed sound from as little as 15 watts RMS per channel receivers while being capable of handling up to 100 watts RMS or up to 800 watts of peak power. Because distortion is practically non-existent, listening fatigue is greatly minimized, even after long periods of listening at high levels.

The Model 500's essentially flat impedance curve means that even at the highest volume levels amplifiers will be able to drive the system without difficulty.

A COMPLETE NEW IDEA IN VALUE

4025
AM/FM CASSETTE RECEIVER

"BREAKTHROUGH" PRODUCT FROM MARANTZ IS TOTALLY NEW VALUE. It's the Model 4025 and it combines Marantz' expertise in receiver and tape deck design to deliver a unit that does not compromise performance or flexibility for the sake of size and convenience.

Model 4025 is a powerful and sensitive stereo receiver. Like the most expensive receivers on the market, 4025 incorporates a Full Complementary Direct Coupled Output to ensure reliable, linear performance with exceptionally low distortion. And it delivers 25 watts per channel into 8 ohms. A generous complement of features and indicators make the Marantz 4025 the versatile control center of a sophisticated sound system: Combined AM Signal Strength/FM Center Channel Tuning Meter, FM Muting Switch, Switchable Loudness Contour, High Filter, Selectable Speaker System Switch, LED Indicators for Record, Stereo, and Dolby, and more.

Model 4025 is also a high-performance front-load cassette deck with Dolby. The built-in Dolby Noise Reduction System reduces tape hiss to near zero and gives superior signal-to-noise performance. And besides that, we've built in virtually every other feature you can think of: record/playback head made from super-hard permalloy material, DC Motor Transport System provides rock-stable tape speed, Flexible Tape EQ and Bias Selectors.

HD-440 SPEAKERS

You can't hear these loudspeakers. Because the Marantz HD-440 bookshelf systems are designed to let you hear the music instead. There's none of the coloration that marks inferior designs— and can lead to listening fatigue. And what a speaker complement for a compact, modestly-priced system: 8-inch woofer, 3½-inch midrange and 3½-inch tweeter. All specified and built by Marantz to the same high standards as their most expensive loudspeakers.

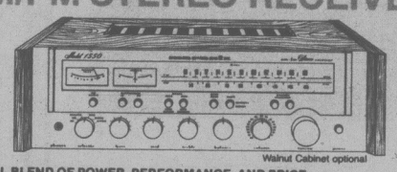
AM/FM STEREO RECEIVER



Walnut Cabinet optional

AN IDEAL BLEND OF POWER, PERFORMANCE, AND PRICE.

The Amplifier Section: The Marantz 1550 delivers 50 watts per channel into 8 ohms, minimum continuous power output with inaudible distortion. Its Full Complementary Direct Coupled Output ensures reliable, linear sound reproduction throughout the bandwidth.

The Tuner Section: Model 1550 incorporates a tuner section engineered for fast, accurate tuning and crisp, clear station reception. That's why we've included separate AM/FM Signal Strength and FM Center Tuning Meters.
And we've designed the tuner to deliver exceptional 50dB stereo quieting of 42uV, to help eliminate background noise even when receiving distant or weak stations.

The Preamp Section: Keyword to the 1550's preamp section is "Usability." One example: in addition to Bass and Treble Controls, we've included a Midrange Control that's especially useful in adjusting vocal performance to suit listener tastes. And we've also included Loudness Contour Control, FM Muting, Tape Copy Function, 2 tape Monitors, 12 dB per octave High and Low Filters and Speaker System Switching.

marantz. 1530

Walnut Cabinet optional

AN EXCELLENT RECEIVER VALUE

Marantz introduces a medium-powered receiver with many of the features usually found only in high-powered receivers. A handful of examples: Dual Tuning Meters, Midrange Tone Control and a complete complement of preamp functions including a 12dB per octave High Filter and Tape Monitoring circuitry. Combine them with traditional Marantz gold anodized styling, impeccable Marantz engineering and performance excellence, and you've got one of the best receiver values ever to carry the Marantz name.
The Model 1530 delivers 30 watts per channel into 8 ohms, minimum continuous power output with inaudible distortion. Impressive, even for receivers costing much more.

A TREMENDOUS VALUE AT $299.95

SAE

Scientific Audio Electronics, Inc.

Scientific Audio Electronics (SAE) has been totally committed to the design and manufacture of state-of-the-art audio components for over 10 years. With their philosophy of total control over the product from inception, through design, to the final product, they have been able to establish a new and high level of quality and performance in the industy. Because of this belief in their product, SAE offers an unprecedented Transferable Service Contract* which is valid for 5 years, no matter who owns the product, making it the most comprehensive and far reaching protection offered by an audio manufacturer. This is typical of the way they do everything. When you look at any piece of SAE, notice the attention to detail, the quality of components, and MOST important the quality of sound. Then you understand why we build Components for the Connoisseur.

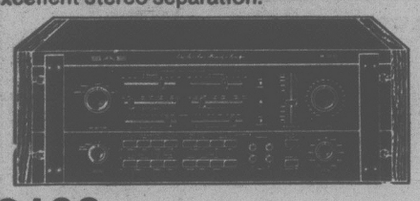
3200 FM DIGITAL TUNER

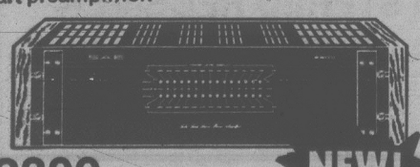
NEW!

Quiet reception, low distortion, and precise tuning are the hallmarks of the new SAE 3200 Tuner. The LED readout accurately displays station frequency as you tune. Monolithic linear phase filters design plus phase lock loop multiplex give clean reception with excellent stereo separation.



2100 PARAMETRIC PREAMPLIFIER

SAE's 2100 Preamplifier-Equalizer establishes a new level of sonic performance and control flexibility. This superb preamplifier features SAE's unique parametric equalizer as well as full tape dubbing and tape EQ capabilities. Further, to ensure sonic excellence, THD & IM have been held to less than 0.05%. Signal-to-noise for the phono section is greater than 80db and at line level greater than 100db. Sonic excellence and performance features establish SAE's 2100 as a truly state-of-the-art preamplifier.



2300 POWER AMPLIFIER

NEW!

The new 2300 Power Amplifier employs Fully Complementary Design to increase clarity and accuracy of musical reproduction, Toroid Transformer for optimum focusing of FIELD ENERGY, Protection against virtually every potential problem and Turbo Flair Heat Sinks for improved heat dissipation. All in all, the 2300 Power Amplifier is a rock stable, pure, accurate reproducer of music— simply outstanding.

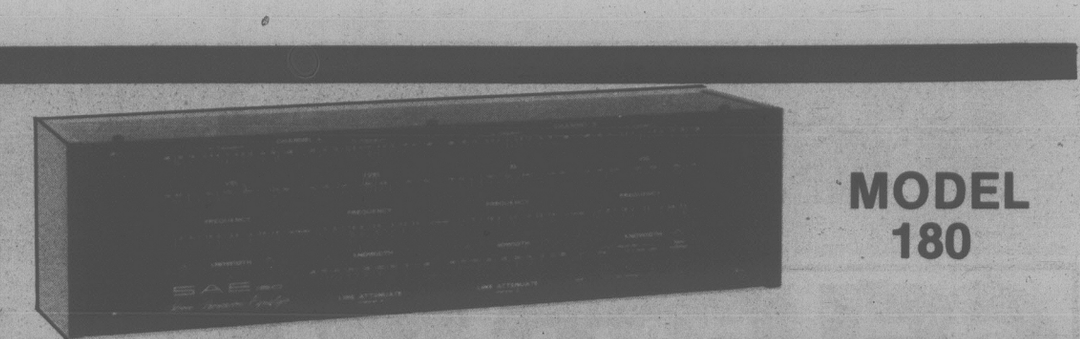
SAE

PARAMETRIC EQUALIZER $369.95

The graphic reason to buy our parametric.

With the graphic equalizer, you have a limited number of chances to correct an infinite number of potential problems in a recording or listening environment. You're dealing with fixed bandwidths and fixed frequencies. You can only increase or decrease the level. When boosting or cutting frequencies, you have to settle for the nearest one or two octaves. It's a compromise. With the parametric, you're provided an infinite number of solutions. Bandwidth, frequency, and level are each determined by you. Any musical problem can be isolated and corrected. Any. And all. And that's what all the excitements about.



Level— once the frequency and bandwidth have been set, the Level control is adjusted to created the desired effect or correct the particular problem.

Frequency— this control is used to determine the exact center frequency of the bandwidth control and thus determines where the control group will take effect.

Bandwidth— this control is labeled in octaves, and determines how broad a segment of the audio spectrum will be affected by a particular control group.

R3C: Start out on the right receiver.

If you're about to build a super hi-fi system, you need a strong start. We recommend the R3C.
Preamp, amp, and AM/FM tuner. It's all the electronics you need in one compact, self-contained unit.
And it has features normally associated with receivers twice the price.
Examples: Loudness compensation to let you hear full bass and highs at low volume. Separate tuning and signal strength meters. They virtually guarantee perfectly accurate tuning.
Enough power to fill any room with the full range of music with inaudible distortion guaranteed by full complementary circuitry.

JVC Ultralinear

A System For The Discriminating Audiophile. JVC is a world leader in audio technology and this super system demonstrates why. The JVC JRS-201 receiver is DC Powered for ultra low distortion of only 0.03% and has 35 watts RMS per channel for rich powerful reproduction from all listening sources. In addition there is a built-in 5 band graphic equalizer which enables you to tailor the sound to your listening environment. The JVC QL-A2 turntable features the latest direct-drive quartz lock technology for unparalleled speed accuracy and quiet smooth operation. The QL-A2 has automatic shutoff and return and is complete with a Shure M95ED magnetic cartridge. We chose the Ultralinear 210 loudspeakers for this system because only they could do justice to the other fine components. A 3-way air suspension system, the 210 features a long-throw 12" woofer for deep, rich bass, a 5" sealed back midrange and a 1" dome tweeter for crystal clear highs. The Ultralinear 210s are rated to 50 WRMS per channel and are circuit breaker protected.

marantz. We sound better. Ultralinear

The "Disco" System. We've put this powerful system together for the person who listens to contemporary rock and disco music and also for the stereophile who wants to get into the canned music business. Disco music requires loud volumes with low distortion, and that's why we chose the Marantz 1122 DC stereo amplifier. With over 60 watts RMS per channel the 1122 DC will drive the Disco monitors to concert hall levels. The 1122 also has 2 phono inputs and triple tone controls for excellent flexibility. Pounding the sound out are the huge, floor-standing ultralinear 265 "Disco-Monitors". High efficiency and high power-handling make the 265 the ideal disco speaker. The 15" woofer reproduces gut-rocking bass while the 6" midrange and 2 super tweeters give excellent definition. The Marantz 6170 is a rock solid direct drive turntable with variable pitch control and is complete with the No. 1 disco-cartridge, the Stanton 680EE. Experience the excitement of disco in your own home.

FIRST WITH THE PROS.

JBL L-19 "Home Dress" Mini Monitor
Acoustically, it's identical to the compact monitor JBL developed for use in broadcast production facilities & mobile recording studios. It's a "Bookshelf" speaker that honest-to-gosh fits on a bookshelf...

10 watts RMS per channel is all you need to get nasty phone calls from the neighbors, but the JBL-19 is right at home with amps rated up to 60 watts per channel.

JBL's new 8" woofer has a bigger voice coil & heavier magnet than 12" woofers made by others. Tweeter level is continuously adjustable for natural musical balance in YOUR listening area.

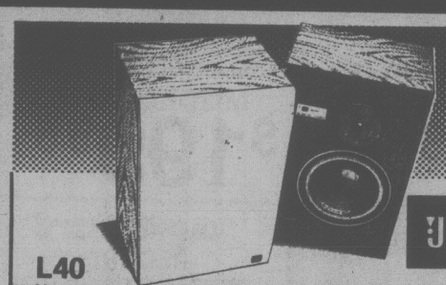
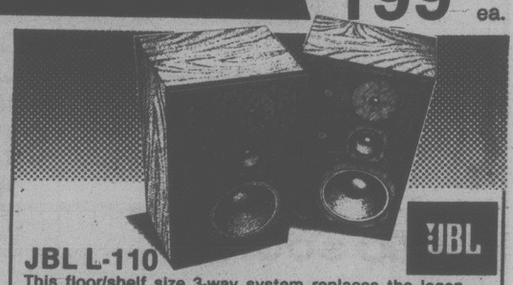
L50
JBL's least expensive three-way design combines outstanding drivers in a vertical line array, controlled by a complex frequency dividing network. The thorough, advanced engineering of the L50 has resulted in highly accurate, natural sound reproduction which offers outstanding value in its price range.
$349.95 ea.



L40
New techniques in acoustical analysis and computer simulation were applied to created and refine the L40. JBL's new 1" dome tweeter spreads high in the wide 180° arc, so you can sit out of the "line of fire" & still hear it all. Up-front tweeter control: "10" woofer. Ideal for amps from 10-70 watts/channel.
$249.95 ea.



JBL L-110
This floor/shelf size 3-way system replaces the legendary JBL L-100 "Century".
L-110's new 10" woofer is quicker than Century's older 12" woofer. The new 5" midrange is smoother. And JBL's new 1" hemispherical-dispersion dome tweeter spreads clear, lifelike highs to every corner of your listening area. Recommended amplifier rating: 10-150 watts/channel.
$449.95 ea.
